Much to Live for. Congress Grinds Again. Do You Play Contract? 3 in One Family Is News.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

TWO BROOKLYN businessmen, rich before the depression started, shot themselves to death yesterday, one sitting at his desk, the other in bed. No need to add to the families' grief by mentioning their names.

THAT MEN should end their lives because prosperity ends seems strange. Money made once can be made again. Middle-age should not prevent it and adversity should arouse a man's fighting instinct.

And money is not everything. It is important only because it means comfort and freedom from slavery.

The world, even in a depression, is interesting, and those "not doing so well" should remember a comforting statement quoted by Bruce R. Baxter, dean of the school of religion in the University of Southern California:

"Those that have not much to live ON should remember that there is always a great deal to live FOR."

THE CONGRESS that makes your laws, and hopes to restore your prosperity, is at work in Washington again, with 5,000 bills ready, as a starter.

The Senate is Republican in the same way.

Senator Shipstead, only "Farmer-Labor" member, a party all by himself, is able to decide for Republicans or Democrats.

The Congressional gathering was greeted rather gruesomely by a parade of 1,400 calling themselves "the hunger army" and singing a Communist hymn.

OUR CHOICE of music depends a good deal on the state of our pocketbook. Had the fourteen hundred been earning $10 a day each in a period of prosperity they would have been singing "The Star Spangled Banner" or at least "My Country 'Tis of Thee."

The hunger army wanted to march to the floor of the Senate, but couldn't, being met at the Capitol steps by police carrying sawed-off shotguns and tear bombs.

ONE HUNGER marcher observed, bitterly:

Which is true.

On the other hand, 1,400 marching bankers would not be treated in that manner in Moscow. You can find almost anything you want on this strange planet.

LENZ AND Culbertson have begun their contract bridge tournament, 150 rubbers, to decide which has the better system.

Millions will follow that tournament that would not listen to Einstein expounding his relativity theory or Sir Oliver Lodge discoursing on the "imponderable ether."

WHOEVER PLAYS bridge as well as Lenz or Culbertson uses his time profitably, from the financial point of view.

Whoever plays "a wonderfully good game of contract" and concentrates on it, hour after hour, without being at the top, is wasting time and mental energy, since it doesn't in the least matter which is the better bridge system. A better will always be found, and geese to discuss it.

IN A SHALLOW grave at Brielle, N. J., police dug up a body disfigured by acid, identified by them as a gangster 25 years old named James P. Granato. Other gangsters had killed him for revenge, but there is no news in that.

However, Granato was the third member of his family killed in gangster vengeance, his father and brother being the other two. Three in one family IS news and worthy of mention in the history of our prohibition-bootleg-gangster-racketeer crime wave.

PUBLISHERS, INDUSTRIOUSLY accumulating circulation, know that circulation counts, and especially in a depression.

At a luncheon given by Mr. Berkowitz to his staff of the American Weekly at the Warwick Hotel in New York yesterday it was shown that advertising in the American Weekly thus far in 1931 has increased over the preceding year by $600,000.

THIS WILL NOT surprise intelligent publishers. The net paid circulation of the American Weekly, distributed with all of the Hearst Sunday newspapers, is 5,500,000 copies each week, at 10 cents a copy.

Intelligent advertisers refuse to accept conversation in lieu of circulation, especially in dull times.

HITLER, HEAD of the pseudo Fascist movement in Germany, who has a fine lock of hair on his forehead, and perhaps other things like Napoleon, says he will soon take over the German government, and adds that he will see to the payment of Germany's private debts. He makes an intelligent bid for the support of American bankers, that have been lending hundreds of millions to Germany.

Hitler evidently knows where the real power resides in this nation, since his first bid is for the approval of high finance.

THE INTELLIGENT young German Fascist also says that if financial conditions are made too hard he will favor the adoption of some currency

DEATH NOOSE UNNERVES POWERS

'Bluebeard' Cringes as Strap That Strangled Woman Brings Hint of Gallows

By AL GOUGH
Staff Correspondent.

CLARKSBURG, W. Va., Dec. 8.—A grim reminder that West Virginia sends its murderers to the gallows dangled today before Harry F. Powers, alleged killer of three children and two women.

It was a narrow, web book strap in the hands of Dr. Leroy C. Goff, coroner of Harrison County, and the first witness called in the second day of the matrimonial Romeo's trial on a charge of murdering Mrs. Dorothy Lemke, 50-year-old North Boro (Mass.) nurse and divorcee, one of the hundreds of women with whom Powers carried on mail order romances.

FOUND ON VICTIM'S NECK

As Dr. Goff took the witness stand, he drew the strap, possibly half an inch wide and 12 inches long, from his pocket. It was the noose with which Mrs. Lemke was strangled to death and was found drawn tightly around her neck when her body and those of Mrs. Asta B. Eicher, of Park Ridge, Ill., and the latter's three children were found buried beside Powers' purported "murder garage" in Quiet Dell, six miles from the city.

As the book strap dangled from the coroner's hand it resembled a miniature hangman's rope, a gruesome model of that which adorns the gallows of the little "Green Room" at the Moundsville Penitentiary. It is there that Powers will hang if he pays the death penalty for the murder of

English Urges City Pay Cut Of $1,300,000

Councilman W. Y. English, chairman of the Council Budget Committee, today said he would propose a salary cut of at least 10 per cent for the entire city payroll, including the Mayor and members of Council, in an effort to pare municipal expenses for 1932.

His request will be submitted to Council in the next day or two, he indicated.

The payroll totals around $13,000,000 yearly. The proposed cut would slash $1,300,000, equivalent to almost two mills.

English said:

"The payroll will have to be reduced at least 10 per cent in an effort to bring down the cost of operating the city. Tax money hasn't been coming in as it should and this, coupled with present economic conditions, makes it obvious that we must take some action."

Some of the larger salaries listed on the city payroll are: Mayor, $15,000; councilmen, $8,000; heads of departments, $5,000 to $8,000; mayor's secretary, $5,600; chief engineer, public works department, $10,000; chief engineer city planning commission, $7,500.

PAYMENTS BY 3 BANKS NEAR

Distribution of deposits in three of the closed State banks by next Monday was indicated today as Dr. William D. Gordon, secretary of banking, conferred with the members of the Second District Realization Corporation, organized to assist in the liquidation of the closed banks.

Gordon came to Pittsburgh this morning and immediately went to the Colonial Trust Company to confer with the 12 directors of the corporation. It was expected he would approve plans for distribution of funds with the assistance of C. L. McCune, who has been appointed private banker in making the distribution.

Fifty per cent dividends orders will be ready for the clients of the closed Bank of Pittsburgh not later than December 20, C. O. Thomas, the receiver, announced today. This applies to all depositors who did not receive first dividends last week.

Thomas said the orders would be credited to the accounts of the depositors in the First National Bank, which took over half of the closed bank's business.

Closed Bank Appeals To Get City Bonds

Deputy Secretary of Banking George F. Taylor, Jr., in charge of the closed Pennsylvania Bank and Trust Company, today took an appeal to the Supreme Court from a decision to compel the city to turn over to the bank $113,000 bonds posted to secure city deposits. Taylor contended a surety company bond amply protected the city and the other bonds should be turned back. The city questions the validity of the surety bond inasmuch as it is alleged to have expired the same day the bank closed.

HOUSE VOTES 10 MILLIONS FOR RELIEF

Anti-Pinchot Measure Is Passed by Majority Big Enough to Override Veto

HARRISBURG, Dec. 8.—(AP.)—The House of Representatives, stronghold of administration forces throughout the regular 1931 session, today bolted the Pinchot unemployment relief program.

The rout of the administration former majority materialized with a vote of 171 to 16 by which the branch passed finally the Talbot bill, mainstay of the anti-Pinchot unemployment relief program and target of Attorney General Schnader's severest criticism.

Described by Schnader as "a wolf in sheep's clothing," threatening to establish a precedent "which might haunt legislatures for many years to come," the bill was passed with the greatest majority thrown against any Pinchot bill in either the regular or special sessions this year.

TO OVERRIDE VETO

The affirmative vote was considerably in excess of the total required to pass a measure through the House over a gubernatorial veto. Combined with the normal anti-administration vote in the Senate, it was received by supporters of the House bloc program as assuring the enactment of the substitute $27,000,000 relief program regardless of whether the Governor follows his announced intention to veto.

The House bloc, in effecting the passage of the key bill of its plan, mustered its biggest oratorical guns. Talbot and Turner, of Delaware; Reed, of Dauphin; Saris, of Berks, and Sterling, of Philadelphia, assailed the administration attempts to "shackle" the House

Girl, 3 Boys Hurt as 3 Cars Crash

Three children and a girl were injured when three automobiles collided in Bigelow boulevard near Herron avenue this afternoon.

A traffic jam that prevailed for almost half an hour was created when one car, bound downtown, crashed into an eastbound automobile, a third car piling into the wreckage.

The injured were rushed to West Penn Hospital. They are:

Mrs. Sophie Kulesa, 17, of 177 Finley avenue, Blumdale, Pa., and her three brothers, Edward, 9; Joseph, 8, and Aloysius Wojteczal, 13.

Man Held as Drunk Dies, Quiz Ordered

Blanch Blankenship, 58, address unknown, died in Allegheny General Hospital today five minutes after he had been taken there from his cell in North Side Police Station. He spent the night in a cell, arrested on a drunkenness charge. Police said he was found lying on the floor in the Carnegie Library, Federal street, yesterday. An autopsy by the Coroner revealed pneumonia as the cause of death.

Yale Coach Urges Study To Avert Grid Deaths

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Dec. 8.—(AP.)—A committee, including a neurologist, a public-spirited man of good standing, players and coaches to study rules before taking action to prevent further football deaths was suggested by Dr. Marvin A. Stevens, Yale head coach, in an interview in the Yale Daily News.

Such a committee, he was quoted as saying, could discover the real causes of the high mortality. He said he did not know of a single death that had been caused by the flying wedge.

The question could not, he said, be solved by "making wild guesses as to the cause of the deaths."

SIOUX CITY, Iowa, Dec. 8.—(AP.)—Jack Gorchow, 14, North Junior High School pupil, who was seriously injured several weeks ago while playing football, died today in the Lutheran Hospital.

COUNCIL DENIES MARCHERS AID

Headed by Edith Briscoe and Tom Rogers, Communists, a committee representing "hunger marchers," today demanded from City Council oil, gasoline, clothing and food for the "marchers" when they return here from Washington tomorrow night. The demands were refused.

The meeting developed into a heated discussion of the Helping Hand when Council ruled that the only assistance the city would give the "marchers" must come from the Helping Hand.

Miss Briscoe answered:

"You'll have to answer for this."

Attorney Harry I. Miller said the marchers, if they chose to enter the Helping Hand as individuals, would be given food and beds. He warned them that if they banded together as an organization, they would be turned away.

Democratic House Votes Liberal Rules

Choice of President Pro Tem Blocked In Senate

WASHINGTON, Dec. 8.—(INS.)—The House this afternoon freed itself from the shackles of "gag rule," under which it has functioned for many years, and thus assured the anti-prohibitionists an opportunity to call a vote on the various bills calling for repeal or modification of the dry laws.

The members changed the House rules so bills, such as those pertaining to prohibition, can be called for action.

Meanwhile, the fight over election of a president pro tempore broke out in the Senate when Senator Robinson, Democratic leader, moved to select a successor to Senator Moses (Rep.), of New Hampshire. Election of Moses was blocked when Republican Independents scattered their votes.

CREDIT POOL ASKED IN MESSAGE

Tax Increase Necessary, President Says; Favors Anti-Trust Law Change

By GEORGE R. HOLMES,
International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 8.—An eight-point program designed to strengthen the general business situation—primarily by broadening and liberalizing the country's credit structure — was proposed to the new Seventy-second Congress today by President Hoover.

With it went the unwelcome news that there must be a material increase in federal income taxes for the next two years in order to rescue the treasury from existing and future deficits. The tax increase would end July 1, 1934.

The President's principal recommendation to stimulate business was a proposal for creation of an emergency Reconstruction Corporation to make loans to agricultural credit agencies, establish industries, railways and financial institutions. No capital sum was mentioned, but the understanding is it would be $1,000,000,000.

SOMBER MESSAGE

It was a somber message the President delivered on the state of the nation. It was almost entirely devoted to the economic crisis, what has been done to alleviate it and what should be done in the future. In general, its tone was that, "as bad as things are, other countries are suffering more."

Concerning the grave issue of unemployment, which promises to occupy considerable of Congress' attention this session, the President reported that the government was spending $780,000,000 on public works this year, that the nation's response to the recent drive

Gatty Recovering From Influenza

ATLANTA, Dec. 8.—(AP.)—Harold Gatty, round-the-world flier, who was taken to a hospital here Sunday night suffering with influenza, was reported "fairly comfortable" today and showing a little improvement from yesterday. Sponsors of his tour of the country with his flying partner, Wiley Post, could not say when he would be able to leave the hospital.

Pastor, Preaching On Theft, Robbed

UNIONTOWN, Pa., Dec. 8.—(AP.)—As the Rev. O. J. Schultz, of Lake Lynn, preached on the subject "Thou Shalt Not Steal," at the Jacobs Lutheran Church, thieves entered his home and stole several dresses and other articles of wearing apparel.

Summary of President's Message to Congress

WASHINGTON, Dec. 8. President Hoover, in his message to Congress today, said:

It is my duty under the constitution to transmit to the Congress information on the state of the union and to recommend for its consideration necessary and expedient measures.

The chief influence affecting the state of the union during the past year has been continued world-wide economic disturbance. Our national concern has been to meet the emergencies it has created for us and to lay the foundations for recovery.

If we lift our vision beyond these immediate emergencies we find fundamental national gains even amid depression. In meeting the problems of this difficult period, we have witnessed a remarkable development of the sense of co-operation in the community. For the first time in the history of our major economic depressions there has been a notable absence of public disorders and industrial conflict. Above all there is an enlargement of social and spiritual responsibility among the people. The strains and stresses upon business have resulted in closer application, in saner policies, and in better methods. Public improvements have been carried out on a larger scale than even in normal times. The country is richer in physical property, in newly discovered resources, and in productive capacity than ever before.

There has been constant gain in knowledge and education; there has been continuous advance in science and invention; there has been distinct gain in public health. Business depressions have been recurrent in the life of our country and are but transitory. The nation has

SENATE CONFIRMS GOLLMAR'S APPOINTMENT AS SHERIFF

FORMER JUDGE WINS COUNTY DELEGATION

Explains He Intended No Slight by Failure to Ask Support; Boyle Gets O. K.

HARRISBURG, Dec. 8.—The Senate, by unanimous vote, today confirmed the appointment of former Judge Frank I. Gollmar as Sheriff of Allegheny County, to succeed Robert S. Cain, elected County Treasurer.

Confirmation of the Governor's appointment came today after the Allegheny County delegation had notified the chairman of the Senate committee on executive nominations that he might bring the nomination to the floor.

The Allegheny County Senators were miffed because Gollmar had not visited each of them except Senator James J. Coyne, generally regarded as his sponsor.

After adjournment last night Gollmar visited the Allegheny delegation and explained that he had intended no discourtesy, and that his failure to speak to them about his confirmation had been merely an oversight.

One of the delegation said:

"There is no objection to Frank Gollmar personally. I believe. We refuse to be ignored like this."

The Senate last night confirmed these Pittsburgh appointments: Harvey J. Boyle, Boxing Commissioner; J. C. C. Fitzhugh, McKeesport, and W. A. McCready, members of the dental examining board; Charles E. Dickey, State Council of Education; Charles C. Campbell, State Pharmacy board, and William B. Rodgers, Industrial board. Mrs. Edna S. Chalfant, Wilkinsburg, was named trustee of State College, and Dr. Charles W. Boyd, Sewickley, a member of the Board of Veterinarian Medical examiners.

HOUSE ASSAILED FOR DELAY BY MUSMANNO

Legislature Should Pass Resolution for 'Prosperity Loan' by U. S., He Asserts

Calling upon the Legislature to approve his resolution memorializing Congress to pass a $5,000,000,000 prosperity bond issue, Representative M. A. Musmanno last night assailed members for doing nothing while the need for relief grows. Musmanno introduced his resolution supporting the prosperity suggestion of W. R. Hearst, at the beginning of the Legislature five weeks ago. To sidestep the issue, he declares, the controlling leaders of the House buried it in the rules committee which has declined to act.

Musmanno last night termed the extra session called to act on unemployment relief "a Neronian spectacle of the Legislature fiddling while the unemployed starve."

TIME WASTED

Musmanno, after reciting that the Legislature was called for a four-week session, and is now in its fifth week, said the Governor had signed an appropriation bill for a 12-week session, without anything being accomplished.

In his speech he said:

"Because I am convinced that this is a national problem I introduced a resolution calling upon Congress to do certain things which, if done, will unquestionably bring back prosperity. If the Legislature passes this resolution I am certain that it will have tremendous force in persuading Congress to take this step which will indubitably end the depression.

"What happened to that resolution? It was sent to the Rules Committee and ever since I have been indefatigable in my efforts to get it out, but the committee insists that they must wait a while before determining whether it is germane to the Governor's call.

UP TO CONGRESS

"The federal government must be the surgeon to perform the major operation in saving America, but until Congress acts we must do something to ease the pain that afflicts Pennsylvania.

"I have proposed an income tax law, which by certain devised machinery will operate on all those receiving an income over $15,000,000. If this bill is enacted into law at once, that is, before the end of the year, it will retroact to January 1, 1931, which means that in the early part of 1932 the state can begin to collect."

"The federal government must be the surgeon to perform the major operation in saving America, but until Congress acts we must do something to ease the pain that afflicts Pennsylvania.

BRITAIN URGED TO PREPARE FOR WAR

Labor Member Points to Failure of League, Growing Peril to Peace in Far East

International News Service.

LONDON, Dec. 8.—Utter failure of the League of Nations to enforce peace in Manchuria provoked the question in the House of Commons this afternoon whether Great Britain should not take immediate steps to increase her armaments instead of depending upon the league to prevent war.

The issue was raised by Geffrey Mander, member of the Labor party which has strongly supported the League.

Mander asked Premier MacDonald whether he would consider the advisability of requesting the committee on imperial defense to state:

"What increase in the armaments of this country are necessary in view of the uncertainty of pooled security under the League being realized as disclosed by the events in Manchuria?"

The Prime Minister replied somewhat brusquely:

"I see no reason to take action."

"But doesn't the Prime Minister think it is desirable to get ready for the next war in view of what is happening in Manchuria?"

The question went unanswered.

In a startling editorial today, the Manchester Guardian, England's leading Liberal newspaper, which has been a staunch supporter of the League of Nations since its organization, launched a vitriolic attack upon the handling of the Manchurian crisis by the League Council. The Guardian said:

"The miserable efforts of the League to deal with the Manchurian problem has only served to make it contemptible in the eyes of the world.

"While the Council has been making itself ridiculous in Paris, Japan has been busily engaged in destroying every vestige of Chinese authority in Manchuria."

MURDER STRAP DISPLAYED TO POWERS JURY

Mrs. Lemke or any of his other four alleged victims.

Dr. Goff dropped the strap and reached into a bag beside the witness chair. From it he drew several long strips of canvas—the automobile tire liners with which Mrs. Lemke's body was bound.

"BLUEBEARD" SHAKEN

As these grim exhibits met Powers' gaze he flinched. It was one of the few times that the little Romeo of the mails has shown emotion since the trial opened. He recovered his poise quickly, however, and leaned back in his chair, his eyes peering through his thick shell-rimmed glasses. He occasionally ran a hand over his carefully-combed hair or tugging at the lapel of his sprucely pressed blue serge coat.

The coroner's testimony, save for a few exceptions, was routine, and related to finding of the bodies.

Once during the coroner's testimony, County Prosecutor Will E. Morris sent the 1,200 spectators, who jammed Moore's Opera House, where the trial is being held due to reconstruction of the Courthouse, into a gale of laughter. It was when he interrupted Dr. Goff's description of Powers to ask:

"Is he white?"

SPECTATORS WARNED

Judge John C. Southern rapped for order and warned the spectators.

"You folks know I won't permit that again."

The court is a strange blend of informality and discipline. While Judge Southern commands a quiet, orderly and dignified procedure, there is an undercurrent of neighborliness throughout the whole affair. Once during the morning, Sheriff William Grimm stepped to the front on the stage, standing before the Judge's bench and said:

"Is Jim So-and-So in the house? He is wanted on the telephone."

INSTRUCTIONS TO WIFE

The most damaging evidence the state has yet introduced against Powers came today when City Detective Carl Southern read a letter which he testified he had obtained from Powers' wife, Louella, and contained instructions from the defendant—a prisoner at the time it was written— as to how she should testify in his trial.

Excerpts from it follow:

"My beloved dears:

"We are facing a bitter fight, but if we fight together we will win.

"All you need to do is to testify that you gave me $4,000 for the purpose of building a house at Quiet Dell. You gave me $2,000 one day and $2,000 a few days later.

"The check that I gave you was merely the return of your money as I would be unable to proceed with my plans.

"I paid you back partly in cash and the biggest amount by check.

DENIAL 'USELESS'

"If you will testify to this they will have no case against us and then we will keep our money.

"Listen, dear, it is useless for you to get them to believe that you did not know the clothes were in the house, as it was impossible to get that much inside.

"Remember, dear, we must work together.

"I will defend you at the cost of my own life."

It was signed "Love and Kisses from Harry."

Detective Southern testified that David P. Sentner, of the International News Service and Edward Freeman, of the Baltimore News, were with him in a store conducted by Mrs. Powers and her sister, Eva Belle Strothers, when the letter was delivered.

Mrs. Powers, he said, was extremely nervous and said she didn't want the letter and finally asked him to take it away.

TELL OF TRUNKS

J. E. Moran and P. M. Nugent, railway express employes at Fairmont, told of Powers claiming two trunks from their office and identifying himself at that time as "C. O. Pierson."

City Detective Southern testified that the trunks were found in Powers' garage and that the defendant first denied and then admitted that they belonged to Mrs. Eicher and Mrs. Lemke.

James E. Smith described to the jury how Powers "was with me almost every minute" while he was building the Quiet Dell garage. He told me of constructing a subterranean chamber, which Powers, he said, ordered built without lights and with a heavy padlock on the inside of the door.

WOMAN TO TESTIFY

Smith also testified that he dug a sewer, at Powers' orders, running from the garage to Elk Creek, 68 feet away.

It was in this ditch that the five bodies were found.

Truman Parrish, night clerk, and Conley Wood, night porter, of the Gore Hotel, testified that Mrs. Lemke registered there early July 31 and that she was brought to the hotel by a man resembling Powers.

BRIEF DEFENSE SEEN

The defense is expected to be brief, as Powers is known to have few witnesses to present.

HOUSE VOTES FOR RELIEF

by restrictions and adverse decisions by the Attorney General.

Supplementing this frontal assault, Sterling and Reed introduced opinions and acts of former United States Senator George Wharton Pepper and ex-Govs. Beaver and Pattison. Sterling read at length an opinion prepared by Pepper in which the former Senator asserted the pending bill could be sustained by the State Supreme Court, and declared, "If legislators lie down there is nothing left for the executive to do but walk over them."

FLOOD RECALLED

Reed appealed to the House to "follow governors whose names will be ever revered"—Beaver and Pattison. These executives, "a great Republican and an equally great Democrat," he said, established during the Johnstown flood of 1889 a precedent which the present General Assembly should follow in the face of unemployment emergency.

Representative Evans, of Cambria, the lone voice raised against the Talbot bill during the hour and a half of speaking, gave Reed the opportunity to launch his brilliant discussion of the Beaver-Pattison action. Saying he was surprised that protest should come from Cambria County, which includes Johnstown, Reed recalled that Gov. Beaver solely by the exercise of the "police power" mentioned in the Talbot bill, had taken $400,000 from the state treasury for relief in the Johnstown area. When the Democratic Pattison administration came into office, he continued, the Legislature, without opposition, approved the emergency action by passing the required appropriation measures.

PROMPT RELIEF

The bloc spokesmen conceded the possibility that money could be raised through the issuance of the Pinchot-proposed prosperity bonds, but all emphasized the fact that the Talbot measure offered a means of effecting relief more rapidly and more effectively.

They spoke of emergency methods which go higher than constitutional rights and of apparent constitutional inconsistencies which permit appropriations for care of animals and not of human beings. Representative Baric referred to the state appropriations for mothers' assistance funds of counties and said the present proposal is of exactly the same nature. He said:

"If we cannot go to the aid of persons now suffering and dying, then we must admit that constitutional government is a failure."

PINCHOT SEEKS 100 ON COUNCIL

HARRISBURG, Dec. 8 (AP)—Gov. Pinchot today announced he had invited more than 100 industrialists and agriculturalists to accept appointment as members of the Greater Pennsylvania Council.

The executive committee was appointed last month and the names of the members of the council will be announced after they have accepted the proffered appointment.

At the first meeting of the council the Governor said the executive committee will present for approval of the entire council a number of suggested projects for the first year's activity. The council was created by the Legislature last spring and Dr. Charles Bedell, Pittsburgh, was appointed director. The Governor said:

"The council is essentially a planning organization whose chief purpose is to assist in the industrial, agricultural, social and educational development of the state."

Detroit Reduces Lights to Save Taxes

DETROIT, Dec. 8 (AP)—A reduced street lighting program will go into effect in Detroit tonight as a result of reduced tax collections. The reduction in lighting is expected to result in a saving of $76,000 a year. The plan is to reduce the voltage in the system, cutting down illumination 30 per cent.

MERCURY FALLS TO 21 HERE

The season's coldest weather gripped the Pittsburgh district today as the mercury fell to an official 21 and to much lower in outlying districts.

Forecaster W. S. Brotzman reported that at his home in Brookside Farms, beyond Mt. Lebanon, the thermometer registered 14. Yesterday's slashing wind had abated overnight, tempering the frigidity for the throngs en route to work this morning.

The second storm from the South within a week is due to reach here late tonight bringing snow or rain. Temperatures will rise, the lowest predicted tonight being from 30 to 35 degrees. Skies will be overcast.

NEW YORK, Dec. 8 (AP)—Winter cracked the whip in a biting northwest gale over the East today.

The wind, which at times attained a velocity of 60 miles an hour, pushed the thermometer down into the twenties. Extending far to sea, the forceful wind churned the ocean and caused the delay of from 24 to 36 hours of six ocean liners.

LEADERS SPLIT ON MESSAGE

WASHINGTON, Dec. 8.—(AP.)—The long-awaited message President Hoover addressed to Congress today evoked immediate and varied comment from numbers of the legislators.

Senator Watson, the Republican leader, saw it as "remarkably strong."

At the same time Representative LaGuardia, a Republican, who often differs from his party, said "the President's heart seems to be in the right place, but the punch is just not there."

Senator McNary, the assistant Republican leader, said:

"It is a clear presentation of pending political and economic issues. It sets forth in strong language the attitude of the President."

Opposition to broadening the base for Federal Reserve Bank discount operations, as favored by the President, came again from Senator Glass (Dem.), of Virginia.

KANE ON TRIAL IN DROWNING OF WIFE

Father Arrives From Penna. To Take Place at Side; Jury of 12 Men Picked

By DOROTHY DUCAS
International News Service.

HAMPTON, Va., Dec. 8.—The trial of Prof. Elisha Kent Kane III for the murder of his wife, Jenny Graham Kane, got under way this morning before Judge C. Vernon Spratley.

Before a courtroom only half filled with accredited spectators, the result of precautions taken by the court to avoid unruly crowds, the University of Tennessee professor came to answer the charge that he drowned his wife last September. A jury was selected without difficulty.

The prosecution, supported by the dead woman's family, contends the professor held Mrs. Kane under the water at Grand View Beach until she was dead.

The defense declares the death was accidental.

Commonwealth's Attorney Roland D. Cook opened the prosecution by stating that doubts as to the jurisdiction of the state of Virginia over the case are unsubstantiated. The beach property is government owned at the spot where the tragedy occurred, but state police power extends to the territory.

Prof. Kane arrived in court accompanied by his father, Dr. Evan O'Neill Kane, of Kane, Pa., a slight, alert old man with a white beard, spectacles and a shiny pate. With him also was Dr. Thomas L. Kane, the defendant's brother.

Prof. Kane stood up with the eyes of the courtroom upon him to hear the clerk read the indictment against him. His voice boomed forth:

"Not Guilty!"

Seeking Job, Woman Spurns Marriage Bids

Mrs. O'Leary

Mrs. O'Leary is the young mother, evicted with her baby for non-payment of rent and taken in by Mrs. Martin Noah, Jr., of Munhall.

When her plight was made public offers of jobs poured in. But on investigation, these offers proved proposals, Mrs. Noah said today.

Mrs. O'Leary still wants a job.

There were lots of men willing to help Mrs. O'Leary, Mrs. Noah explained, but almost all of them were bachelors who wanted housekeepers.

Mrs. Noah made clear that Mrs. O'Leary is not interested in housekeeping for somebody else.

REVEALS POLICE RUM BRIBERY

NEW YORK, Dec. 8.—(INS.)—Police headquarters in Queens County was revealed today as the pay off station where bootleggers laid it on the line before police officials who promised protection, which afterwards they were unable to furnish.

That was the story told by phlegmatic Meyer Oxhandler, a self admitted bootlegger before the Hofstadter committee which is investigating municipal affairs in New York City. Under the suave, clever questioning of Judge Samuel Seabury, counsel to the committee, Oxhandler told in injured tones of his weekly payments to a police official he claimed was Police Inspector Thomas W. Mullarkey and of the raiding of his still despite the protection promised by Mullarkey.

Clara Still Denies Marriage to Bell

LAS VEGAS, Nev., Dec. 8.—(AP.)—Clara Bow and Rex Bell still denied they were married as they left yesterday for Bell's ranch at Searchlight, Nev., where the actress has been recuperating since she suffered a nervous breakdown last spring.

Clara wore gloves when she and Bell watched a football game here, but several persons declared the actress removed the gloves and they saw a wedding ring on her finger.

CODE HINTS RUM FEUD IN DEATH OF WOMAN

International News Service.

BOOTHBAY HARBOR, Me., Dec. 8. — The mystery woman of Hendrick's Head Light, whose body was given up by the sea, may have been the victim of a rum runners' feud.

This possibility loomed today when an Army code expert in Boston expressed the opinion that the cryptic note of numerals and letters found wrapped in a dress shield in the handbag of "Louise G. Meade, of Pittsburgh," might be a smuggler's cryptogram.

In two columns down the long sides of a sheet of paper taken from an ordinary 2-½ inch pad were written in blue ink with a pen:

3—7	135
G00011897	1775
N1194667
R316238

"A rum runner's code, but we'll need the original."

So said Col. J. C. Moore, chief signal officer of the First Corps Area, U. S. A., at Boston. A photostatic copy of the original, now in the possession of Sheriff Arthur Greenleaf, was being sent to Boston.

The theory was advanced that the lines with the letters preceding the numerals were numbers on currency and the smaller figures were dates and the number of cases and barrels.

In the handbag with the dress shield was $13.24 in cash, a two-cent piece of 1864, an antique cameo pin with a fleur-de-lis on an inverted shield, a small vanity case, a pin made from a gold coin in the shape of a cross and a small calendar blotter with the November 6, 12, 14 and 18 dates marked.

Inquiry along the bleak Southport shore disclosed that the woman, who was between 38 and 40 years old and had registered at a hotel as from Pittsburgh, made inquiry at several homes the day she vanished as to where she could best see the surf. She said she was an artist.

DUNCAN GIRLS BROKE, BLAME BAD STOCKS

Stage Stars Once Worth Million File Bankrupt Plea; Creditors Harsh

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 8.—(AP.) — Rosetta and Vivian Duncan, perhaps better known in their stage character of Topsy and Eva than in their real life roles, are broke. Three years ago they said they were worth more than $1,000,000, but today their names are on a voluntary bankruptcy petition filed in Federal Court.

BOUGHT ANYTHING

The exact status of their assets and liabilities was not listed in the petition. The sisters have 10 days to file this information. Vivian, now the wife of Nils Asther, film actor, sobbing, gave this reason for their predicament:

"Three years ago, we had more than $1,000,000, and the money was rolling in. Everyone with something to sell was plying us with propositions back stage. We signed up for almost anything they had to offer. We listened to everyone. Now we're penniless.

"We bought two gold mines, one in Arizona and one in New Mexico. We played margins in Wall street and you know what happened to actors who played margins in Wall street a couple of years ago.

PLAN COMEBACK

"And though we're not shouting about it, our two brothers died and left five children, all under 14 years of age. Naturally, we'd want to take care of them—educate them and everything.

"Then I got married and went to Europe and left Rosetta. She worked a little, but the money hasn't been rolling in for more than a year.

"And now it's all gone and all we've done today is cry like a couple of babies. But we're starting all over again and we're going to do a comeback. We'll pay all our debts if they'll just give us a chance—watch and see."

The bankruptcy action was taken, according to the actresses' attorney, because creditors "have been harassing the girls and making it difficult for them to fill theatrical engagements."

Wife Only 'Perfect' Player, Loser Says Of First Bridge Tilt

NEW YORK, Dec. 8.—(INS.)—Feeling between the Lenz and Culbertson schools of bridge prevailed with undiminished fervor today.

Ely Culbertson, exponent of the "approach-forcing" system, stoutly maintained that with "sensible" bidding, Sidney Lenz would have scored a 5,000-point advantage instead of the 1,715 points he rolled up in the first evening's play here last night. Culbertson told International News Service:

"Lenz maintained his reputation for caution, with the result that Mrs. Culbertson and myself came away much more successfully than we should have, judging to the run of the cards.

"After all, you cannot get around aces and kings, and the Lenz-Jacoby team held them in the three rubbers last night. If Lenz had bid my system instead of his own, he would now have an advantage of 5,000 points."

Culbertson paid generous tribute to his wife, Mrs. Josephine Culbertson, for her expert play in the opening rubbers. He said:

Sidney Lenz was outspokenly critical of the bidding tactics of the Culbertsons. He declared:

"In the second hand particulary, when the Culbertsons were set four diamonds, they had a lay-down bid in hearts, but Ely insisted upon keeping the bidding open in keeping with his system. I could easily have doubled his bid of five diamonds. They probably would then have gone into hearts. I preferred to sit back and see him take the penalty—just as he'll take it as long as the tournament lasts."

Woman Ace Declares Foes Erred in Bids

Following is the description by Josephine Culbertson, wife of Ely Culbertson and, with him, originator of the "approach-forcing" contract bridge system, of the first night's play in the Lenz-Culbertson tournament now under way here. Mr. and Mrs. Culbertson are opposing Sidney Lenz and Oswald Jacoby.

NEW YORK, Dec. 8.—The story of the last one of the three rubbers played last night at the first session of the Culbertson-Lenz match is typical of our uphill struggle against tremendous odds. I did not fear at the beginning or throughout the contract bridge match, which is being played by my husband, Ely Culbertson, and me, as partners, against Sidney S. Lenz and Oswald Jacoby, any superiority of system in bidding, and I have played bridge long enough to know that aces and kings and favorable distributions of cards have a way of evening up.

Last night, however, we were assailed on every hand by a steady barrage of honor-tricks. Aces and kings were singularly lacking in our hands, as a statistical study of the cards reveals, but our opponents were blessed by the goddess of luck with hands both rich in honor-tricks and distribution as well.

Hence, after two rubbers had gone to our opponents, giving them a net lead of 1,620 points, we faced the last rubber of the evening, grimly fighting against odds.

ACCEPT PENALTY

In the very first hand of this rubber my partner and I were confronted with a choice between accepting a penalty or permitting the making of a grand slam. We accepted a penalty of 1,000 points and hereby defeated a laydown small slam, worth about 1,200 points and a grand slam which, if bid, would have netted about 2,200 to our opponents.

Another hand gave us a part-score of 60, and we were enabled to complete the first game with a part-score of 90 when the bid was three spades. Then Mr. Lenz and Mr. Jacoby scored 40. They soon added 30 more points to their score, thus placing them in a position where a contract of one spade, one heart or one no trump would give them the final rubber. It was under these conditions that I picked up the following hand:

Both sides vulnerable.
North: Mr. Culbertson—
Spades, 10, 3.
Hearts, K, 7, 3, 2.
Diamonds, 5, 4, 2.
Clubs, A, 9, 4, 2.
West: Mr. Jacoby—
Spades, A, 9, 8, 7, 4, 2.
Hearts, 9, 5, 4.
Diamonds, K, Q.
Clubs, 8, 5.
East: Mr. Lenz—
Spades, 6, 5.
Hearts, J, 10.
Diamonds, A, 10, 8, 6, 3.
Clubs, Q, J, 10, 3.
South: Mrs. Culbertson—
Spades, K, Q, J.
Hearts, A, Q, 8, 6.
Diamonds, J, 9, 7.
Clubs, K, 7, 6.

COURAGE NEEDED

Mr. Jacoby, who sat West, had dealt. He passed, as did my husband and Mr. Lenz. My opening bid required courage. Our adversaries were 70 on the score and I had nothing in the way of a rebid in my hand. However, fate had been less than passing kind and I thought the hour had struck for her favors to change. I bid one heart, Mr. Jacoby overcalled with one spade, my partner bid two hearts and Mr. Lenz bid two spades.

I then disclosed not only my double stopper in spades but the even distribution of my hand by bidding two no-trump. This bid Mr. Jacoby passed and my partner bid three hearts, which, as later analysis proved, was the best bid in the hand. The contract of three hearts was made and the rubber was over. Mr. Jacoby handed us the rubber. I should have lost five tricks.

When the score was totaled up, I found that our opponents had scored 1,625 points, while our total was only 1,520—a margin for them on the rubber of 105 points, and a total margin for the evening of 1,715 points.

The bidding of our opponents was not extremely accurate. Two slams were missed in the bidding, one of them being hand No. 10, as follows:

North: Mr. Lenz—
Spades, A, 7, 4.
Hearts, A, Q, 10, 8, 5.
Diamonds, 10, 9, 8, 4.
Clubs, 3.
West: Mr. Culbertson—
Spades, J, 10, 2.
Diamonds, 7, 3.
Clubs, A, Q, J, 10, 7, 2.
East: Mrs. Culbertson—
Spades, Q, 8, 6, 5, 3.
Hearts, J, 3.
Diamonds, J, 2.
Clubs, K, 9, 6, 4.
South: Mr. Jacoby—
Spades, K, 9.
Hearts, K, 9, 7, 4.
Diamonds, A, K, Q, 6, 5.
Clubs, 8, 5.

The bidding in this hand was:

West	North	East	South
Pass	1 heart	Pass	1 diamonds
Pass	4 diamonds	Pass	4 hearts
Pass	Pass	Pass

Thus a laydown small slam, upon which a grand slam was made, was played for a contract of only four. More accurate bidding must have resulted in reaching this slam.

DEFENDS SYSTEM

I do not wish to convey the impression of complaining about our luck. On the contrary, I think we were lucky indeed. Had such masterful card players as Mr. Lenz and Mr. Jacoby been using the "approach-forcing" system of bidding, I feel quite confident that they must have reached this slam and others as well. That they failed to do it is, I am sure, a forecast of our future success. When the cards dealt to us justify the bidding of slams, I feel sure that our system is such that they will be bid.

The beginning of this battle of 1,001 hands, as my husband has named it, had a setting strange indeed for a rubber of bridge. Seated at a table were the four players, and the cards were cut for choice of seats, but not of partners, in the usual manner. Mr. Lenz drew the high card—the knave of spades—and thus had the choice of seats.

Surrounding the table were three dignified referees and two official scorers. A screen had been thrown across the center of my drawing room, and behind the screen stood anxious representatives of the press. In an adjoining room a dozen telegraph instruments were clicking, giving the details in connection with the opening of the game. I confess that I felt very nervous as I picked up my first hand. As I have stated earlier, the hands held by my partner and me were a deadly monotony of uninteresting cards, but our interest in the game was kept keenly alive by the magnitude of the struggle upon which we had embarked.

It is true that in the first session Mr. Lenz and Mr. Jacoby held most of the aces and kings, but Mr. Culbertson and I had most of the luck. That luck was ours because our adversaries failed, at least so I feel, to cash in on the values they held.

Y.M.C.A. Fought in Mexico On 'Half Nude' Parades

MEXICO CITY, Dec. 8.—(AP.)—A motion urging all priests and lay catholics to wage a campaign against the Young Men's Christian Association, the Young Women's Christian Association and other similar organizations brought to Mexico from the United States was passed by the National Guadalupe Congress here.

The congress is in session in connection with the celebration of the 400th anniversary of the supposed appearance of the Virgin of Guadalupe.

The motion accused the societies named of injecting an anti-nationalist spirit into the country and encouraging athletic parades of both sexes where the participants "appear in public half nude."

Other motions passed condemned motion picture films that are "contrary to Christian morality," as well as "immoral fashions," alcohol and divorce. The congress urged intensification of religious teaching among children.

Striking Co-Eds, Youths Suspended Over Petting

LARAMIE, Wyo., Dec. 8.—(AP.)—More than one half the students of the University of Wyoming were on strike today to enforce what they termed a "point of chivalry."

Dr. A. G. Crane, university president, immediately suspended all the strikers.

Both Dr. Crane and the student leaders who called the strike said they were actuated by chivalry.

The student spokesman said regardless of the suspension they would not return to classes until Dr. Crane had apologized publicly for "reflections which he cast upon university co-eds whom he accused of petting and drinking when he found them with male escorts in cars parked about a college dance last Friday.

Eugene Cross, editor of the Branding Iron, university publication, said:

"It is a question of chivalry. "Dr. Crane's statement cast an unwarranted reflection upon the character of the girls who were in those cars."

Dr. Crane said:

"I am convinced that a young woman's reputation and honor are such precious possessions that her actions should be above suspicion.

"The old sense of chivalry should be so keen on the part of her escort that he should be as zealous to protect her reputation as she is herself."

PRICES, WAGES CUT TO SAVE GERMANY

International News Service.

BERLIN, Dec. 8—President Von Hindenburg tonight signed a new emergency financial decree slashing retail prices 10 per cent and calling for a similar reduction in wages and salaries in all branches of industry.

Principal points in the decree, which calls for sacrifices by every citizen of the Reich, are as follows:

1—A 10 per cent reduction in retail prices to be followed by similar slashes in wages and salaries.

2—Imposition of new direct and indirect taxes.

UTMOST SACRIFICES

A high official said:

"The new order demands utmost sacrifices by everybody. It reduces our standard of living so low as to convince our foreign creditors that Germany can do no more to help herself."

In addition to retail prices rents, freight, parcel post and telephone rates will be reduced 10 per cent, the slashing of prices being enforced by a federal "price commissar" appointed in the decree.

The new taxation is imposed in the hope of wiping out the country's 1,000,000,000-mark budget deficit. The section prohibiting wearing of uniforms and carrying of arms represented a determined attempt to end the ceaseless strife between warring political factions and constitutes the first official admission that hundreds of thousands of Germany's civilians are armed.

Delay on German Debt Vital, World Bank Told

BASEL, Switzerland, Dec. 8—(INS.)—Painting a black picture of Germany's financial outlook, Dr. Carl Melchior, speaking for the Reich government today explained to the special advisory committee of the Bank for International Settlements why Germany requires an extension of the reparations moratorium.

Masses of figures brought from Berlin were submitted by Melchior to the committee as a basis for his arguments as he launched into an exhaustive exposition of Germany's entire credit structure.

other than gold. He means, of course, the adoption of a silver currency.

Germany has recently issued more than 100,000,000 silver marks.

JUDGE SEABURY, determined investigator, says speakeasies pay rich graft and proposes to prove that the five boroughs of Greater New York contribute at least $50,000,000 in bribe money every year.

However, the five boroughs contain at least 100,000 speakeasies, big and little, and a 50-million fund amounts to only $500 per speakeasy, a charge quite moderate.

It is a poorly-managed speakeasy with bath-tub gin costing 50 cents a gallon and selling at 50 cents a drink that cannot afford $10 a week for protection.

HOUSE VOTES FOR LIBERAL RULES

permit the Republicans to offer amendments to the rules program. Despite their slender majority and the dissatisfaction of extreme dry's over the rules changes the Democratic leaders held their organization intact.

DEBATE ON RULE

The discharge rule occupied most of the debate. Although both the Republican and Democratic sides agreed on that portion requiring only 145 votes to discharge a committee, they differed as to discharge of the rules committee itself and as to the private and consent calendars.

Representative Beck (Rep.), of Pennsylvania, objected to the Rules Committee feature and declared that full consideration by committees of all measures was the basis of successful parliamentary procedure. He contended the rule did not give sufficient time for debate in the House.

Explaining the majority's proposed changes in the rules, Representative Crisp (Dem.), of Georgia, said the so-called 145 discharge rule did not actually discharge a committee but merely brought the question to a vote of the House and that a committee could only be discharged by a majority vote.

Crisp assured Representative Purnell (Rep.), of Indiana, Beck and Luce (Rep.), of Massachusetts that certain suggested changes which had not been included in the rules as presented would be given consideration by the Rules Committee in the event the new rule does not work.

The Senate administered oaths of office to Mrs. Hattie Caraway, succeeding her husband as Senator from Arkansas, and to Senator Barbour, of New Jersey.

Mrs. Caraway, dressed in black, sat on the front row beside her colleague, big Senator Robinson, waiting to take the oath as Senator Pittman discoursed at length on the legal phases of Senate appointments.

She fingered quietly her spectacles which hung on a black ribbon in the lap. She was greeted quietly by other Democrats nearby.

Congo Natives Riot; Wait U. S. 'Messiah'

BRUSSELS, Belgium, Dec. 8—(AP.)—The army of occupation in the Belgian Congo has been increased by 4,500 men as a consequence of recent uprisings by natives.

Part of the trouble is attributed to the spreading of rumors that a Negro "Messiah" is going to the Congo from America to replace white men in the administration with American Negroes.

VETS PROGRAM GIVEN HOOVER

WASHINGTON, Dec. 8—(AP.)—A request for a prohibition referendum and an additional expenditure of more than $25,000,000 a year for veterans relief was laid before President Hoover today by Henry L. Stevens, national commander of the American Legion.

The requests were embodied in the legion's legislative program for the present Congress. In addition to the annual expenditure, it requested an appropriation of about $40,000,000 for the construction of hospitals holding 11,677 beds.

The legion commander said the legion would "have its hands full" of unemployment relief and other activities without carrying on an extended fight for the requested prohibition referendum.

Books By Lindy's Father Guarded In Library

ST. PAUL, Dec. 8—(AP.)—Two books written by the late Charles A. Lindbergh, Sr., again are being read at the public library.

Last spring volumes by the pilot's father, a former Minnesota congressman, had disappeared. Scarcity was believed the reason, but librarians said someone not agreeing with the author's declaration against World War participation by the United States might have carried them away.

Public appeal was made because the book was out of print. Now the donated volumes, "Why Is Your Country at War?" and "Banking, Currency and the Money Trust," must be read in the library to prevent possible disappearance.

RITCHIE BLAMES G. O. P. IN SLUMP

CHICAGO, Dec. 8.—(INS.)—Gov. Albert C. Ritchie, of Maryland, Democratic presidential aspirant, today blamed the Republican administration for present "hard times." In a luncheon address before 1,500 Democratic workers here, he said:

"The crash might not have been so bad had the government warned it was coming. They must have known it, and they might have told us to prepare, to conserve our resources, to save. Instead they told us that everything was fundamentally all right, and to go ahead and buy and invest, because prosperity was just around the corner. But the crash was just around the corner."

Gov. Ritchie tonight will address the Illinois Manufacturers' Association.

for funds to relieve distress had been "magnificent," and that he is still unalterably opposed to anything approaching the dole.

ARMY AND NAVY

For the first time since his occupancy of the White House, Mr. Hoover's annual message contained no mention of prohibition.

The President took cognizance of Democratic threats to revise the tariff by proclaiming his opposition to it and warning of the consequences of such action.

Notwithstanding deep cuts into both military and naval appropriations, the President declared "both our Army and our Navy have been maintained in a high state of efficiency."

He expressed hope for further disarmament.

Only brief reference was made to the critical Manchurian situation. He said the difficulties between China and Japan "have given us great concern." But he reserved further comment on international relations for "a later message."

MUM ON WORLD COURT

The President did not renew his recommendation for American adherence in the World Court which, in view of his former ardor, caused some surprise. The presumption was, however, that he will deal with this matter in the later message on foreign affairs. This message also likely will request ratification of the war debt moratorium, which was excluded from today's communication.

Mr. Hoover declared for sharp reduction in government expenditures, and to that end asserted he was not in favor of any more expenditures for veterans' relief "until the country has recovered from the present situation."

HOOVER, LEWIS DISCUSS COAL

WASHINGTON, Dec. 8—(AP.)—President Hoover was told by a mine leader today that conditions in the bituminous coal industry were "bad" and were getting "worse instead of better."

John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers of America, was accompanied to the White House by Secretary Doak. He said he had come to pay his respects, but had stayed to talk over conditions in the industry.

Lewis asserted that competition was "so fierce" in the bituminous field that operators were unable to make fair profits and that this was reflecting in low wages and unemployment.

Neely Not Escorted By W. Va. Colleague

WASHINGTON, Dec. 8—(AP.)—Senate custom was broken when West Virginia's new Senator, M. M. Neely, was not escorted by his colleague when he walked up the Senate aisle to take his oath of office. Instead Senator Pittman, of Nevada, another Democrat, walked with him.

Neely's colleague, Senator Hatfield, when asked about the incident, said he had never met Neely and was attempting to pick him out in the chamber.

President Says Taxes Must Be Raised; Asks Change In Anti-Trust Statutes

emerged from each of them with increased strength and virility because of the enlightenment they have brought, the readjustments and the larger understanding of the realities and obligations of life and work which come from them.

National Defense

Both our Army and Navy have been maintained in a high state of efficiency. The ability and devotion of both officers and men sustain the highest traditions of the service. Reductions and postponements in expenditure of these departments to meet the present emergency are being made without reducing existing personnel or impairing the morale of either establishment.

The agreement between the leading naval powers for limitation of naval armaments and establishment of their relative strength and thus elimination of competitive building also implies for ourselves the gradual expansion of the deficient catagories in our Navy to the parities provided in those treaties. However none of the other nations parties to these agreements is today maintaining the full rate of construction which the treaty size of fleets would imply.

Although these agreements secured the maximum reduction of fleets which it was at that time possible to attain, I am hopeful that the naval powers party to these agreements will realize that establishment of relative strength in itself offers opportunity for further reduction without injury to any of them. This would be the more possible if pending negotiations are successful between France and Italy. If the world is to regain its standards of life it must further decrease both naval and other arms. The subject will come before the general disarmament conference which meets in Geneva on February 2 next.

Foreign Affairs

We are at peace with the world. We have co-operated with other nations to preserve peace. The rights of our citizens abroad have been protected.

The economic depression has continued and deepened in every part of the world during the past year. In many countries political instability, excessive armaments, debts, governmental expenditures, and taxes have resulted in revolutions, in unbalanced budgets and monetary collapse and financial panics, in dumping of goods upon world markets and in diminished consumption of commodities.

As our difficulties during the past year have plainly originated in large degree from these sources, any effort to bring about our own recuperation has dictated the necessity of co-operation by us with other nations in reasonable effort to restore world confidence and economic stability.

Co-operation of our Federal reserve system and our banks with the central banks in foreign countries has contributed to localize and ameliorate a number of serious financial crises and thus avert disasters which would have affected us or moderate the pressures upon us.

Domestic Affairs

Many undertakings have been organized and forwarded during the past year to meet the new and changing emergencies which have constantly confronted us.

In these measures we have striven to mobilize and stimulate private initiative and local and community responsibility. There has been the least possible government entry into the economic field, and that only in temporary and emergency form.

The emergencies of unemployment have been met by action in many directions. The appropriations for the continued speeding up of the great federal construction program have provided direct and indirect aid to employment upon a large scale. By organized unity of action, the states and municipalities have also maintained large programs of public improvement. Many industries have been prevailed upon to anticipate and intensify construction. A large majority have maintained wages at as high levels as the safe conduct of their business would permit.

Through the President's organization for unemployment relief, public and private agencies were successfully mobilized last winter to provide employment and other measures against distress. Similar organization gives assurance against suffering during the coming winter. Committees of leading citizens are now active at practically every point of unemployment.

REGULAR AGRICULTURAL AID

To meet the emergencies in agriculture the loans authorized by Congress for rehabilitation in the drought areas have enabled farmers to produce abundant crops in those districts. The Red Cross undertook and magnificently administered relief for over 2,500,000 drought sufferers last winter. It has undertaken this year to administer relief to 100,000 sufferers in the new drought area of certain Northwestern states. The action of the Federal Farm Board in granting credits to farm co-operatives saved many of them from bankruptcy and increased their purpose and strength.

To meet our domestic emergencies in credit and banking arising from the reaction to acute crises abroad, the National Credit Association was set up by the banks with its resources of $500,000,000 to support sound banks against the frightened withdrawals and hoarding.

Our first step toward recovery is to re-establish confidence and thus restore the flow of credit which is the very basis of our economic life. We must put some steel beams in the foundations of our credit structure. It is our duty to apply the full strength of our government not only to the immediate phases but to provide security against shocks and the repetition of the weaknesses which have been proven.

The recommendations which I lay before the Congress are designed to meet these needs by strengthening financial industrial and agricultural life through the medium of our existing institutions, and thus to avoid the entry of the government into competition with private business.

U. S. Finance

The first requirement of confidence and of economic recovery is financial stability of the United States government.

Despite large economies in other directions we have an indicated deficit including the statutory retirement of the debt of $2,123,000,000 and an indicated net debt increase of about $1,711,000,000.

Several conclusions are inevitable. We must have insistent and determined reduction in government expenses. We must face a temporary increase in taxes. Such increase should not cover the whole of these deficits or it will retard recovery. We must partially finance the deficit by borrowing. It is my view that the amount of taxation should be fixed so as to balance the budget for 1933 except for the statutory debt retirement. Such government receipts would assure the balance of the following year's budget including debt retirement. It is my further view that the additional taxation should be imposed solely as an emergency measure terminating definitely two years from July 1 to next. Such a basis will give confidence in the determination of the government to stabilize its finance and will assure taxpayers of its temporary character.

FEDERAL LAND BANKS

I recommend that the Congress authorize the subscription by the Treasury of further capital to the Federal Land banks to be retired as provided in the original act or when funds are available, and that repayments of such capital be treated as a fund available for further subscriptions in the same manner. It is urgent that the banks be supported so as to stabilize the market values of their bonds and thus secure capital for the farmers at low rates that they may continue their services to agriculture and that they may meet the present situation with consideration to the farmers.

HOME LOAN BANKS

I recommend the establishment of a system of home-loan discount banks as the necessary companion in our financial structure of the Federal Reserve banks and our Federal Land banks. Such action will relieve present distressing pressures against home and farm property owners. It will relieve pressures upon and give added strength to building and loan associations, savings banks and deposit banks engaged in extending such credits. Such action would further decentralize our credit structure. It would revive residential construction and employment. It would enable such loaning institutions more effectually to promote home ownership.

Credit Corporation

In order that the public may be absolutely assured and that the government may be in position to meet any public necessity, I recommend that an emergency reconstruction corporation of the nature of the former War Finance Corporation should be established. It may not be necessary to use such an instrumentality very extensively. The very existence of such a bulwark will strengthen confidence. The Treasury should be authorized to subscribe a reasonable capital to it, and it should be given authority to issue its own debentures. It should be placed in liquidation at the end of two years. Its purpose is that by strengthening the weak spots to thus liberate the full strength of the nation's resources. It should be in position to facilitate exports by American agencies, make advances to agricultural credit agencies where necessary to protect and aid the agricultural industry; to make temporary advances upon proper securities to established industries, railways and financial institutions which cannot otherwise secure credit, and where such advances will protect the credit structure and stimulate employment. Its functions would not overlap those of the National Credit Corporation.

FEDERAL RESERVE

On October 6 I issued a statement that I should recommend to the Congress an extension during emergencies of the eligibility provisions in the federal reserve act. This statement was approved by a representative gathering of the members of both Houses of the Congress, including members of the appropriate committees. It was approved by the officials of the Treasury Department, and I understand such an extension has been approved by a majority of the governors of the Federal Reserve banks. Nothing should be done which would lower the safeguards of the system.

The railways present one of our immediate and pressing problems. They are and must remain the backbone of our transportation system. Their prosperity is interrelated with the prosperity of all industries. Their fundamental service in transportation, the volume of their employment, their buying power for supplies from other industries, the enormous investment in their securities, particularly their bonds by insurance companies, savings banks, benevolent and other trusts, all reflect their partnership in the whole economic fabric. Through these institutions the railway bonds are in a large sense the investment of every family.

The well-maintained and successful operation and the stability of railway finances are of primary importance to economic recovery. They should have more effective opportunity to reduce operating costs by proper consolidation. As their rates must be regulated in public interest, so also approximate regulation should be applied to competing services by some authority. The methods of their regulation should be revised. The Interstate Commerce Commission has made important and far-reaching recommendations upon the whole subject which I commend to the early consideration of the Congress.

In my message of a year ago I commented on the necessity of congressional inquiry into the economic action of the anti-trust laws. There is wide conviction that some change should be made, especially in the procedure under these laws. I do not favor their repeal. Such action would open wide the door to price fixing, monopoly and destruction of healthy competition. Particular attention should be given to the industries founded upon natural resources, especially where destructive competition produces great wastes of these resources and brings great hardships upon operators, employs and the public. In recent years there has been continued demoralization in the bituminous coal, oil and lumber industries. I again commend the matter to the consideration of the Congress.

Wages and standards of living abroad have been materially lowered during the past year. The temporary abandonment of the gold standard by certain countries has also reduced their production costs compared to ours. Fortunately any increases in the tariff which may be necessary to protect agriculture and industry from these lowered foreign costs, or decrease in items which may prove to be excessive, may be undertaken at any time by the Tariff Commission under authority which it possesses by virture of the tariff act of 1930.

The commission during the past year has reviewed the rates upon over 254 items subject to tariff.

As a result of vigorous and industrious action, it is up to date in the consideration of pending references and is prepared to give prompt attention to any further applications. This procedure presents an orderly method for correcting inequalities. I am opposed to any general congressional revision of the tariff. Such action would disturb industry, business and agriculture. It would prolong the depression.

Conclusion

Many vital changes and movements of vast proportions are taking place in the economic world. The effect of these changes upon the future can not be seen clearly as yet. Of this, however, we are sure: Our system, based upon the ideals of individual initiative and of equality of opportunity, I not an artificial thing. Rather it is the outgrowth of the experience of America, and expresses the faith and spirit of our people. It has carried us in a century and a half to leadership of the economic world. If our economic system does not match our highest expectations at all times, it does not require revolutionary action to bring it into accord with any necessity that experience may prove. It has successfully adjusted itself to changing conditions in the past. It will do so again.

The mobility of our institutions, the richness of our resources, and the abilities of our people enable us to meet them unafraid. It is a distressful time for many of our people, but they have shown qualities as high in fortitude, courage, resourcefulness as ever in our history. With that spirit, I have faith that out of it will come a sounder life, a truer standard of values, a greater recognition of the results of honest effort, and a healthier atmosphere in which to rear our children. Ours must be a country of such stability and security as can not fail to carry forward and enlarge among all the people that abundant life of material and spiritual opportunity which it has represented among all nations since its beginning.

Hoover Message Highlights

WASHINGTON, Dec. 8.—(AP)—High spots in President Hoover's message:

A strong America is the highest contribution to world stability.

We must put some steel beams in the foundations of our credit structure.

The first requirement of confidence and of economic recovery is financial stability of the United States government.

We must have insistent and determined reduction in government expenses.

We must face a temporary increase in taxes.

I am opposed to any direct or indirect government dole.

The emergencies of unemployment have been met by action in many directions.

I am opposed to any general congressional revision of the tariff.

The country is richer in physical property, in newly discovered resources and in productive capacity than ever before.

We are at peace with the world. We have co-operated with other nations to preserve peace. The rights of our citizens abroad have been protected.

We do not require more money or working capital—we need to put what we have to work.

If the world is to regain its standards of life, it must further decrease both naval and other arms.

Our system, based on ideals of individual initiative and of equal opportunity, is not an artificial thing. It has successfully adjusted itself to changing conditions in the past. It will do so again.

Business depressions are but transitory. The nation has emerged from each of them with increased strength and virility.

JINGLES TELL OF CHARITY BY SMALL BOY

Many Last Line Writers Use Word 'Needy'; Here's Another Chance to Try

The big heart that little Jimmy displayed when he wrote to Santa Claus for gifts in Christmas Jingle No. 20 brought a variety of last lines from Sun-Telegraph readers, 90 per cent of which ended with the word "needy." But, according to the judges, Mary E. Conner, of Webster Hall Hotel, Pittsburgh, got an exclusive slant and won the Sun-Telegraph check for $5. She completed the jingle in this way:

Little Jimmy was not a bit greedy
And he always was snappy and speedy
When to Santa he wrote
Half the gifts in his note
Were for kiddies ragged and needy

The five $1 prize winners were: Evelyn Jackson, 1515 Third avenue, New Brighton; Ethel Tilley, 575 Orchard avenue, Bellevue; Sara Tepostic, Negley and Ross streets, Wall; Mrs. Edwin O. Johns, Forest Apartments, Mt. Lebanon; and Katherine McCollister, 154 Buffalo street, Cadiz, O.

Try your hand on No. 27, appearing on this page today. The "last line" judged the best will win $5 and the next five $1 each.

Hill Chef Freed In Murder Charge

Frank Brandon, Negro, 43, of Wylie avenue, well known chef, today was acquitted of murder following the death March 18, of Julius Moore, Negro, 38. Moore was killed during an argument. Brandon claimed self-defense and said Moore had attacked him with a knife. Visiting Judge O. C. Kent directed a verdict of not guilty.

CAPONE TRIAL PLOT BARED

CHICAGO, Dec. 8.—(AP.)—An alleged attempt to tamper with justice in the recent income tax trial of Alphonse Capone was revealed last night by Dwight H. Greene, assistant United States District Attorney, who said the plan was frustrated by Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson.

Addressing the Air Corps Officers' Association, Greene said that the prosecutors had learned that Capone agents had obtained the names and addresses of 100 veniremen called for Judge Wilkerson's court and had already approached 10 of them, he said.

"At the last moment Judge Wilkerson sent his whole venire to Judge Barnes and Judge Barnes sent his to Judge Wilkerson. Thus we got a venire that the Capone agents knew nothing about."

The prosecutor added that the pistol brought into court by Capone's friend, Philip D'Andrea, was carried for a definite and serious purpose, he said.

"It was a dire threat for a certain witness to make sure his memory would be defective on the stand."

Capone was convicted and sentenced to 11 years. D'Andrea was sentenced to jail for six months for carrying the weapon.

LEGION FIGHTS R.O.T.C. FOE

DETROIT, Dec. 8.—(AP.)—Criticism of student military training voiced by a college professor who also is a war veteran resulted last night in a recommendation that the American Legion Post he commands be shorn of its charter.

The Wayne County Legion council, repudiating the views of Dr. Walter Bergman, member of the City College of Detroit faculty, asked the state council to revoke the charter of Thomas Jefferson Post, of which Dr. Bergman is commander.

More trouble was in store today for the professor, who opposed establishment of an R. O. T. C. unit at City College. Dr. Burt R. Shurly, a member of the board of education, announced he would demand at a board meeting this afternoon that Dr. Bergman be discharged for seditious utterances.

3 MEN SEIZED AS BANDITS

PHILIPSBURG, Pa., Dec. 8.—(AP.)—Several hours after the holdup of the president and secretary of the Philipsburg Building and Loan Association and escape with $200 cash, three alleged gunmen were arrested by state police several miles west of here.

The men gave their names as J. W. Woomer, 32, Oil City; T. M. Anderson, 33, Franklin, and W. G. Williams, Franklin. Police said they were the trio who entered the quarters of the association several hours before its annual meeting was to have been held.

Training pistols on G. Frank Dunkle, the president, and Katherine Hall, secretary, they made the officials lie on the floor and bound and gagged them. The bandits then took the cash from a drawer.

As soon as the robbers had fled by automobile, state police were notified. The officers said they found a small arsenal of pistols, revolvers, blackjacks and other weapons in the car.

Steel Merger Fee Settlement Near

CLEVELAND, O., Dec. 8.—(AP.)—Hearings to determine which side of the contest over merger of the Bethlehem Steel Corporation and the Youngstown Sheet and Tube Company will pay attorneys' fees and court costs is expected to be concluded the latter part of this week or the first of next. John T. Scott, of Cleveland, the referee, has announced.

After a short session yesterday when representatives of five law firms testified on the number of hours they gave to the merger battle, the hearing was postponed until today.

In his talk, "Electrons at Work and Play," Dr. Thomas will explain some of the most recent discoveries of research laboratories.

MUSCULAR-RHEUMATIC PAINS
DRAW them out with a "counter-irritant." Muscular lumbago, soreness and stiffness—generally respond to good old Musterole. Doctors call it a "counter-irritant" because its warming action penetrates and stimulates blood circulation and helps to draw out infection and pain. It gets action and is not just a salve. But do not stop with one application. Apply this soothing, cooling, healing ointment generously to the affected area once every hour for five hours. Used by millions for over 20 years. Recommended by many doctors and nurses. All druggists.
To Mothers—Musterole is also made in milder form for babies and small children. Ask for Children's Musterole.

'FIXING' DENIED, WOMAN HELD

At a hearing in Central Police Court today in which Magistrate Leo Rothenberg made dramatic denial of reports that he had been paid $5,000 to fix the case of Grayce McCulley, 38, of Wheeling, Miss McCulley was held for the grand jury on charges of conspiracy and receiving stolen goods.

Detectives testified that she had been arrested in the roundup of a burglar band headed by Rocco Considine of Marchand street at present awaiting grand jury action on 50 burglary charges. She had been freed on $10,000 bail pending Rothenberg's decision.

During the hearing Rothenberg interrupted to deny that he or any police officer had anything to do with any plan to "fix" the case. He said:

"It has been called to my attention that I was to be 'fixed,' and that this case was to be discharged. I want it understood here in open court that there is to be no fixing in my court."

Wife Says She Found Cook in Man's Room

The climax of marital discord came when she found the cook in her husband's room, Mrs. Edith Stanley Potter, 43, a nurse, of 7237 Penn avenue, testified today in her divorce suit against Dr. Joseph L. Potter, of Middleburg, Snyder County. They were married at Greensburg January 4, 1922, and separated last April, she said. The suit was not contested.

KONDON'S —QUICK RELIEF FOR NOSE, HEAD AND THROAT

All In A Day

By Mark Hellinger

FOR THE last week or so, I've been listening to the radio again. I will admit that I've been rather lax in that direction for the last year or two. I listened only upon occasions, and the occasions were rather rare. So, when I rediscovered the power of the instrument, I received something of a thrill.

The announcements have grown to be things of beauty. No longer do the boys tell us to buy certain articles, and let it go at that. No, indeed. Each broadcaster must now be a Barrymore; each announcement must be phrased by a master of words.

So convincing, in fact, is the announcer of today that amazing things must be happening in many households throughout the country. Since we have nothing better to do at the moment, let's pick a typical home anywhere in the U. S. A. The family—ma, pa, Jack, a boy of 20; Dorothy, a girl of 18; Joe, a boy of 12—are just preparing to enjoy their evening meal.

In a corner of the room is a radio. Samuel, aged 5, is fumbling with the dials.

VOICE—If you haven't tried Aunt Fanny's Pancake Flour, you have missed one of life's greatest joys. It nourishes the young and brings the bloom of youth to the cheeks of the aged. Try Aunt Fanny's Flour now. It will add 20 years to your life.

PA—What've we got for dinner, ma?

MA—Pork chops.

PA—Pork chops? Are you crazy? Didn't you hear what the man just said? Throw the chops away and make some pancakes immediately.

MA—But pa—

PA—Do as I say, Ma. This is no time for arguing.

His wife goes into the kitchen. The baby continues to fool with the dials.

VOICE—Why not turn your little family into the happiest of homesteads? Is your wife irritable? Does she complain? Make her eat a cake of Henderson's yeast at once. In 10 minutes she will be another woman.

PA—Ma, come in here a minute with a cake of Henderson's yeast.

MA—But I'm just making pancakes.

PA—There you are, ma. In 10 minutes you'll be another woman.

MA—I don't want to be another woman. I don't feel right. Oooooh! I'm going to be sick. Get the doctor.

PA—Joe, didn't you hear what your ma said? She's sick. Run down and get the doctor.

Joe runs downstairs and returns immediately with the doctor.

DOCTOR—What seems to be the trouble?

MA—I got a terrible headache.

DOCTOR—I understand. Here, take one of these every two hours.

VOICE—Are you one of those foolish humans who still takes a chance on an old-fashioned doctor? Are you putting your life in the hands of someone who might not understand? A Jacobson Tummy Pill works more quickly than the doctor and gives better results.

PA—Doctor, why didn't you give my wife a Jacobson Tummy Pill? You've been our family doctor for 20 years, but I'm taking no more chances. Get out of here.

The doctor exits. Samuel still turns the dials.

VOICE—Are you listenin', huh? If you are, you're crazy. But while you're there, why not light a Cramel? It's soft and mellow—and the first puff carries you to a joyous land of dreams.

PA—Never mind the Besterfield, son. Run down and get me a pack of Cramels right away and, for heaven's sake, hurry.

VOICE—Happy Strikes are good for the figure. They keep you slender and in good health. We have indorsements here from Aimee McPherson, Fannie Ward and the Cherry Sisters. You must light a Happy.

PA—What's that? How dare you disobey your father. Didn't you hear what the man said? How dare—

VOICE—Certified Beanos are the world's finest smoke. Twenty leaves of tobacco—no more, no less. Best in quality, best in price. Each day somebody wins a Liddie car. That's why you should smoke Certified Beanos.

VOICE—Are you still listenin'? If you are, you're still crazy. Prince Isadore Smoking Tobacco is the friendliest of friends. There are two ounces of friendly tobacco in every friendly red tin. Don't forget friends, it's like that friendly old poem—"Your mother is your best friend after all." Good night, friends.

PA—You hear that, ma? That's beautiful. Thank goodness you and I are still together after all these years—and we have $4,000 saved for a rainy day.

MA—That's right, pa.

VOICE—Consult the Kraus Investment House on your bonds. An old lady of 90 wrote to us from Carl Scheublein's farm in Montgomery, N. Y. The poor old soul had $3,000, but she was only getting $7.31 a month on her money. We told her what to do and she now has a handsome little nestegg of $7.41 each and every month.

JACK—The bank's closed, pa. You'll have to wait until morning.

PA—That's the kind of breaks I always get. As soon as I have a chance to make some dough, I—

VOICE—You are listening to the voice of Ledner's Funeral Parlor. During the week to come, we are offering the very attractive proposition of two funeral cars and a hearse for only $98. Where could you get a better bargain?

JACK—Hey, pa, why are you looking at me so funny?

PA—Didn't you hear what the man said? Only $98 for a fine funeral. Why, it's the chance of a lifetime. Come here to me and—

VOICE—If you are not using a Bim radio, you're not getting the most for your money. The Bim gets you more stations, more distance and more trouble. If you want honest pleasure from your radio investment, you must switch to a Bim tomorrow.

Woman Steals Yule 'Gifts,' Fined $10

Mrs. Eva Yanrynorska, 46, of Steuben street, was fined $10 in Central Police Court today when she testified that she took several articles from counters in downtown stores "so that she could give her relations something for Christmas," when she goes to Europe next week.

BREAKS RECORD, GETS 10 DAYS

A phonograph record today sent Charles Delrosa, 27, to jail for 10 days.

He was arraigned in North Side Police Court this morning.

The evidence against him was a broken record and a badly cut lip. The lip belonged to Mrs. Goldie Blythe, 26, the record to her husband, Charles, 24, of 706 Cedar avenue.

Delrosa, a lodger in the Blythe home, told Magistrate Ray Schneider that he and Blythe had been playing the phonograph late last night and were ordered to stop by Mrs. Blythe. Enraged, he said, he went to throw a record on the floor, but it slipped and struck the woman in the mouth.

Delrosa took the 10 days.

Boroughs Urge Deal For Wabash Bridge

Lebanon Chambers of Commerce. After being read by Commissioner E. V. Babcock, sitting with County Controller R. G. Woodside in the absence of Commissioner C. C. McGovern in Bermuda, the communications were filed for future consideration.

Burned Child, 3, Still in Danger

Dorothy Urbano, 3, daughter of Patrolman Frank Urbano, Stowe Township policeman, was still in a critical condition in Ohio Valley Hospital, McKees Rocks, today, suffering from burns received when her dress caught fire at her home early yesterday, according to a hospital report.

Homestead Woman Cuts Hand in Fall

Mrs. Alice Bremmer, 50, of 205 Lehigh street, Homestead, was recovering at her home today from a laceration of the hand received when she fell on a milk bottle which she was carrying at her home late yesterday, according to a hospital report. She was treated at Homestead Hospital.

3 out of 4 gargle uselessly while sore throats get worse and colds hang on

Don't waste dollars on antiseptics that can't kill germs unless used full strength. Pepsodent Antiseptic kills germs in 10 seconds, even when diluted with two parts of water. It goes 3 times as far as other antiseptics. Thus $1 worth does the work of $3 spent for ordinary kinds.

GARGLE, gargle—go the nation's garglers. 3 out of 4 have the wrong idea. Using antiseptics that can't kill germs when mixed with water. Why shouldn't colds get worse? Why shouldn't throats stay sore? Stop gargling long enough to get some Pepsodent Antiseptic. You can dilute it several times—like most people do—and it still kills germs—positively.

A new discovery, safe yet powerful

Now there's a revolutionary antiseptic on the market—Pepsodent Antiseptic. Its formula is a radical advance. It climaxes the best antiseptic study of 50 years. A germ-killing agent is employed unlike those now in use. It makes Pepsodent Antiseptic 3 to 11 times more powerful in killing germs than other leading mouth antiseptics, depending on which one you use.

Kills germs in 10 seconds diluted with 2 parts of water

That is the startling news in this new discovery. Think! You can mix Pepsodent Antiseptic with 1 or even 2 parts of water, to suit your taste, and it still kills germs in less than 10 seconds. That's where most other leading mouth antiseptics fail. Yet in spite of all that power, Pepsodent Antiseptic is utterly safe when used full strength. What a weapon this new antiseptic is in your fight against colds!

New security against bad breath (Halitosis)

And please remember when you use Pepsodent Antiseptic for colds you are doing double duty by also fighting bad breath. For Pepsodent Antiseptic checks bad breath 1 to 2 hours longer! That's Pepsodent Antiseptic's record in fighting this widespread social offense due to unhygienic mouth conditions. Immediately after use—95% of germs on mouth surfaces are destroyed. Two hours later the number of germs is still reduced by 80%. That is far longer acting than other leading mouth antiseptics.

To kill germs—most mouth antiseptics must be used full strength. So to mix such antiseptics with water is a waste of money. Contrariwise, Pepsodent Antiseptic can be mixed with twice its own volume of water. Thus Pepsodent Antiseptic goes 3 times as far—saves you $2 for every $1 you spend. Pepsodent Antiseptic comes in 3 sizes: 3 ounces for 25 cents—7 ounces for 50 cents—16 ounces for $1. The larger the size, the more for your money.

Combating colds and checking bad breath are only two uses for this remarkable antiseptic. There are scores of other uses. Some are listed on this page. Learn to rely on Pepsodent Antiseptic whenever a safe, effective germ-killing agent is required. Keep it in the home. Take it with you when you travel.

Again we say: Quit being good to germs. They've laughed at you long enough. Play safe. Buy an antiseptic that really kills germs when diluted. Remember: You can fool yourself but you can't fool a cold.

BAD BREATH (Halitosis)

Pepsodent Antiseptic does double duty when combating colds and throat irritations. For at the same time it checks bad breath. Remember P. A. is 3 to 11 times more powerful in killing germs than other leading mouth antiseptics . . . and it kills germs when diluted.

SQUIRE FACING 'FIX' CHARGES

Justice of the Peace John G. Metz and Constables Jacob Esau and William Berg, of Kennedy Township, will be given hearings tonight before Justice of the Peace Margaret Morgan, of Sewickley, charged with conspiracy, extortion and malfeasance in office. The charges were preferred yesterday by Chief County Detective George W. Murren.

The three defendants spent the weekend in jail and yesterday were questioned by county detectives. Metz was arrested in his office Saturday night after it is alleged he accepted marked money to "fix" a liquor charge against a resident of Stowe Township. The money had been given to the defendant to pass to the squire by District Attorney Andrew T. Park.

CHURCH PLACED IN RECEIVERSHIP

Judge Samuel H. Gardner, of Common Pleas Court, has appointed Robert B. Gerdts receiver for the First Slavish Roman Catholic Greek Church of Clairton.

The court also has enjoined Steve Povando, president-trustee, Vasil Varhola, treasurer-trustee, and George Holdyak, secretary-trustee from interfering with the management and control of the church property.

Receiver Gerdts is authorized to take charge of all of the assets of the church, collect moneys and make all lawful disbursements. Bond was fixed at $3,000. The appointment of the receiver was the outgrowth of factional differences.

Roaming Romeos Delight in Satisfying Egotism

And it keeps Lois guessing just where and when he'll land. For six long years, ever since she was 14, that guessing has been going on. She calls it love. Would you?

"Dear Sally:

"I wonder if you can help me? I met a boy when I was 14 and fell head over heels in love with him. Ever since then I haven't been able to put him out of my mind. Now we are both 20.

"The tragic part of it is that he doesn't seem to feel the same way about me at all. Yet he insists on keeping me in love with him.

"He will leave me alone for a long time, and I always intend to refuse to see him when he calls up, but he keeps at it until I say yes. I'll go out with him. While he has me out, he will tell me that he is crazy about me 'as he always has been'—and even says he wants to marry me 'when he has a good job.' Then I usually tell him I feel the same way, and we go steady for a month or so.

"Then he goes again, without a word, and I won't hear from him for months. Once it was a whole year.

"Why do you suppose he keeps acting like this? Everytime he leaves that way, I nearly go crazy till I get used to the idea. Then just as I think he's gone for good, back he comes.

"I see him and tell him I don't want anything more than friendship. Then he asks if there's someone else, and as there isn't, I say I don't know. Then he pesters me till I decide to try it again. And then the same thing happens.

GONE AGAIN

"I don't know what to do. He has just gone again, but I expect him back some day. I know there will never be anyone else that I love this way, so I don't know what to do.

"What shall I do the next time he comes—if he does? He is inconsistent and ornery, so I can't compare him with normal boys. All his life he has had enemies because he is not dependable. But aren't we all bad in one way or another?

Six years of this has me walking around in circles. Sometimes I think if the notion strikes him he will 'pop the question.' Other boys bore me to tears, so I don't go out with them much. I have met some I did get kind of crazy about, but it was never quite the same.

"LOIS."

DOESN'T LOVE HIM

What'll you do, Sissy? Snap out of that circle you're in. Get out and do some honest-to-goodness living. Quit sitting around waiting for this hombre to choose to notice you. It is perfectly plain that he doesn't love you—or anyone, except himself.

"Then why does he come back?" you cry.

I'll tell you why! He comes back because it flatters his conceit to get you all steamed up. It makes him feel that he's a Big Slick Shiek who can wind you around his finger! And as soon as his egotism is satisfied by your sheeplike yielding, he's off again new fields to conquer.

What should you do if he ever 'popped the question?' You should run! Because if he ever did condescend to marry you, he'd walk out on you again, as soon as things began to get a little humdrum.

"But I love him!" you wail. Wrong answer, honey. You're not in love. You only think you are. But you'd better stop selling yourself the idea, and realize that he's nothing but an exciting habit, unless you want to pick yourself off plenty of misery.

So throw him out of your life—permanently. Then go out and find the real, honest-to-goodness love that is just around the corner, if you'll look for it!

Fay King Warns Givers to Mail Christmas Packages Properly and Early

SEAL AND SENDERS ADDRESS ON BACK OF ENVELOPE
WE NEED THE SEALS AND THEY NEED THE MONEY!
CHRISTMAS GREETINGS 1931
25TH ANNUAL SEAL
CARRY SMALL PARCELS HOME
WRAP IN STRONG PAPER, TIE SECURELY, AND ADDRESS PLAINLY SPELLING OUT CITY AND STATE
FAY KING

By FAY KING

The postoffices are just as eager as you are to have your Christmas cards and packages reach their destinations safely and promptly.

But you must do your part as efficiently as they do theirs.

Write addresses plainly and correctly. Spell cities and states in full. Abbreviations are too similar and confusing in the rush of holiday mail.

Even mis-spelling in full is safer. (I can't spell a lot of the states correctly.)

Put your own address smaller in the upper corner, so mail can be returned if not delivered.

Wrap securely in strong paper and string—and MAIL EARLY.

Do your part carefully and the postoffice will do its part cheerfully and everyone will be happier during the rush of holiday mail.

Continuation of Love's Reawakening

By ADELE GARRISON

Dicky's Appeal Brings Happy Moment to Wife

My husband's voice held the note of appeal which I never can resist, no matter what cause for anger I have against him. Lillian often has said that the old proverb anent the voice capable of coaxing the birds from the bushes must have been inspired by a direct ancestor of Dicky's.

"What is there to forgive?" I asked fatuously, forgetting, in the clasp of his arms, as a woman in love always does, that he had wounded me. "It was just a misunderstanding. But—are you sure, Dicky, that you are willing——"

His lips came down upon mine, smothering my protest.

"Please, sweetheart, don't rub salt in the welts you gave me," he said. "I've been kicking myself all over the lot for letting my beastly jealous temper run away with me and spoil what ought to be one of the most thrilling moments of your life. It isn't every day that an absolutely untried playwright gets what is virtually an order from Veritzen for a play. And take it from me, darling, much as I dislike the old buzzard, I know this of him, that he never lets personal interest interfere with his judgment of a play. You don't mind me saying that, do you?"

His words were stumbling, his eyes anxious, and I spoke quickly.

"No, I don't mind, and—I think you know that if I hadn't been sure of that, I never should have written a line for him."

"Of course I know it, and I know something else, that never again am I going to act the fool as I did this evening. Honestly, sweetheart, I am terribly proud of you, my brilliant wife, mighty set up over your success. It's just that I can't like a hair on that old devil's head."

"Shall I tell you a secret?" I said laughing, for I could afford merriment now. "Neither can I."

His arms tightened around me.

"That makes it unanimous," he said, then, as the pages of my manuscript rustled, he loosened his clasp abruptly.

"Are they rumpled?" he asked anxiously.

"Nothing that can't be remedied." I said with a smile, although the carefully typed pages were what Mary would call a mess, and I had a vision of Philip Veritzen's fastidious face when he should see them, he whose insistence upon perfect typing and immaculate paper is a proverb in his organization.

But Dicky shook his head in dismay as he took the manuscript in his hands.

"This will never do!" he said. "Let's see, how many words, how many pages in these, have you counted 'em, but of course you have, being the particular soul you are."

He smiled down at my flush as I gave him the numbers for which he had asked, and looking off into space, with the fingers of one hand tapping the other, made a mental calculation.

"Yes, I know a man who can do it if he works all night, and I fancy he'll be glad to, as he always needs extra money. Just let me have this, and I'll have it copied beautifully for you in the morning. Now, no objections," as I opened my lips in protest. "I suppose you're refreshing your memory on this, and you can go on with that pleasant task, while I'm telephoning the man and waiting for him to come after it. You have a carbon anyway, haven't you, and I'd wager a hundred to one that with that uncanny memory of yours, you could recite the thing backwards. How about your typewriter? Is it in good shape? This chap's may not have the bi-colored ribbon."

"Oh! I have an extra ribbon he can have," I said hastily, "but I shall need the typewriter. He can't have that."

I saw my blunder the instant I had uttered the words, but I could not recall them. Dicky grasped my shoulder and whirled me to face him.

"Look here!" he said with rough tenderness, "are you planning to do any work tonight? Because if you are, nothing doing! I'm perfectly willing for you to qualify as the world's greatest playwright, but I'm not willing to lose my one and only wife in the process. You're in no condition to do anything save lounge around and take it easy."

"But I've been doing that all day," I expostulated. "I've been asleep ever since I returned from Ticer's this morning. And I'm feeling very fit, really I am. Besides I'm not going to use the typewriter."

"Who is then?"

"Who but Lilting, Laughing Little Lil, the pride of the Graham farm?" Lillian's voice sounded behind us, and Dicky turned to her with the half-pleased, half-exasperated grin which usually accompanies his greeting of her.

"Sorry to eavesdrop," Lillian said with no contrition in her voice, "but I've only just come up. However, I was in time to hear your fierce but eminently reasonable ultimatum. Having heard it, I'm considering it, and shall file it for reference and act upon it with haste, also discretion. Does that satisfy you?"

The Beauty Box

By HELEN FOLLETT

New hats aren't so good with hair done in a bun at the nape of the neck. Best to clip and curl, or roll up on a hidden barrette designed for the purpose.

If the hair is to have its little line of sculptured curls tagging along the neck line at the rear, it must be carefully cut. Unless the ends are tapered, there's no doing anything with them. Cut straight across they are about as easy to curl as the bristles of a toothbrush. Coiffures still keep that nipped in line at the back.

Beefy arms are a terrible affliction. The size is not caused by muscles, but by adipose tissue. Slenderizing is made possible by simple exercises. Stand erect, drop hands at the sides of the body, close fingers tightly, bring hands above the head with a strong muscle pull, as if lifting a heavy weight. Lower under tension, rest for a moment, repeat.

How to Keep Well

Include 'Bulky' Foods in Diet for Health

Constipation is the bane of modern life. It is probable our modern diet, with its large proportion of highly refined soft foods, is an important factor in its production.

Dr. Copeland

If we were to include in the diet more of the bulky, fibrous foods, it is probable the symptoms would be less common. Certainly the relief of common constipation is a subject that interests an exceedingly large number of persons.

Our food habits have changed a lot. Even a generation or two ago, the foods used were of quite different character from those found on the average table today.

The progress of civilization has been accompanied by remarkable refinements of food and the elimination of natural "bulk." Modern habits of eating have greatly restricted the demands upon the muscles of the intestinal canal. There are some who appear to thrive for a period of time on concentrated and predigested foods. It cannot be doubted, however, that in many instances the intestines are not adjusted to this ballast-poor diet.

It may be said in general that all normal, healthy and vigorous persons need generous amounts of the foods we describe as having "bulk" or containing "roughage." Among such foods are bran, celery, lettuce, cabbage and other leafy vegetables.

There is much misunderstanding of the nature and uses of bran. When cleaned, flavored and softened by cooking, bran becomes one of the most valuable sources of cellulose or "bulk." Its fiber is much like that of vegetables. Because it is eaten dry, it may seem to be of a different character. But when chewed and swallowed it has much the same quality.

Bran is the outer covering of the wheat grain. It contains minerals, vitamins and protein. It is rich in vitamin B, the vitamin which recent study has shown to improve greatly the intestinal tone.

As to the minerals in bran, another recent discovery has been made. It has been shown that bran contains approximately twice as much of the iron that helps make good red blood as is found in the same amount by weight of liver. Even with the smaller amount consumed the iron carried is of great value to the system. The proportion of other minerals in bran are such, too, that they make the iron more readily utilized by the blood.

So far as can be determined, the only persons who should not eat bran are very young children and persons with severe intestinal disorders. It should not be eaten if there are forms of digestive disturbance. But in such cases other bulky food, like spinach, beans, lettuce, etc., should be kept from the patient.

For normal, healthy persons bran is a valuable addition to the daily diet. It is one of the most readily available sources of cellulose, important for elimination; vitamin B for muscle tone, and iron for red blood.

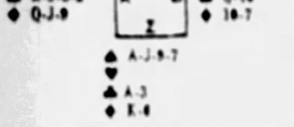
OFFICIAL SYSTEM As Adopted by Leading Authorities

By E. V. SHEPARD

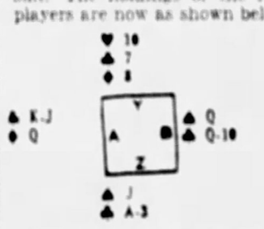
Solution of Yesterday's Problem

In the following eight-card problem, hearts are trump; Z is to lead; Y-Z are to win all the tricks against any possible defense. The holdings are given below. Try solving it for yourself before reading the explanation.



It is evident that Z can win three tricks with his top cards, and that Y can win four trump tricks; the whole problem is to squeeze both A and B so that one of them must unguard one of the three plain suits (non-trump suits). Have Y trump a lead of Z's lowest spade, then lead one trump; the object of this lead is to determine which suit B will unguard. The problem is at once solved if B lets go a spade, as Z can then win the one trick required to complete the eight tricks sought by Y-Z; a low diamond will put Z in the lead and another small spade will be trumped, leaving Z's A-J good for two tricks, with certain entry through his top club. Under no circumstances can B discard a spade; B must discard either a club or a diamond, and Z must follow B's discard.

Suppose that B discards his lowest diamond, and that Z does the same. Then Y must lead a card of the suit from which both B and Z have discarded. Next Z must lay down his top spade, and Y must discard from the minor suit of which Z holds two cards (as thus played here, Y must discard a club). A can let go a club; B has to follow suit. Next a low spade must be led from Z and trumped by Y. A must discard so that he holds the winning diamond and two clubs. Of course B is obliged to follow suit. The holdings of the four players are now as shown below.



Now Y applies the squeeze, by laying down his last trump. If B lets go his spade, the one in Z becomes good; B must let go a club, and Z discards his spade. Either A's good diamond must be discarded, making Y's good, or A must unguard his clubs; it is impossible for A-B to win a single trick.

Household Hints

A pair of sateen bloomers of black with elastic at waist and knees is a joy to the mother of a creeping baby. She can safely dress him and put on these dark bloomers over his romper until she is ready to go out and upon removal her baby is nice and clean and all ready to go.

The way clothes are hung up to dry has a lot to do with the ironing. Hang them in the same position in which they are worn and you will find a great deal of their wrinkles are blown out during the drying, instead of adding new ones that are hard to iron out.

Correct Manners

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

The Wedding Ceremony

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

A year or two ago I attended a home wedding where the bride and groom faced the guests during the ceremony. Recently I attended a church wedding where the bride and groom stood with their backs to the audience and the minister stood under the white bell in the floral arch. Will you please settle the ensuing family discussion by telling us which couple was properly placed?

MRS. C. L. G.

The bride and groom, in both a church and a house wedding, should stand with their backs to the congregated friends. The clergyman faces the audience.

Introductions

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Here is a controversy over the form for introductions. Several of my friends contend that the correct form is "May I present—." I think that this is too formal and should be used only on state occasions and upon presentation to royalty, and that on ordinary occasions, one should say, "May I introduce." Will you kindly settle this for us?

D.

When we present a gentleman to a lady with the form, "Miss Robinson, may I present Mr. Platt," we are using a perfect form. So are we using a perfect form when we say, "Miss Robinson, may I introduce Mr. Platt."

It is entirely a matter of which word you prefer. Really, present isn't a bit more formal than introduce, although many people do think so, at least at first. But once we get this out of our minds we are apt to feel that it is much easier to say present than it is to say introduce, that it is somehow a more gracious word, and that it gives a more pleasing phrasing to the introduction-form. Try it and see if you don't agree.

Boy Hunters Lost In Woods Rescued

PORT ALLEGANY, Pa., Dec. 8.—(AP.)—Two boy hunters, lost for hours in the Liberty Woods, near here, were found last night at Tardeau, 22 miles away, after 150 men had searched the forest for them after they had failed to return home.

Pimples Caused Disfigurement on Face. Healed by Cuticura.

"The trouble began with pimples breaking out on my forehead. They were large and red, and festered and scaled over. Later they formed sore eruptions and disfigured my face. When I stooped down at my work they pained terribly. They caused disfigurement for a time and lasted about two months.

"I tried other remedies but they did not seem to bring any results. I began using Cuticura Soap and Ointment and they brought relief in less than two weeks, and in about four weeks I was completely healed." (Signed) Miss Hilda Kerstetter, R. 1, Box 30, Trevorton, Pa., Feb. 3, '31.

Syria Mosque was filled "to the brim" last night for the Lawrence Tibbett concert, even to the standing room in the second balcony!

Among the throngs and throngs of folks who attended were Mrs. Mortimer Miller and her son, Torrance Miller. Mrs. Miller wore black velvet with a wrap of black velvet and chinchilla.

While she was chatting in the foyer during intermission I saw Mrs. Thomas J. Hilliard in a semi-formal gown of black velvet having brief cape sleeves and touches of brilliant green velvet. Mrs. Sidney A. Stewart chose a charming gown of purple crepe having a heavy puffed ruffle of matching velvet outlining the decolletage and forming the briefest of sleeves.

In Red Satin

Charming Eloise Dorrance, daughter of the Harold J. Dorrances, who may be a deb next year, was there wearing frosted Alice blue velvet with a bunny jacket. Mary Margaret Marshall I saw with her mother, Mrs. Charles D. Marshall.

I noticed Katherine McCloskey in black georgette and a black velvet wrap with her mother, Mrs. J. E. McCloskey, and I saw Mrs. Edward Wallis Woods, informal in an afternoon frock of Spanish tie wool crepe with a matching turban and a mink coat. Mrs. T. Clifton Jenkins, in red velvet with a long wrap of red velvet and white fox was with her daughter, Elizabeth, wore brown georgette with a black velvet wrap. Mrs. W. Terrell Johnson, too, I noticed, and in a box was Mrs. William Thaw, Jr.

With Mrs. H. H. McClintic, Jr., in white crepe and a black velvet wrap, was Mrs. Raymond Ford Moreland, most attractive in green velvet and a mink coat.

Green Velvet

Walton wore black velvet with the square neckline banded with white bunny, and a red velvet wrap. Mrs. Herbert A. May, Jr., chose black velvet with a matching wrap trimmed in white fox. Mrs. Simon T. Patterson wore a gown having the flowing skirt of black crepe and the bodice of deep cream satin, and the William A. Duckhams were there too, with petite Mrs. Duckham in eggshell satin and a long wrap of black velvet and white fox. Helen Rauh wore blue embroidered lace with a black velvet and white fox wrap. I saw Mrs. John J. Bissell in black satin, and Mrs. Frederick Ickes Merrick in blue satin with a claret velvet wrap.

Mrs. James Edward Lewis was in a box with her daughter, Mrs. Solon Armour Person, and I caught a glimpse of Mrs. George P. Bassett and the junior William Larimer Joneses.

As Husbands Go" at the Nixon engrossed a smart audience last night. Between intermission friends met in the foyer to smoke and chat about the clever lines of the play and the delightful acting.

Seen at Nixon

Mrs. Alan S. Humphreys wore cranberry red georgette with a red velvet wrap trimmed in chinchilla. Mrs. Joseph M. Scribner, a black costume, and Janet McKinney coral crepe having a small gold all-over motif, and Virginia Goldsbury lotus pink crepe with a sash of red velvet.

The most momentous evening in a Baltimore debutante's season was last night when daughters of prominent Baltimoreans and former dwellers were presented to society at the first Bachelors' Cotillion.

Bachelor Cotillion

And among the girls honored with coveted invitations to the affair was Louise Brydon, daughter of the J. John Brydons, of Scranton. Louise will share honors with Rita Borntraeger, I mentioned Sunday, at a dinner dance the Thomas G. McCutcheons and James McCutcheon will give December 15 in the Pittsburgh Club. They are cousins of the young Scranton debutante.

Louise wore an exquisite, simple gown of cream satin and lace last night, and had gardenias for her flowers. Her mother was her chaperon, and Harry A. Parr, Jr., her partner.

The Lyric in Baltimore, with its famous gold candelabra and gold brocaded curtains, was the setting of the cotillion. Boxes, hung with smilax holding the debutantes' gift bouquets, lined the ballroom. Supper was served on the stage.

John B. Townley, of the Pittsburgh Press, gave a thoroughly enjoyable talk before the Women's Press Club yesterday in the Woman's City Club. Mr. Townley told many amusing incidents in Pittsburgh newspaper history and reminisced about local notable newspaper figures in a most interesting way. Chain newspapers, he believes, are an improvement on locally owned publications, in that they allow more freedom of expression for the writers.

Melvin Silver was ringbearer. Mrs. Samuel Bloom, matron of honor, wore beaded black chiffon and Mrs. Max Mallinger also wore black chiffon. The bride's mother appeared in black crepe and ecru lace and the bridegroom's mother in black velvet and eggshell satin. Bridal Party

The wedding dinner for the families was served immediately after the ceremony with a reception at 9 o'clock for 350 guests.

PARFUMS ASTROLOGIQUE

To Make Vivid Your Personality

Have you ever realized that the perfume you wear plays a very important part in the impression your personality makes?

Astrology, the oldest known science, depicts the twelve personalities ruled by the twelve signs of the Zodiac. Your birth date indicates under which of the mystic symbols you were born. Parfums Astrologique were created from the twelve flower and plant groups which also grew at the time each of the twelve planets were in the ascendancy.

YOUR personality perfume is among them. Under which sign of the Zodiac were you born? Enclosed in each box of Essence Delicat is a horoscope which will reveal to you your true qualities, just as YOUR natal perfume will brighten and intensify your own personality. All your magnetic characteristics and charm will be given vibrant expression, surrounding you with an aura of irresistible appeal.

Whether you are a dainty blonde, or a demure, shy, softly spoken person; whether you are a subtle sophisticate or an ultra-modern maid or madam; whether you are a gracious lady of the old school; an exotic temperamental lady of many moods or the exemplification of fastidious correctness, whose poised maturity takes the form of cool aloofness—in Parfums Astrologique you will find THE ONE which will become, in your absence, your subtle proxy, bringing your spirit, your presence, YOU, back to others on wings of inspired sweetness. Thus you become a definite personality in thought as well as in deed, through a retrospective veil of lingering fragrance.

RAILWAYS FREE OF POOL EDICT

WASHINGTON, Dec. 8.—(AP.)—The nation's railroads today were free to increase their revenues without having to pool surcharges on freight rates for the benefit of weak lines.

The Interstate Commerce Commission late yesterday announced it had withdrawn restrictions it imposed when, in refusing the carriers a 15 per cent rate increase last October, it agreed to a temporary surcharge arrangement provided funds were pooled and used to pay interest on bonds of tottering lines.

The new ruling leaves the roads free to apply their own lending plan, relying on them to apply the funds to aid needy lines.

The commission found it had no jurisdiction over loans by and between common carriers and ruled it would "neither approve nor disapprove either the lending plan or the agency" the carriers have said they expected to set up.

The surcharges may now be put into effect as soon as the railroads can prepare and file tariffs with the commission under the rules.

SNYDER, STATE LEADER, DIES

POTTSVILLE, Pa., Dec. 8.—(AP.)—Charles A. Snyder, 64, district attorney of Schuylkill County, former State Treasurer and Auditor General and prominent in Republican politics of the state for many years, died of a heart attack here last night. His body was found in his office by County Detective Louis Buono. He was lying on the office floor, the telephone under him.

With Buono, Snyder had been in Harrisburg yesterday where he conferred with State Treasurer Edward Martin and other political leaders. Upon his return he went to the office to work. Buono was to meet him there later in the evening. The Coroner pronounced death due to heart attack.

Had he lived until January 1, Snyder would have begun his second term as District Attorney. He was elected to that office when his term as State Treasurer expired in 1925.

Meadville Homes Looted by Thieves

MEADVILLE, Pa., Dec. 8.—(AP.)—While the family of William H. Crawford, president emeritus of Allegheny College, was sojourning in the South, every room of their home was disarranged. Police said they could not estimate the value of the loot.

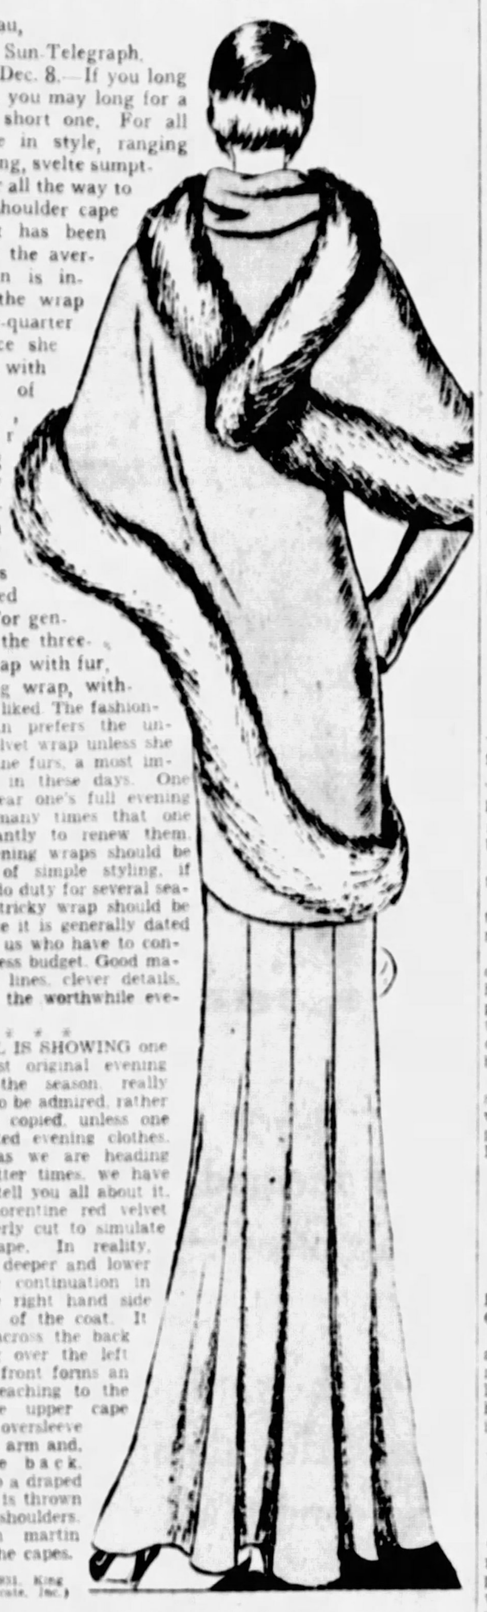
Meadville to Get City Tax Slash

MEADVILLE, Pa., Dec. 8.—(AP.)—Meadville City Council will effect a 1½ mill tax reduction for 1932 at a meeting tonight, members announced today. The city is building a $125,000 sewage treatment plant and will start soon on a $50,000 conduit.

EVENING WRAPS IN ALL LENGTHS

Sketched in Paris



Paris Bureau,
Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

PARIS, Dec. 8.—If you long for a wrap, you may long for a long or a short one. For all lengths are in style, ranging from the long, svelte sumptuous affair all the way to the little shoulder cape of fur. It has been found that the average woman is inclined to the wrap of three-quarter length since she can wear it with any type of frock, whether it be long and slinky or decorated with a bustle-bow or a series of stiffened flounces. For general wear, the three-quarter wrap with fur, or the long wrap, without fur are liked. The fashion-wise woman prefers the untrimmed velvet wrap unless she can have fine furs, a most important tip in these days. One does not wear one's full evening things so many times that one need constantly to renew them. And so, evening wraps should be good, and of simple styling, if they are to do duty for several seasons. The tricky wrap should be avoided since it is generally dated by those of us who have to consider our dress budget. Good materials, fine lines, clever details, these mark the worthwhile evening wrap.

CHANTAL IS SHOWING one of the most original evening wraps of the season, really something to be admired, rather than to be copied, unless one has unlimited evening clothes. But still, as we are heading towards better times, we have decided to tell you all about it. It is in Florentine red velvet and is cleverly cut to simulate a spiral cape. In reality, though, the deeper and lower cape is the continuation in back of the right hand side of the front of the coat. It curves up across the back and passing over the left arm to the front forms an oversleeve reaching to the elbow. The upper cape starts as an oversleeve on the right arm and, crossing the back, narrows into a draped scarf which is thrown around the shoulders. Rich brown martin edges both the capes.

POSTAGE RATE RAISE URGED

WASHINGTON, Dec. 8.—(Universal.)—Reporting an increase of $47,850,202 in the department's gross deficite for the past year, Postmaster General Brown today urged higher first-class postal rates.

Brown, in his annual report to Congress, recommends a permanent rate of 2½ cents on letter mail for other than local delivery, and a rate of 3 cents for the period of the depression.

The Postmaster General revealed the gross deficit for the past year was $146,066,189, as compared with $98,215,987 for the preceding year.

With expenditures for non-postal objects deducted, the actual postal deficite was $98,018,881, an increase of $39,472,602 over the preceding year.

If present trends continue, the actual postal deficit for the present year will probably be about $150,000,000, or an increase of more than $50,000,000, Brown said.

INSULL ASKED ABOUT GIFT

WASHINGTON, Dec. 8.—(AP.)—The Federal Trade Commission failed today to learn from Martin J. Insull, of Chicago, for what purpose $44,100 was used which he received from the Middle West Utilities Company.

Examiner Asel Colbert, of the commission, testified last week he had been unable to find for what purpose the money, recorded on the company's subscriptions and donations account for 1926, had been used.

Insull, when asked if he could say on his oath that the $44,100 was not used in connection with political contributions of Samuel Insull said:

"All I can say on my oath is to my knowledge it was not."

Whistle Removed From Boy's Lung

CHICAGO, Dec. 8.—(AP.)—Robert Young, 5, whistled from October 31 until yesterday.

The whistling was stopped when a surgeon, with a bronchoscope, removed a tin whistle which lodged in the boy's lung after he had swallowed it while celebrating Halloween.

Y. M. C. A. Official Ends Life With Gun

EVERETT, Wash., Dec. 8.—(AP.)—C. F. Nevius, general secretary of the Y. M. C. A. and prominent in religious life here, was found dead yesterday in an association building dormitory, shot to death, with a pistol lying beside him. The Coroner said he apparently committed suicide.

A HOOVER

Men don't mean to be thoughtless. They just don't seem to realize how much of a woman's time and vitality a single week's cleaning takes.

Ask any woman. She will tell you that nothing she could have would do as much to lighten her household cares as does a Hoover. You can see why. The Hoover cleans faster than any other cleaner—cuts down cleaning time and effort; cleans better—gets out 33% more dirt than the best of other cleaners; cleans deeper—gets the dirt that destroys rugs.

Do you realize how extremely easy it is to give a Hoover? Only a few dollars down; balance monthly. Liberal allowance for old electric cleaners.

MAKERS OF VICKS VAPORUB ANNOUNCE

A New Plan for better "Control-of-Colds"

Made Possible by New Product Based on New Idea for Prevention of Colds

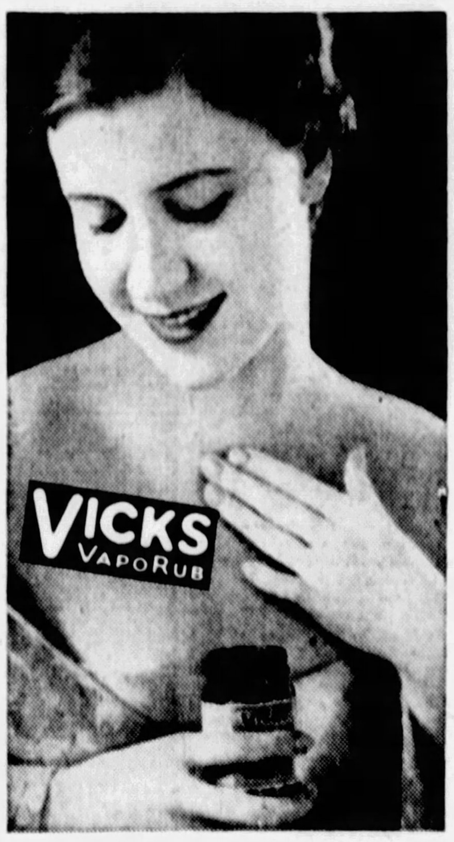
A third of a century ago, Lunsford Richardson, Sr., a North Carolina druggist, developed a new idea in treating colds—and with it Vicks VapoRub. Now, after years of research, Vick chemists have developed a new idea in preventing colds—and with it Vicks Nose and Throat Drops. These two are companion products—they aid and supplement each other. Together, they make possible the Vick Plan for better "Control-of-Colds" in the home.

Trial Offer to Vick Users

We believe that these two products—used as directed in the Vick Plan for better "Control-of-Colds"—will greatly reduce your family's "Colds-Tax" in money, loss of time and health. We believe this so strongly that we have authorized all druggists to sell Vicks Drops to any user of Vicks VapoRub on trial—to refund the purchase price if you do not find the Vick Plan for "Control-of-Colds" more than satisfactory in your home.

VICK CHEMICAL COMPANY

Lunsford Richardson
PRESIDENT



HERE, BRIEFLY, IS THE NEW VICK PLAN:

1. Before a Cold Starts

At that first sneezy, scratchy irritation of the nose or upper throat—Nature's unmistakable warning that you are "catching cold"—use Vicks Nose Drops promptly as directed. Many colds can be checked at this stage and bad colds avoided.

If you catch cold easily, the wise plan is to use just a few Vicks Nose Drops up each nostril after exposure to any particular condition that your own experience tells you is apt to give you a cold—for instance, a night on a Pullman—a dusty automobile ride—over-smoking—over-heated, over-crowded rooms, etc., etc.—and you feel the slightest stuffiness of the nasal passages. Vicks Drops are especially designed to aid the nose—Nature's "preventor" of colds—when over-taxed by such emergencies of our artificial present-day living.

2. After a Cold Starts

At night, massage the throat and chest well with Vicks VapoRub (now available in white "stainless" form, if you prefer). Spread on thick and cover with warm flannel. Leave the bed-clothing loose around the neck so that the medicated vapors arising can be inhaled all night long. During the day—any time, any place—use Vicks Nose Drops as needed for ease and comfort. (If there is a cough, you will like another new Vick product—a Cough Drop actually medicated with ingredients of Vicks VapoRub.)

This gives you full 24-hour treatment and without the risks of too much internal "dosing," which so often upsets the digestion—especially of children—and lowers body strength at a time when Nature most needs it to resist disease. Don't "dose" colds except on your doctor's advice.

We Now Present

By Darrell V. Martin
Radio Editor

THE STATES RIGHTS issue didn't die with the surrender of Lee at Appomattox if we epitomize correctly the issue to be resived in Federal Court today over a document labeled "The Federal Radio Commission versus WGM." WGM is a small radio station operated by Lee Elton Spencer at his home 51 Cowan street Jeannette, Pa. The Radio Commission is prepared to prosecute Spencer for allegedly interfering with national radio signals by operating a "bootleg" station for six years without a license. Attorneys for Spencer maintain that their client has violated no law since the station was built and operated in Pennsylvania and being an enterprise within the state is beyond the jurisdiction of the Commission and subject only to laws of our commonwealth. This defense establishes a precedent in radio litigation and revives again the 10-year-old American question, "Who owns the ether?" . . . Should counsel for Spencer lose their argument here they intend to carry their case to the Circuit Court of Appeals and on to the Supreme Court if necessary. Spencer's attorneys are Louis L. Kaufman, former KDKA announcer; former United States Attorney Warren Van Kirk, Isadore A. Bernstein, John Pyle and Frank A. Rugh.

Question a Day:

You mentioned once that Cass Ward Whitney, local radio singer, was a member of the Whitney Quartet that appeared in Chautauqua several years ago. I think that quartet with its repertoire of more than 370 numbers from memory, was the greatest of all quartets, including our Revelers. Will you please tell us why this quartet doesn't reorganize and go on the radio?—Larry M., Steubenville, O.

Answer — Several good reasons. First, the boys gave up singing about eight years ago. Second, they are in all parts of the country now. But, believe it or not, three of the four are in radio — Cass occasionally on KDKA; Yale B., an announcer at KFI, Los Angeles, and Ed takes the role of Judge Whipple in "Real Folks." Bill, the fourth member and daddy of the organization, is a business counsellor with many clients in this part of the state.

Studio Lights

Husk O'Hare, McKinney's Cottonpickers and the Penn State Varsity Ten are to play for the Intercollegiate Ball in the William Penn Hotel on Christmas night . . . the event is to be radioed, a station yet to be decided . . .

The Radio Commission has denied a WJAS application for 5,000 watts.

Jimmy Joy made such a hit with local dance patrons that he has been re-engaged to open the spring season at the Urban Room following Don Bestor's stay.

Don Bestor broadcasts over WHK (1390kc.), Cleveland, at 10:08 tonight, Thursday night at 10:30 and Friday night at 11:01. . . . his present outfit is some class!

Russ Columbo plays the violin and leads his own orchestra in that new series over WJZ, WGAR, WJR, WCKY, WMAQ at 10 o'clock tonight. . . . Sousa's Band on WEAF, WTIC, WGY, WTAM at 8:30. . . . The Three Doctors as usual at 11:30 on WJZ, WGAR, WENR (why not KDKA?) . . . and Archer Gibson, organist playing Melody in F, Schubert's "Ave Maria" and Massenet's "Elegie" on WJZ, WJR, WENR, WGAR at 11:45.

Jack Foster, New York scribe, was a bit surprised to see Jessica Dragonette trim Lily Pons 211 to 27 in his popularity poll among radio editors. . . . Jack!

THE LOUDSPEAKER :-: By LOUIS REID

NEW YORK, Dec. 8.—Refugees from Russia, the Russia of the czars—continue to grope their way to the microphones, testifying anew to the notion that there are no national boundaries in radio.

Remarkable, the babel of tongues that tumbles daily from the loudspeaker, all voicing international good will. . . . But behind their backs munition-makers thumb their noses, go on with their work of packing powder. . . . Come to think about it, it is nearly time again for radio rajahs to tell the world how closely the microphone is cementing the friendship of nations. . . . Well, it won't be long probably before we'll hear the clip-clip of Floyd Gibbons' tongue from Manchuria. That is, of course, if he's not muzzled. . . . With one ear cocked to the Far East and the other to the stormpots of Europe, broadcasters are ironically dusting off their Christmas music, getting ready their hosannas of peace on earth, good will to men.

Broadcasters, too, are having their own wars. From their watch towers they scan the movements of their rivals, oppose crooner with crooner, maestro with maestro. . . . And their spirit of belligerency is passed on to the sponsors who pay the bills. . . . Even the cigaret war on the air grows more intense with each passing day. Comes Chesterfield soon to march upon the parlors with beat of drum and a voice ringing clear. . . . Whose voice, though is as yet undetermined. But what a scramble is going on for the job! . . . One of the best conversational styles yet exhibited on the air, it seems to us, is that of Angelo Patri, child psychologist. Wouldn't surprise me if among new voices soon to be heard on the radio is that of Thomas J. Mooney. . . . No better proof can be had of how ordinary some of the dance tunes are than to hear them on the pipe organ.

Howard Lanin, dance band leader, finds time between radio engagements to play for society functions; enjoys such jobs, for they reveal to him musical eccentricities of the socially prominent. . . . For instance, he says that whenever he plays for the E. T. Stotesburys he knows that before the evening's over Stotesbury is going to tap out "The Girl I Left Behind Me" on the traps, following that with his own conducting of the band in the "Blue Danube." . . . And there is Walter Damrosch, who at Bar Harbor gatherings stands off at one side of the orchestra and from time to time "nods his approval of the popular tunes." . . .

A. Atwater Kent's favorite dance music, according to Lanin, is a fast and snappy fox trot. Whenever Lanin plays for one of Kent's entertainments he's sure to be requested for a "hot" rendition of "Happy Days Are Here Again." . . . Musicians and others close to Leopold Stokowski invariably call him "Stoky," but never to his face.

CAMELS are FRESH!

THE bedrock of Camel popularity is the inherently fine quality of the tobaccos that go into our cigarette.

These tobaccos are notably mild, full-mellow, delicately flavored by nature — the finest Turkish and mild, sun-ripened Domestic tobaccos that money can buy.

To safeguard the essential goodness of these fine tobaccos we exercise every care to conserve their natural moisture and natural flavors.

They are never parched or toasted — the Reynolds method of scientifically applying heat guarantees against that.

That's why we say Camels are made fresh to start with—and why the Camel Humidor Pack can bring them fresh to you, in prime smoking condition.

If you want to know what a blessing that means in unalloyed smoke-enjoyment, switch to Camels for just one day — then leave them—if you can.

Astor Estate Wins Tax Refund Verdict

NEW YORK, Dec. 8.—(INS.)—Federal Judge Caffey late yesterday denied a motion by the government to set aside a $16,000,000 refund in taxes and interest granted on July 1 last to estate of the late Baron William Waldorf Astor. The Astor estate at that time won a decision restoring to them millions in excess taxes which the United States collected in 1918.

'Bonesetter' Reese Estate Under $75,000

YOUNGSTOWN, O., Dec. 8.—(AP.)—The will of John Bonesetter Reese, filed in Probate Court here yesterday, leaves the estate to his five daughters. No estimate of its value is given but a check of properties listed indicates that their value would not exceed $75,000 and probably is considerably less than that.

LAX MARRIAGE RULES SCORED

Promiscuous marriage and advocates of the new ethics were criticized by Dr. Henry Neumann, of Brooklyn, who told Hungry Club members at their luncheon yesterday in the Fort Pitt Hotel that the fine-grained woman still holds marriage as something holy.

Challenging the freedom advocated by former Judge Ben B. Lindsey and Bertrand Russell, Dr. Neumann, who is a special lecturer on moral education at various colleges, declared:

"The leaders who have fought for a single standard sought to bring the lower element to the higher plane. Supporters of this new freedom would reverse the object. Youth should not be told to shop around and try one marriage after another if they don't succeed. Temporary arrangements leave a permanent injury. Youth should be taught how to prepare for marriage."

RAUH TO SPEAK FOR SEAL SALE

Marcus Rauh will be the five-minute speaker at the Rotary Club tomorrow at its noon meeting in the Fort Pitt Hotel, talking in the interest of the Christmas Seal campaign.

Proceeds from the sale of Christmas Seals are used by the Tuberculosis League of Pittsburgh in caring for more than 9,000 patients in its dispensaries during the year.

STOP BAD BREATH

Thousands of people afflicted with bad breath find quick relief through Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets. The pleasant, sugar-coated tablets are taken for bad breath by all who know.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets act gently but firmly on the bowels and liver, stimulating them to natural action, clearing the blood and gently purifying the entire system. They do that which dangerous calomel does without any of the bad after effects.

Dr. F. M. Edwards discovered the formula after 20 years of practice among patients afflicted with bowel and liver complaint, with the attendant bad breath.

Olive Tablets are purely a vegetable compound; you will know them by their olive color. Take nightly for a week and note the effect. 15c, 30c, 60c.

A THREE DAYS' COUGH IS YOUR DANGER SIGNAL

Persistent coughs and colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the infected membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, bronchitis and other forms of respiratory diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold, no matter of how long standing, is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist.

you're safe with radiator GLYCERINE

Volatile anti-freezes evaporate, and when too much evaporates it's just too bad. The trouble is that you never know when you're safe.

G. P. A. Radiator Glycerine does not evaporate—can't evaporate! One filling lasts all winter. No doubt, no worry—with G. P. A. you know you are safe.

And because the first cost is the last cost, G. P. A. is really more economical than cheaper "fade-away" anti-freezes. G. P. A. is odorless, too. And it won't injure your cooling system or mar the finish on your car.

Man, Woman Robbed Of Auto, Jewelry

A man and a woman were robbed of cash, jewelry and their automobile as the machine slowed at the Wilmot street approach to Schenley Park, shortly before midnight.

The victims were James A. Young, the driver, and his aunt, Mrs. Florence Cook, both of 732 East End avenue. Four armed men leaped on the running board, and ordered the driver to stop. After they had turned over a small amount of cash and a wrist watch, the victims were ordered from the machine. The bandits escaped in it.

Facts on Rum That Congress Won't Reveal

By Arthur (Bugs) Baer

First vote in new Congress will be on liquor.

Can you take it or leave it alone?

How do you stand on it? How can you stand without it?

Is the stuff worse than 10 years ago? Or does an amendment improve it?

You yelled your vote against it. Do you whisper for it?

Do you believe in enforcement? Or do you allow a guest to choose his own?

Did you think that prohibition would be a success? Or did you lay in a 20-year supply?

Do you vote dry and drink wet? Or don't you remember after the third ballot?

Do you think liquor will come back? Or do you belive that prohibition will get here first?

Is America better off dry or the way it is?

WELFARE HEAD APPEALS FOR PLEDGES

Donation Form Published; Two Travelers in Europe Cable Additional Gifts

Facing the task of raising $835,000 in less than a week, workers in the campaign of the Welfare Fund and Allegheny County Emergency Association forces today renewed efforts to attain Pittsburgh's relief quota. Reports yesterday showed a gain of $128,878 toward the goal of $5,231,000. When the latter figure is reached, the drive's success will be assured through the conditional prize of $750,000 offered by a small group of corporations and individuals.

PLEDGE FORM

Declaring that subscribers need not pay immediately, but may make their contributions payable as late as next summer, Joseph Dilworth, chairman of the drive, urged that anyone desiring to make a contribution send in the pledge this week.

For the convenience of prospective subscribers who may not have been solicited, the Sun-Telegraph carries a subscription form today, which may be filled out and mailed to the Welfare Fund, 702 Chamber of Commerce Building, Pittsburgh.

GIFTS INCREASED

Increased subscriptions, two of which were cabled from Europe, reported by workers in the special gifts division today, include the following: David B. Oliver, increased from $2,000 to $3,000; Mrs. G. M. Laughlin, Jr., $2,000 to $2,500; Mr. and Mrs. H. N. Van Voorhis, $2,000 to $3,000; Charles Oliver, $1,600 to $2,000; Mrs. J. M. Schoonmaker (cable), $1,500 to $6,500; Mrs. R. E. Earp (cable), $300 to $2,500.

Reports of the employe division show that employes of the General Electric and subsidiary companies have subscribed a total of $3,744.58, in addition to the five days' pay contributed to the company's fund for its own employes. Crandall, McKenzie & Henderson, Inc., has doubled its contribution as a company and will ask employes to increase where possible, it was announced.

SAFETY AWARDS SET FOR FRIDAY

An illustrative pageant, depicting safety advancement methods used in Pittsburgh, will feature exercises at which 250 children will receive cash awards in the fifth annual traffic assey contest of the Better Traffic Committee in Syria Mosque Friday night, Walter Rosenbaum, education section chairman, announced today.

In addition to the 250 cash prizes, scholarships will be awarded winners in the senior high school section by representatives of Pittsburgh's institutions of higher education.

Names of the winners of 1,837 merit certificates will also be announced, Rosenbaum said. Nearly 4,000 school children and parents are expected to attend.

Woman Recovering After Being Burned

Mrs. Florence Haggerty, 24, of 14 Letsche street, was recovering in Presbyterian Hospital today from burns sustained yesterday when a gas stove ignited her clothing.

The woman ran to the porch of her home where a neighbor extinguished the flames with a bucket of water.

VIRGINIA MAE PARKER

Miss Parker, Perrysville highway, who cuts the rate, offers to marry a suitable man for $5,000.

Sentenced 5 Years For Manslaughter

William Nash Davis, Negro, 34, of Plum alley, McKees Rocks, was adjudged guilty of manslaughter and sentenced to five to 10 years in the penitentiary in Criminal Court. Clyde Aaron, 42, railroad conductor, McKees Rocks, was fatally stabbed July 24. Davis said Aaron had been drinking and had broken two of his ribs when he stabbed him in self defense.

New 'Bride Auction' Girl Slashes Rate; Wants Cash Herself

Cut-rate competition hit the bride industry today.

Virginia Mae Parker, of Perrysville, came out last night with an offer to sell herself to any acceptable man over 21 years of age for $5,000, which is just half the price of the other two brides "for sale."

Marguerite Lennon, of Beechview, who entered the bride market last week after reading about scores of offers received by Mary C. Clowes, of New Eagle, today was considering half a dozen proposals.

All day yesterday, following her announcement in Sunday's papers of the plan, the telephone in the Lennon home at 1400 Hampshire avenue kept up a steady jingle. Sometime it was a friend, joking or offering advice; often it was a stranger, counseling her to abandon her plan, and in between were the offers of men who announced they were willing to accept her proposal.

Some of the latter hedged out when they learned they must first face Marguerite's parents. Others made appointments for today.

Her parents still object to Marguerite's plan, but are willing to let her go through with it if she wishes.

And Marguerite stands firm, saying:

In support of her idea of being a good wife, Marguerite, 18, submits that she can cook, sew, keep house, has helped care for her sister's 6-month-old baby, Gilbert Haas, Jr., reads constantly, swims, plays a little golf and is learning to play bridge.

SCHOOL BOARD ROW STIRS NEVILLE TWP.

Former Official Arrested On Charge of Forgery; Missing Records Sought

Rumblings of impending civic discord in Neville Township, revolving around the Neville Island School Board, were heard today as Charles H. Daub, of 211 New Haven way, Neville Island, was held in county jail on a District Attorney's detainer.

Daub, former secretary and director of the board, was arrested in Girard, Pa., on a warrant charging him with forgery on several counts. He was returned to Pittsburgh last night by county detectives.

RECORDS MISSING

School directors, meeting last night, said Daub, in retiring, took with him all books and records of the board since July 1, leaving affairs of the board in confusion. They also said they have on hand two salary checks issued to Daub as secretary, each orginally for $40, raised to $140.

Other checks, they declare, issued to a "W. R. Boyd," a fictitious name, they believe, bore the allegedly forged countersignature of A. Larimer Phillips, Jr., president of the board.

Daub was arrested in hope, the directors say, that he could help them clear up the matter. Phillips said:

"We cannot decide on our future course until we have conducted a complete, thorough investigation. I'll promise that we're going to get to the bottom of this affair as quickly as we can."

Daub was questioned this morning by Assistant District Attorney George F. P. Langfitt and Phillips. According to the district attorney's office, Daub is said to have admitted the accusations against him.

RESIGNATION ASKED

Daub was asked for his resignation late in October, following complaints against him for conduct unbecoming his office. He asked, Phillips says, for time to get his books in order. Final accounting was set for November 26.

On December 1, Phillips claims, the board told Daub that, unless the members were given the records at once, they would be forced to bring suit for their recovery. The following day Daub is said to have disappeared.

He was located late last week in Girard and arrested Sunday on a warrant sworn out by Austen Storey, new secretary of the board.

Daub is a former assistant auditor of the Keystone Sand and Supply Company, subsidiary of the Dravor Contracting Company. He is said to have been dismissed in August.

AWAITS REPORT

Superintendent of County Schools Charles E. Dickey said, last night, that he is awaiting a report from the Neville Island directors.

Rumors of impending revelations implicating Daub and possibly others in irregularities in conduct of the School Department are mentioned on every hand throughout the island.

Alleged purchase of refrigerators and school supplies without the legally required competing bids is mentioned. An audit of the board's finances, as of July 1, 1931, was declared, during the last primary campaign, to be erroneous. Mistakes are said to have been admitted by Storey, one of the auditors. Of the audit, Storey says:

"There were two trifling errors, due to a misunderstanding at the bank. Too much was credited to the building fund, too little to the general fund. That's all there was to it."

A movement to demand the resignation of the entire board is understood to be under way in the township.

MRS. HILL WINS RENT DISPUTE

SEATTLE, Dec. 8.—(AP)—A suit of Mrs. Ernest Shelley, of Livingston, Mont., for $2,800 rent from Mrs. Walter J. Hill for the use of Mrs. Shelley's Livingston home during Mrs. Hill's temporary separation from her husband was dismissed here yesterday by Superior Judge Kaus Kay.

The court said the Shelleys "partook of more ease, pleasure and profits during Mrs. Hill's visit in their home than ever before."

Mrs. Hill, reconciled with her husband, son of the late James J. Hill, now is a resident of Seattle. She contended she was an invited guest of the Shelleys and spent almost $3,000 in paying the household expenses for herself and her hosts.

WILL ROGERS SAYS

To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph:

After drinking at least two barrels of tea, and wanting to be fair, here is about how Manchuria looks to me: China owns the lot, Japan owns the house that's on it. Now who should have the policemen? China is trying to save its country, Japan is trying to save its investments and the League of Nations is trying to save its face. Now somebody has got to lose.

MEDICAL GROUP SHOWS DANGER TO HEALTH

Council Scans Figures Of Municipal Garage and Other Bureaus for Budget

The Allegheny County Medical Society today protested the proposed discontinuance of meat and dairy inspection by the city as an economy measure. In its protest to Council the society said:

"The services rendered to the people of Pittsburgh by these divisions of the Department of Health constitute an essential service. Discontinuance might quickly result in the appearance in epidemic form among the children, as well as the adults of this community, of such grave diseases as scarlet fever, typhoid fever, diphtheria, streptococcic sore throat, ptomaine poisoning, and other infections transmitted by unclean food."

The matter of dairy inspections outside the city was to be taken up in the Health Department appropriations by Council in budget session.

COSTS STUDIED

Other points brought out in the budget session included:

The cost of maintenance of the city garage was taken up. William Monahan, superintendent of the garage, was ordered to submit to Council the cost of maintaining police and fire apparatus at the garage and what it would cost to have the various auto companies service their own cars.

Members of the Building Owners and Managers' Association demanding salary cuts or eliminations totaling $1,241,718. They have specified 300 jobs that can be taken out of the payroll, they say, without serious loss.

Councilman Harry A. Little proposed a survey of all city employes by the Mayor to eliminate married women from the payroll.

The Mayor will be asked to submit a questionnaire to all employs requiring them to answer whether they are married and if the husband or wife works for the city or for an outside enterprise. One of them will be asked to resign from the city payroll.

As the Council prepared to take up the Mayview City Home and Hospital appropriation, reports were current that Council will eliminate several jobs.

REPPERT TO REPORT

Public Works Engineer Charles M. Reppert was to report on the cost of departmental operations in 1918 and 1919. Council hopes to cut the 1932 operating expenses to that figure.

A commission of business men to serve without pay in studying the billing and collection of delinquent taxes has been suggested by the Building Owners and Managers' Association. It is estimated delinquent taxes at the end of this year will total about $6,450,000 compared with $2,229,000 in 1924.

An effort to lease or sell at auction 3,000 parcels of city-owned real estate and get them back on the productive side of the tax ledger is advised.

Westinghouse Gets New $275,000 Order

A new order for $275,000 worth of switching equipment has been received by the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company, it was announced today. The material will be used in the new Humboldt Park Station in Chicago.

The order consists largely of circuit breakers, 98 of them, with the newest developments rated to open their contacts against a short-circuit current of 1,000,000,000-volt amperes.

Stocking Still Safest Bank For Shoppers, Says Sleuth

The stocking bank is still the safest in the opinion of Detective Inspector Frank R. Boyd today sounding a warning to women Christmas shoppers.

Boyd's advice was:

"Don't carry large sums of money. Carry a small purse. Don't lay your purse on the counter. Don't display your money. Shop early and avoid last minute crowds."

To men, Boyd said:

"Don't carry your wallet in your hip-pocket."

Then, as an afterthought to women:

"If you must carry large sums of money, put it in your stocking. It's the best place after all."

A detail of 20 picked detectives have been assigned to department stores, prominent street car stops and railroad stations, Boyd said.

Both Public Safety Director James M. Clark and Police Supt. Peter P. Walsh added their word, asking shoppers' co-operation:

"If you see a man acting suspiciously or committing a theft report it to the nearest policeman."

VOTE MACHINE COMPROMISE FAILS

Hearing in Taxpayer's Suit to Restrain County From Payment Opened

BULLETIN.

An agreement to discontinue all proceedings against the Poole company on condition that minor alterations to voting machines be made by March 1 and an additional surety bond of $475,000 post meanwhile was reached this afternoon by opposing counsel in the taxpayers vote machine suit.

After a long wrangle over a proposed compromise, Judge Frank P. Patterson in Common Pleas Court today began a hearing in the taxpayer's suit to restrain the county from paying $410,000 remaining due the Poole Company for vote machines.

One hundred and fifty officials of election boards from districts where the machines were used at the November election summoned by the Poole Company were on hand to testify.

Attorney C. F. C. Arensberg in behalf of Ada B. Bassett, the plaintiff, said there was a possibility of a settlement of the case if the machines were made to conform to requirements of the secretary of the commonwealth, the hearing postponed, and bond posted to insure efficient operation of the machines hereafter.

For the Poole Company, Attorney O. K. Eaton agreed to post bond and make the minor changes suggested, but would not agree to postpone the hearing.

Two machines were set up in the courtroom.

CITE LENIENCY IN TAX DEFICIT

BRADFORD, Pa., Dec. 8.—(AP.)—It was intimated here today that a request might be made to the State Legislature for more stringent tax laws as a result of the Bradford City finance case in which Webster G. Drew, for eight years City Treasurer, is under $50,000 bail on a charge of embezzling school funds.

Auditors of the company which bonded Drew for more than $195,000, said that the Drew case is very intricate and involved, due to the fact that Drew was not only collector of city taxes, but of school board funds, McKean County funds and state funds.

Friends of Drew say that if there is a shortage in Drew's accounts it will probably be found due to leniency in collecting delinquent taxes because much discretion is left with the tax collector regarding sale of property for taxes under the present laws.

FIRESTONE SEES TRADE UPTURN

Harvey S. Firestone, rubber manufacturer in Pittsburgh today, believes business is on the mend. He cited the tire business as an example. Lower sales of the last two years having created a vacuum of 40 per cent, the same vacuum should cause a demand which will stimulate conditions with the new year.

Mr. Firestone sees a similar condition in other industries, although he predicts that a readjustment in taxes will be necessary.

As to the rubber experiments of his late friend, Thomas A. Edison, Mr. Firestone assured that efforts to produce rubber from the goldenrod were being carried on by himself, Henry Ford and the inventor's son, Charles Edison.

Mr. Firestone stopped off here for a brief business visit. He was accompanied by his son, Harvey Firestone, Jr.

24 HELD IN N. Y. NUDE CULT RAID

NEW YORK, Dec. 8.—(INS.)—New York's first discovered nudist cult was raided today.

In a "Garden of Eden" in a mid-town gymnasium, police arrested seven women and 17 men who appeared in the Adam and Eve fashion—except for the fig leaves—on charges of violating a moral statute.

All were permitted to don their clothes before they were taken before Magistrate Clapp, where they were held in $5 bail each.

The gymnasium, on the top floor of a loft building, was called by devotees of the nude cult which, for a long while, has flourished in Europe. "The Heart of New York" physical culture school.

When fire broke out on the third floor of their Darragh street home, the family of Joseph Hartman was forced to flee in night clothing early today.

The flames were confined to the top floor of the dwelling 238 Darragh street. The cause of the fire was not learned. An occupant of a fraternity house saw smoke pouring from the windows and gave the alarm.

The first and second floors of the house, untouched by flames, were damaged by water. Damage was estimated at $3,000 by Battalion Chief Frank Harris.

The men were thrown from the truck, police said, when it skidded from the highway.

NAVY LEAGUE'S FIGHT RENEWED

WASHINGTON, Dec. 8.—(AP.)—William Howard Gardiner seized the moment of Congress assembling to again assail President Hoover's conduct of naval affairs, calling for a sweeping investigation.

His plea, latest utterance in the long-drawn controversy between the White House and the Navy League, fell on fertile ground, for advocates of a more powerful naval establishment are planning to push large construction bills at this session.

The latest statement of the league president again assailed Mr. Hoover's suggestion of immunizing sea-borne food supplies from the hazards of war, by terming it the "ill-advised nostrum" of a layman. In essence he reasserted his original charge of "abysmal ignorance" against the President.

Sparkling diamonds glistening from the sidewalk attracted the attention of Paul Weltman, of 1904 Webster avenue, as he sold papers from his stand at Fifth and Liberty avenues, and today he is $50 richer because he sought the owner.

Honest Weltman realized some one in the building might have lost it. He turned it over to the elevator dispatcher, Barney Malloy, who watched newspapers for notice of its loss. Finally the advertisement appeared, revealing the owner as Mrs. William S. Flowers, with offices in the building. Her thanks to Weltman included a $50 bill.

The diamonds were in a brooch valued at $2,000.

KERR PROPOSES PUBLIC FUNDS SAFEGUARDS

Asks Council to Provide Key For Controller to Vaults Holding Bond Securities

Practices existing in the care of city funds under the old depository ordinance would be changed under legislation proposed to Council by Controller James P. Kerr.

The new bill, Kerr said, is a codification of the old ordinance and its amendments and provides that the Controller have a key for safe deposit boxes where bonds guaranteeing city funds are stored. Kerr's proposal is an outgrowth of the recent investigations into the City Treasurers' office under the regime of Roy D. Schooley, deposed by the Mayor for alleged irregularities.

Under present regulations, Kerr pointed out, only the Treasurer is given a key to the vaults.

Banks and trust companies receiving city funds, would be required under the new ordinance to furnish United States, Pennsylvania, Allegheny County and City of Pittsburgh bonds or gold notes of the National Credit Corporation as security. The city Treasurer would be enabled to call for additional security for the deposits at any time. The bank bidding the highest rate of interest would named be as the city's active depository and clearing bank. It would have to possess capital and surplus of at least $4,000,000. Other banks to be selected as depositories would be required to have a capital and surplus of at least $2,000,000.

The delinquent tax collector would be required to deposit delinquent tax funds in the city's active account, while the interest rate would be reduced from 2¾ to 2 per cent.

HEAR LOWTHER WITNESSES

WOOSTER, O., Dec. 8.—(AP.)—The same array of witnesses who once helped the state obtain a death sentence for Mrs. Julia Maude Lowther, 24-year-old former West Virginia woman who is accused of murder, was drawn up a second time today.

Mrs. Lowther pleaded guilty yesterday to a charge of homicide, thereby waiving a trial by jury, but testimony must be presented in common pleas court to determine the degree of guilt. The state still demands the death penalty.

Mrs. Lowther shot and killed Mrs. Clara Smith, 28, on May 29, 1930, as the climax of what the state contends was an illicit romance with Tilby Smith, Astabula trucker. Smith has been electrocuted for his part in the crime, while Mrs. Lowther, once sentenced to death, is being given a second trial granted by the state supreme court.

MAN LOSES LIFE IN TRUCK-CAR COLLISION

Reduction Company Employe Killed, Motorman and Driver to Face Coroner

Stephen Kalbin, 50, an employe of the American Reduction Company, was killed late yesterday when the truck on which he was riding collided with a street car at Forbes street, near Dallas avenue, Willison Hesse, driver of the truck, and Motorman John Mahon, of 2026 Wayne street, will be turned over to the coroner.

Lucille Filbert, 17, of 417 North Aiken avenue, was injured last night when struck by an automobile at Black street and Negley avenue. The driver, Victor Deres, of Arnold, was lodged in the East End police station, charged with reckless driving.

Fleeing after his car struck and overturned another automobile in front of Mt. Washington police station, police say, Glenwood Miller, of 611 Gearing avenue, was arrested last night after Patrolman Harry Stoup fired several shots after him.

The other car was driven by R. J. Fitzgerald, of 312 Oneida street. He was taken from the wreckage, slightly injured, by Sergt. Charles McCann.

Rachel Crothers Hits Nail Square on the Head 'As Husbands Go'

By GEORGE SEIBEL

Let the aspiring playwright and the ambitious actor hie them to the Nixon Theater this week. Perhaps they should rather be told to stay away, for seeing "As Husbands Go" is apt to make them feel they can never catch up with Rachel Crothers, and watching that company play might lead them to despair of ever achieving such smoothness and naturalness. In many respects this comedy is the most satisfying thing of the season—a season that has brought two such gems as "Mrs. Moonlight" and "The Good Fairy."

George Seibel

Yet it would be too much to say that "As Husbands Go" is a great play. Mull over it and you will realize that Rachel Crothers has dimly remembered, perhaps unconsciously, two popular playwrights. There are traces of Bernard Shaw's "Candida," and echoes of Booth Tarkington's "Man From Home." The drunken scene at the close of the second act, which brings about the infatuated wife's disillusionment, is a modern variation of the ancient "god in the machine." What if that Dubuque household had been strictly temperance—what if there had been no fishing in Iowa?

After you have thought of all this, you must admit to yourself that Rachel Crothers has done eight or nine characters that are flesh and blood and has told her story with such deft technique that all theatricality disappears.

As for the acting, it has all the truth and all the restraint so fine a piece of stagecraft deserves.

PARIS TO DUBUQUE

After a prologue in Paris where two American women have become infatuated with two bohemian types the scene shifts to Dubuque where the one woman has a husband and the other woman a daughter.

How to tell the husband who loves her devotedly is the one woman's problem. How to win over her sophisticated daughter who thinks her mother's boy friend is "something the cat brought in" is the older woman's problem.

Gloria Holden does a marvelous picture of romantic emotionalism in quiet tones. Catharine Doucet as the frisky widow does the ridiculous in sublime fashion, even the hop-skip-jump inflections of her voice, lubricated by champagne or silly sentimentality have something at once irresistible and inimitable.

Two juvenile types, the worldly-wise Peggy and the awkward Jake are played by Marjorie Lytell and Robert Foulk right out of Booth Tarkington.

Then here's Roman Bohnen as the foppish fortune-hunter and Geoffrey Wardwell as the soulful poet. An ordinary playwright would have made these types into villains. Rachel Crothers knows that villains fill the cemeteries of Rouricault and Sardou. Her characters are human and these two actors play them humanly.

REAL SCOTCH ELOQUENCE

That scene after the fishing trip, when the soulful poet absorbs enough Scotch to make him superbly eloquent, is a fine argument against prohibition. Here whisky holds a family together and John Barleycorn becomes the guardian of the vestal fires. Wardwell is immense in this scene, aided and abetted by Jay Fassett as the husband.

That is the most difficult character of all to play well, but it would not be easy to improve upon Fassett's playing. He has sentimental lines, and they do not sound gooey. He has to show that he knows about his wife's infatuation, and he has to keep his knowledge hidden. He isn't provincial though he lives in Iowa, and he isn't a braggart though he is proud of being an American. No wonder the ebriate Briton recognized him as "a man's man." How well he plays together with Eddie Wragge as a real boy, another glimpse of Tarkington.

Real humor, true character, deft stagecraft, flesh-and-blood acting—that is "As Husbands Go"—a play you should not miss if you love dramatic art.

Actors Plan Yuletide Events

By HARRISON CARROLL

Copyright, 1931, by Premier Syndicate.

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 8.—Christmas customs of many nations will be celebrated by Hollywood's foreign colony this year.

Clive Brook will entertain a group of English friends with a midnight buffet supper on Noel eve. Eight singers have been engaged to render Christmas carols. There'll be a plum pudding made a month before serving.

After the Hungarian fashion, Paul Lukas will have a scanty but ceremonious meal on Xmas eve. This includes wine soup, grilled carp, walnut cake roll and apples. On Christmas Day, however, there'll be a big feast at noontime featuring pig soup with vinegar, roast duck, roast pig, sweet and sour red cabbage, fenk and fried noodles with jelly and walnuts.

PUT OUT THE SHOES

Because the French greet Christmas eve with gay parties, Maurice Chevalier will hold open house for his friends. If he had any children they would put their shoes on the doorstep instead of hanging up their stockings. Adults over there have to wait until New Year's eve to receive their gifts.

Following an old Spanish custom, Conchita Montenegro will attend the mass of the rooster at midnight Christmas Eve. Next day she'll sleep till noon (okay if you haven't any kids). It seems the Spanish are even more patient than the French about their presents. While getting them on Xmas, they don't open them till the feast of the king, on January 6.

EXTRA PRESENT

At the home of Ramon Novarro, Christmas Eve is an occasion for reverence. Gifts are exchanged, but they are placed around a carved image of the Christ child, instead of about a Christmas tree.

Jean Hersholt will entertain the Danish consul and many friends from his native land. They'll vie to see who gets the nut in the rice porridge, which entitled the lucky one to an extra present.

Folks are wondering whether the title of Frances Marion's new stage play, "The Lady is Tired," is not an unconscious confession by the famous writer. Free Store for Needy Open at Charleroi

CHARLEROI, Pa., Dec. 8.—(AP)—Officials of Charleroi's associated charities have hit upon a novel plan to facilitate distribution of food for the needy. They have established a "store" in the City Hall here and the store has all the equipment of a regular grocery establishment, except—there's no cash register.

The various articles are arranged on shelves and needy families may select from the assortment anything they desire, as long as their weekly order does not exceed $3.85.

'Blossom Time' in Alvin Pleases Admirers of Schubert Music

By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

"Blossom Time," the pretty operetta idealizing the youthful days of Franz Schubert, greatest of all song writers, came again to the Alvin last night, and, as usual, gave immeasurable pleasure to lovers of the beautiful melodies of Schubert, many of which have been adapted by Sigmund Romberg to the uses of this partly historical and partly fictional romance of the struggling existence of this genius of music. Adapted, however, with discretion and keen appreciation of the limitations of such a short work as "Blossom Time," which is said to include only 20 Shubertian themes selected from among the more than 600 works of this composer, who, like many others similarly inspired, was not appreciated fully in his own day.

"SONG OF LOVE" STIRS

"The Song of Love," leading motif of the operetta, based on an excerpt from the celebrated Unfinished Symphony, despite the numerous times it has been sung here on the frequent presentations of this popular operetta, which seems to have a quality as undying as the immortal melodies that give it such beauty, again fills the audience with emotions that are stirred only by the best among musical works. And it is sung with pretty effect by J. Charles Gilbert, as Schubert, and Kathryn Reece, as Mitzi, in an exceptionally diverting duet, and by Mr. Gilbert alone as a thrilling gesture of defeat in the game of love as the finale of the second act.

MITZI IS PLEASING

This Mitzi of Miss Reece is something of a revelation. She seems so thoroughly the charming personality that one would ascribe to the object of the affections of such a gentle character as the great composer, and she has such a voice as would be expected to charm his soul. She really is one of the nicest of the many Mitzis we have seen and heard in the many times the operetta has been heard here. Mr. Gilbert is excellently fitted for his part, too, but he is such a familiar figure that we present that as an excuse for giving him less extended attention.

CAST IS EXCELLENT

All in all, the company that is presenting "Blossom Time" again is comparable to any that has ever appeared here in this work, and very much better than some. It contains more than one familiar face, including that of Joseph F. Wilkins, the Baron Von Schober, whose vocal work is of outstanding merit among the many good things in the fine old play.

Another is that of Robert Lee Allen, the pudgy comic, whose Kranz, the court jeweler, is the cause of most of the laughter that lightens the sentimental structure of the piece. Manilla Powers, as Belle Bruna, is much admired for her vocal gifts and acting ability, her duet, "Let Me Awake," with Mr. Wilkins, being one of the applause periods of the production. Marie Starner and Marie Maher were delightful as Kitzi and Fritzi, respectively, the former earning a personal tribute of applause for a well-executed toe dance.

Even standing room was generously patronized at Syria Mosque last night when Lawrence Tibbett sang again for Pittsburgh. That the movies have aided his popularity goes without saying, but there were indications last night, unless the singer was indisposed, that they have not helped him as a great singing artist.

Mr. Lissfelt

Tibbett has one of the finest recital voices before the public at present, and a style that makes for excellent singing of songs. In the opera he fails a little into the background, but in concert he retains enough opera technique to magnify contrasts in his music, and, with the aid of his finely trained voice, to dramatize them more eloquently than most singers. Last night, as far as great singing is concerned, he might have omitted the first half of his program, for none of it was the Tibbett of his former appearance.

With the Prolog from "I Pagliacci" and its dull tempo he seemed to awake. Then came a Ballade of Loewe, "Edward," in the original Scotch text, as moving a scene and as fine an example of genre music as we have had in Syria Mosque for many a night. All his powers of tonal coloring, of characterization, his restraint in climax made this song unforgetable. There followed two Negro songs of Jacques Wolfe, "Shortnin' Bread" and "Glory Road," in Tibbett's best humor.

Encore after encore came then to the insatiable audience—Wille's "Lord, I Want to Be Like Jesus," Moussorgsky's "Flea" (a brilliant interpretation), excepts from the "Rogue Song" and the "Prodigal," and Ernest Torrance's "Smilin' Kitty O'Day." We are quite in agreement with Tibbett when he makes his programs that the audience must be pleased and that he prefers to sing to crowded houses; but does he not owe something to himself as a great artist to give a little better than last night?

Stewart Wille played most musical accompaniments throughout the evening and contributed a group of piano numbers which were above the average solo playing of accompanists. As encore he gave a Bach Chorale arranged by that sincere English musician, Myra Hess.

In Heidelberg Love Still Is King

By MILDRED FILLMORE

That garden city of student romance, Old Heidelberg, is the scene of the German picture at the Avenue Cinema this week. It is all about an American girl who goes there to finish her studies, and learns the lesson of love. It is filled with student songs and foaming steins, and there are even scenes showing just how a student duel or "Mensur" is conducted. The camera work on the terraces of the glorious ruined castle destroyed by the French in one of their invasions, is particularly fine.

But the comic American in "Ein Burschenlied aus Heidelberg (A Student Song from Heidelberg) represents a curious idea about American life and laws. He follows the young girl from New York to Heidelberg in order to collect several hundred thousand dollars inheritance tax. That's the German idea of American government efficiency. But he furnishes a most laughable series of episodes to satirize German red-tape when he tries to learn the girl's address.

Betty Bird and Willy Forst are the lovers in this romantic picture of student life in the lovely old university town. It's a joy if you've been to Heidelberg and a revelation if you haven't. The short nature study films in the program are also worth while.

Buc Coaches Old Mates. • Tulane Faces Big Loss.
Carlson Leads Usilton. Players, Coach Differ

BATTERY OF 18 YEARS AGO REUNITED

THE SIGNING OF Grover Hartley as Pirate coach for next season means the reunion of old battery mates here in similar roles. For it was in the pitching days of the other Buccaneer coach, Otis Crandall, that Hartley broke into the majors as a catcher, and the two worked together for three years as Giants under John McGraw. Crandall joined the New York club in 1908, and remained on the roster six seasons. Hartley became a Giant in 1911 and stayed with the club three years.

Grover Hartley

Though the bulk of the backstopping work for the McGrawites in those days was done by Chief Meyers, Art Wilson and Larry McLean, Hartley saw his share of service behind the bat, and often supported Crandall, as well as other star Giant flingers of that period, including Christy Mathewson, George Wiltse, Leon Ames, Bugs Raymond, Rube Marquard, Jeff Tesreau, Al Demaree, Art Fromme and Ferd Schupp. Crandall and Hartley left the New York club at the same time following the 1913 season, and now after 18 years they are brought together again.

THERE IS NOTHING to become excited about in the reports of Manager Gibson's first activities in the player market as Pirate skipper. Ben Sankey merely goes to the Missions until he is needed, there was no room in the local catching department for Bill Steinecke and Charles Taylor, the new pitchers, is just a college prospect.

The big trading stuff, if there is to be any, may start to pop today or tomorrow when the managers of all the other clubs will be on the ground in Chicago and Gibson will be able to learn definitely just what players he can get for Adam Comorosky and George Grantham. One report has it that the Pittsburgh club has obtained waivers on Pitcher Steve Sundra.

WITH PITT AND Temple meeting in the Stadium Saturday night as the feature attraction in the Annual Basketball Carnival sponsored by the Universities of Pittsburgh, two of the foremost coaches in the East will be meeting for the third time.

Jimmy Usilton, Owl mentor, and Dr. H. C. Carlson, of Pitt, have tangled twice in the last three years, and on both occasions the Panthers emerged the victors. Usilton has a good record at Temple. In his five seasons there the Owls have won 82 games while losing 21. Carlson's record for the same years is 91 won and 18 lost.

SEVEN OF CARLSON'S 18 defeats in 109 games came during 1926-27, the season before Charley Hyatt inaugurated the golden age of Pitt basketball. The Clinic, which is expected to attract more than 400 college and high school coaches and players, has been a jinx to two big college teams which have tried it in recent years. Pitt lost to Western Reserve in the Clinic game last season, and a week later won over Ohio State in the feature event of the Buckeyes' annual college and high school get-together. Danger now threatens again. Temple is so "hard up" for material that Usilton may have to put a couple of regulars on the bench to make room for stars from an undefeated freshman team.

Jerry Dalrymple

The chances of the Tulane team for victory over Southern California in the Rose Bowl gridiron classic on New Year's Day will be materially lessened if the Southerners are compelled to go into the game without the services of their captain and two-time all-America end, Jerry Dalrymple.

Dalrymple, taken to a hospital in New Orleans on account of a kidney ailment resulting from an injury suffered in Saturday's game against Washington State, is rated the best wingman in the country, though of the unorthodox type like Hube Wagner, Pitt star of yesteryear. His playing ability has been a tremendous factor in the success of Tulane, not to mention the value of his leadership.

THOUGH THE INVITATION to Tulane to meet Southern California in the New Year's Day classic was not extended until Saturday night, the Trojans appear to have been in no doubt as to the identity of the team that would be selected to meet them.

For it develops that Howard Jones sent not only Aubrey Devine, his star scout, but also Francis Tappan, freshman coach, to New Orleans to learn all they could about Tulane's system in the game with Washington State. It was Devine who scouted Notre Dame for the Trojans.

THE GENERAL OPINION in football circles outside the South is that Tulane's record for the season does not compare with that of Southern California. Georgia, Vanderbilt and Washington State were about the only strong teams defeated by Tulane, the other victories having been scored over Mississippi, Texas Aggies, Spring Hall, Georgia Tech, Mississippi Aggies, Alabama Poly, Sewanee, Louisiana State and Washington State. The Trojans, on the other hand, after losing to St. Mary's, defeated Oregon State, Washington State, Oregon, California, Stanford, Montana, Notre Dame and Washington. However, Dan McGugin, Vanderbilt coach, insists that Tulane has "one of the country's great all-time elevens." He adds that the New Orleans team has "magnificent personnel, a great line, brilliant ends, and six or seven of the finest backs in the game, as well as perfection of detail and precision in attack."

IN THE SELECTION of Notre Dame's all-opponents team there is a difference of opinion between Coach Hunk Anderson and the Notre Dame players on four of the 11 positions. The choices of Anderson and the other coaches were named in the Sun-Telegraph yesterday, and now comes the announcement of the team picked by the Irish gridders themselves from among the players they faced.

Pitt loses a line choice in one direction, but gets it back in another. Jess Quatse, at tackle, was the Panther forward picked by Anderson, but the Notre Dame players award that tackle berth to Price, of Army, instead of Quatse, and then honor a Pitt lineman elsewhere by pronouncing Ralph Daugherty the best center they played against, instead of Evans, of Army, named by Anderson.

The Panthers lose a backfield appointment on the players' list and therefore get only one place on the team, whereas Anderson gave them two positions. Anderson picked Johnny Luch at fullback with Shaver, of Southern California, at quarterback and Rentner of Southern California and Stecker, of Army at the halves.

The Notre Dame players omit Luch from their lineup, put Shaver at fullback and name Monier, of Southern California, for quarterback. The fourth selection on which they differ with Anderson is that of King of Army at end, where Anderson chose Arbelbide, of Southern California.

Ralph Daugherty

IRISH COACHES AND players agree on Briley, of Drake, at the other end; Riley, of Northwestern, at the other tackle; Baker, of Southern California, and Underwood, of Navy, at guard, in addition to Rentner, Shaver and Stecker in the backfield. Among the South Bend players, the selection of Briley, Baker, Rentner and Stecker was practically unanimous, and Daugherty was far ahead of the field at center. Honorable mention was voted to Jim MacMurdo, and Jess Quatse, of Pitt, and Morell at tackles; Trice at guard, and Luch, Reider and Hoyle, of Pitt, Kasel, of Carnegie Tech, and Perina, Olson, Salushi, Pinckert, Opasik and Lansdrud in the backfield.

Mike Uralli one-time schoolboy champion of Washington and Donora, Pa., better known to the ring as Battling Glass, came through in his first big test last night literally mopping Sammy Dorfman of New York in the 10-round main bout at Motor Square Garden to the hilarious delight of a good-sized crowd.

What a man! the crowd was roaring as Uralli, the best club fighter in these parts, slapped and cuffed and punched and stabbed and swung and battered Dorfman from pillar to post, winning every round but the first, which was even and the sixth and seventh, in which he showed down a bit and covered, only to come back and resume control of the situation over the remainder of the route after catching his second wind.

DORFMAN AT SEA

Dorfman, a seasoned lightweight who had beaten Ernie Brandon, Johnny Jadick and Ray Collins in previous showings here, was all at sea against this fistic phenomenon. If they have anything like Mike Uralli in New York, Dorfman certainly never came in contact with the gentleman. Sammy was cool enough under the fire of Glass's endless rushes, and had a plan of battle mapped out to which he stuck, the same being the bombardment of the body with short-arm punches at close quarters, but he failed to get the desired results and was made to look bad by his most unorthodox opponent, who missed possibly a thousand punches in the fight but connected with 2,000 or more to completely take away the play from the highly-touted visitor.

At the finish the decision was unanimous and the fans gave Mike Uralli and the Washington alley brand of lumping a big hand whereupon he hopped happily over the top rope and took it on the run for the dressing room. It was the most important win of his career and may lead to a chance to break into Dorfman's native New York, where the battler would panic them with his style of milling, which isn't boxing nor yet fighting, but can be classified only as the act of mobbing the party of the second part.

EVEN MAYHEM CHARGED

Dorfman even accused Glass of biting him on the back of the neck during a clinch in the sixth round and Referee Al Grayber warned the Battler that the rules consider mayhem a foul and there was no further complaint on this score. Glass, however, repeatedly failed to hear the bell and continued to fight on at the finish of almost every round, the referee taking one of his punches as he stepped between them at the close of the sixth.

On the whole it was a rip-roaring affair with Dorfman not quite able to understand whether he was supposed to be in a fight or just trying to make his way out of a cyclone of leather. Glass scaled 124 pounds and Dorfman was a quarter-pound heavier at 3 p. m.

Daily Double Pays $1,445.40 For $2 Ticket

NEW ORLEANS, Dec. 8.—(AP.)—Long shot players had their day at Jefferson Park yesterday, when four rank outsiders passed the judges' stand in front of their respective fields.

J. Denquelo's Rubbernerk led the parade of long shots, winning the sixth race over a mile and 70 yards and paying $165.50 for a $2 mutuel ticket. M. Deatherage's Hazel Denson spread-eagled her field in the third and returned $147.60 for a similar priced ticket.

The Elktonia Stable's Forget Not earned a nose decision in the opener to pay off at $95.60 for $2, while E. E. Major's Robina Seth captured the closing event at odds of 26 to 1.

As the result of Hazel Denson's victory and the triumph of Deceptive, which paid $11.40, the Daily Double paid its largest dividend of the meeting, $1,445.40 for a $2 ticket. Only one man held a ticket on the winning combination.

EXPLANATIONS OF RIPLEY'S CARTOONS OF YESTERDAY: THE 11-YEAR-OLD MITTENS—William Boughton, crossing flagman of the Illinois Central System at Mineonk, Ill., has a pair of knitted woolen mittens that, according to their owners reasonable belief, hold a world record for wearing quality. They now are 11 years old and still serviceable and in use every cold day. They were knitted for him in 1887 by Mrs. Finchin, of Hudson, Ill., with heavy yarn homespun with her own hands. LIEUT. FRANK C. CROWLEY—In aviation circles, Lieut. Crowley is known as a very colorful and cautious flyer and one of the best pilots in the country. He has flown more than 5,000 hours without a major accident. During the war he received his training at Selfridge Field, Mich., in the First Pursuit Group, and since that time he has taken a very active part in the speedy development of aviation. At the time Col. Lindbergh made his tour of the United States, after his famous non-stop flight to Paris, Crowley was one of the escorting pilots of the tour. He now is in private flying service in Boston.

The Schneiders are to be at home against Geneva College Thursday night at Social Hall floor, Lindsay, Montgomery and Slim Ransom, former Schneider players, will accompany the Covenanters here.

Two over-time league games were staged last night. Rankin and Wilmerding played two extra stanzas before the former won by a 27-26 margin in the County Amateur League. The Morrys and Knickerbockers had to go one extra frame in the West Penn League before the Morrys won, 21-25.

Derry Township Quits W. P. I. A. L.

GREENSBURG, Pa., Dec. 8.—Derry Township High School has withdrawn from Section XII, W. P. I. A. L. basketball competition, R. M. Coulter, principal, announced here today. The action, Coulter said, came after the township school was placed in a section consisting of opponents, some of whom were 54 miles distant.

Derry Township follows in the footsteps of Jeannette and Norwin High Schools which dropped from their section last week due to long trips and lack of rivalry with opponents.

The township, however, expects to retain Hurst, East Huntingdon and Youngwood, old rivals on its schedule, although the games will not count as league contests.

BLITMAN LOSES BOND

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 8.—(AP.)—Jimmy Blitman, ring sensation of Chicago's underworld, becomes a fugitive from justice today, following his failure to appear in court in an automobile accident case yesterday. A bench warrant was issued for him by Judge Frank Smith and his bond of $500, offered cash, not when he failed to appear. Blitman, who is only 21, admitted driving the car involved in the accident, but said it had been stolen from in front of his home and later returned after the collision.

The All-Americana

By JESS CARVER

OUR TEAM:

Center—Carnera.

Quarterback—The guy who called the signal that scored the touchdown for Hobart against Rochester and got the Hobart students out of the bushes by Christmas.

Halfbacks—Marchy Schwartz and Dizzy Dean.

Fullback—Lefty O'Doul.

After due deliberation and frequent references to such tomes as Boswell's Life of Johnson, Poor Richard's Almanac and the collected issues of the Police Gazette for 1897, I finally have selected my all-America team for 1931.

Picking all-star teams is a tough business. If you are right you are wrong, and if you are wrong you aren't right. The skold, or Scandinavian method of drawing 'em out of a hat probably was the best, but when the football racket became tougher and the boys started traveling all over the country and seeing so many good players that their heads swam for weeks, and against the current, too, they became experts and started to jabber about offensive ends and defensive ends; blocking backs and running backs; triple threats, double threats and blackhand threats; informative bids and defensive bids and four no-trump.

THE BACKFIELD

My backfield, as I see it, would be a thing of beauty and a wonder to behold. With Marchy Schwartz doing most of the ball-lugging, Dizzy Dean and Lefty O'Doul would have more time to spend chattering informally with the folks in the stands. In case Marchy should be tumbled for a loss now and then, Dean could get off a wise one, challenge Carnera to a fight or turn some other trick to take the cash customers' minds off the loss.

With right-handed passers on the other club, O'Doul, of course, would be very valuable, but if Mike Sebastian, of Pitt, who flings 'em with his portside paw, happened to be on the other team, he'd have Lefty dizzy, as dizzy as Mister Dean.

With such minds in there as Dean and O'Doul, it wouldn't be necessary to have much of a quarterback, and, besides, whoever the gent was that called that touchdown play for good old Hobart against Rochester and won the ball game, thereby enabling the Hobart students to shave for the first time in months, not only did Hobart a favor, but aided in beating the depression by improving the razor blade industry.

Naturally I'd have O'Doul lead the interference with a baseball bat. In the event the going became too rough, and my first team quarterback felt the urge to get back to Hobart's halls, I'd use Alabama Pitts. Sing Sing's favorite son. If Alabam' should get away for a touchdown, and keep on running after he crossed the goal line, he'd be penalized about 15 years.

QUATSE'S THE LINE

Kopcsak played enough football against Pitt to do for a dozen seasons. With Harpo or Groucho working with him, what a combination they'd have. Tch, tch; It would be silly to try to gain around Kopcsak, and you'd be silly by the time you finished laughing at a Marx.

Quatse and the right (or the

RUDOLPH KEEPS CUE LEAD

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 8.—(AP.)—Edwin Rudolph, of Cleveland, defending champion, retained his hold on first place in the world championship pocket billiard tournament by defeating Al Miller, of Racine, Wis., 125 to 60, last night. Rudolph won in eight innings.

Rudolph's high run was 70, scored in the fourth inning. Miller's high run was 16.

Frank Taberski, of Schenectady, N. Y., defeated Marcel Camp, of Detroit, 125 to 101, in 16 innings. The victory tied him with George Kelly, of Philadelphia, for third place.

Taberski's high run was 63, which equaled his best mark of the meet. Camp set a new high-run mark in this tournament for himself with 48.

Spencer Livsey, Los Angeles, defeated Robert Lindblom, Seattle, 125 to 104, in 44 innings. Livsey had a high run of 22 and Lindblom's high was 23.

Onofrio Lauri, of Brooklyn, defeated Any Ponzi, of Philadelphia, 125 to 95, in 18 innings. Lauri had two high runs of 36, the second one unfinished. Ponzi's best run was 28.

Lauri's victory, which tied him with Ponzi for fourth place in the tournament, gives him a chance at least to equal his record of the past two tournaments, in which he finished fourth. He and Ponzi each have won three games and lost two in the present meet.

DEMPSEY BOXES FOUR

TOM, KING MATCHED

SANKEY SENT WEST; COLLEGE STAR SIGNED

CHICAGO, Dec. 8.—Infielder Ben Sankey and Catcher William Steinecke have been released, and Charles Taylor, of Huron, Tenn., a former University of Tennessee pitching ace, has been signed, the new Pirate manager, George Gibson, announced during the course of his negotiations for material in conjunction with his attending the major league confabs in progress here.

The rookie is a right-hander and is sufficiently fast, it is reported, to warrant a tryout with the Pittsburgh club. It is likely he will be sent to a farm for seasoning.

SANKEY GOES TO COAST

The San Francisco Missions, piloted by Joe Devine, former Corsair coach, have purchased the services of Sankey, and it is expected he will fit in nicely with the coast club's infield combination. The Missions have released Joe Bearwald, also a shortstop.

Sankey came to the Pittsburgh club from Selma, in the Southeastern League, late in the 1928 season, was farmed out to Wichita, and later turned over to Bridgeport. It is expected the return of Sankey to the Pirates, if he develops rapidly, can be arranged with little trouble, because of the friendly feeling existant between the Bucs and the Missions.

Steinecke was released outright to the Fort Worth club, of the Texas League. He came to the Pirates last summer after a most consistent hitting year with Binghamton, in the New York-Pennsylvania circuit. Although his hitting was fine, his catching had not developed as much as had been anticipated.

BENSWANGER CONFERS

In the absence of Owner Barney Dreyfuss, confined to his home in Pittsburgh with a severe cold, Treasurer William E. Benswanger represented Pittsburgh at a conference called by President John A. Heydler, of the National League, for the purpose of formulating plans for introducing several important problems today when the annual meeting opens.

Secretary Samuel E. Watters was due this morning.

Yesterday a committee on telegraph, telephone and radio secretly discussed matters with Heydler. One telegraph company has an exclusive contract to handle all business at the ball parks, while a rival concern has applied for a share of the service. Various complaints concerning broadcasting of the games also are to be brought up today.

The leagues likely will make some recommendations when the joint meeting takes place Thursday.

The American League magnates conferred with President Harridge, but no committee meetings were regarded necessary.

ROONEYS PLAY IN BENEFIT

By TOM BIRKS

Sandlot football fans will have a couple of real games to become enthused over this weekend. On Saturday, the finale of the Lightweight Gridiron Conference is to be staged. This game will feature Westinghouse Alumni and the Rox Rangers, and a torrid battle is expected.

On Sunday, a big charity game is slated at West View Park, featuring the James P. Rooneys, West Penn Conference champions, opposed to an all-star team selected from the other clubs in the big loop.

Manager Art Rooney is to be congratulated upon his stand in throwing his unbeaten champions into the ring against this all-star aggregation—for it is some team!

The officials who are to handle the game are Bill Freizel, referee; Leo Mackey, umpire; Carl Rebele, linesman, and Heinie Boll, field judge.

Stanley Berkman, Burns' popular quarterback, will captain the all-star team. The makeup of the starting lineup will not be known until the teams take the field.

Geneva Is Eager To Keep Harpster

Students and followers of the Geneva College football team eagerly are awaiting the action of the Covenanter officials in regard to the coaching situation. Howard Harpster, former all-America quarterback at Carnegie Tech and later a coach at Shady Side Academy, has reached the end of his contract.

Harpster is extremely popular at Geneva and an effort will be made to have him accept another contract. There have been reports that Harpster is considering a coaching position offering better and wider opportunities. Don Lovewell, a former teammate, who served as assistant coach, likewise is unsigned for next season.

JACKETS FACE TEST IN WINDSOR TONIGHT

LOCAL SKATERS THIRD IN TEAM PENALTIES

By CARL W. SHATTO

The Yellow Jackets probably will find the Windsor Bulldogs in a rather savage mood when they clash with the International Hockey League champions at Windsor tonight.

After getting away to a fair start, the Bulldogs have dropped three decisions in their last four battles. The most decisive setback they have suffered this season was handed them here last Thursday, when they were overwhelmed, 5-0, and they probably would not be averse to making their leading tormentors their victims in getting back into their victory stride.

Despite the fact that their brows are adorned with league championship garlands, the Windsorites are so deeply entrenched in the second division that they don't figure to move up into the top flight for another fortnight, even if everything goes well with them and their plans.

JACKETS CONFIDENT

The Jackets aren't particularly concerned about the Bulldogs' frame of mind. They ran into the Bisons in Buffalo Saturday when the league leaders were feeling particularly rough and tough and came out of the fierce battle with a tie, and Windsor doesn't figure to fare any better, if as well.

An abundance of Pittsburgh penalties cost the Reidmen a win over Buffalo. The locals had men in the penalty box during 22 minutes (more than one full period) of the fray, and the Bison goal was registered when two Jackets were in the box.

Cleveland mets Buffalo tonight, and to Pittsburgh fans it matters little which team wins. A Buffalo victory will give the locals a chance to get back into second place, and a Cleveland triumph will give the Reidmen an opportunity to move up to within one point of the league lead.

Despite the rare assortment of penalties handed them in Buffalo, the Jackets this season are receiving better treatment at the hands of officials than they did last year, when they paced the loop in the matter of spending time in the box. Official records recently released show Cleveland leading in penalties with a total of 115 minutes, Detroit second with 89 minutes and Pittsburgh third with 69 minutes.

Other clubs have drawn cooler sentences as follows: Buffalo, 64 minutes; Windsor, 62 minutes; Syracuse, 58 minutes, and London, 55 minutes.

NEW RECORD LIKELY

Last season the Jackets also led the league in the number of tie games when they came up with nine deadlocks in 48 starts. In nine games in the new race they have annexed five ties, indicating that a new record in this direction is likely to be established.

The fact that picking up 11 points in nine starts is good enough to keep the Jackets up near the top testifies to the even balance of the league. Last season they picked up 51 points in 48 games (about the same pace) and had plenty of trouble finishing in the fourth notch.

MONTREAL, Dec. 8.—R. J. (Hooley) Smith, right winger of Montreal Maroons, leads all the scorers in both sections of the National Hockey League, statistics released by President Frank Calder, of the N. H. L. reveal. 'KEED' SAILS FOR CUBA

NEW YORK, Dec. 8.—(INS.)—Kid Chocolate, flashy Cuban boxer, and his manager were on the high seas today bound for his native land.

The dapper fighter and Louis Gutierez, his manager, were "guests" of the Cuban Consul, and under this unusual status avoided facing legal action which had been started to force his return to Cuba and face a serious charge.

Chocolate last Thursday was arraigned before the United States Commissioner here and ordered deported to Cuba to face the charge. An appeal was being taken when the arrangement to have Chocolate make the journey as the guest of the Cuban Consul was arrived at.

WHEELING, W. Va., Dec. 8.—(AP.)—Pounding away with both gloves, Midget Mike O'Dowd, Columbus, O., battered Lou Saunders, Pittsburgh, all over the ring for five rounds and knocked him out in the sixth last night. The bout was scheduled for 10 rounds. Both boys weighed in at 130.

CALLS FOOTBALL 'MURDER'

NEW YORK, Dec. 8.—Classifying collegiate football as murder, The Spectator, Columbia University undergraduate newspaper, yesterday renewed its editorial attack upon the game.

"Perhaps the football rules committee could devise methods of improving the game from the standpoint of the physical welfare of the players," the editorial said, "but, since the first consideration these days is the enjoyment of the spectators, the game will probably not undergo any radical revision for many a year.

"Reasons will be given, 'The injuries would not occur if the game were played correctly,' some commentators will declare.

"'The number of men killed in football is far less than the number of men shot each year by gangsters,' another group will declare.

"The presence of a little danger in the game of football only makes it worth while," sports writers will say.

"A few utterly queer individuals or organizations, such as a spectator, however, will go so far as to utter words which might be considered as opposing the annual slaughter. If men wish to commit suicide, we suppose it's their business. But when a crowd of football coaches and other phenomena of the sport arrange things so nicely for the mobs in the stands that the players become human sacrifices, the word 'murder' creeps into the picture and stays there in spite of all the efforts of thousands of men who live by, for and with football."

HONGKONG, Dec. 8.—(AP.)—Helen Wills Moody, world woman tennis champion, was beaten here today, 11-9, in an exhibition set against E. C. Fincher, the colony's outstanding man player.

Weather conditions were unfavorable, an almost continuous drizzle falling during the play. The match was exciting, however, the score being repeatedly deuced until it stood at 7-7. After that Mrs. Moody seemed to tire.

Mrs. Moody, who has been making a two-month tour of the Far East, contracted a severe cold shortly after her arrival in China.

MILLION RELIEF GRID MARK ASSURED

NEW YORK, Dec. 8.—(AP.)—The $1,000,000 mark in charity football gate receipts will be touched this week, spokesmen for the President's committee on mobilization of unemployment relief here disclosed.

This includes the assurance of a "gate" of at least $400,000 for the year's greatest charity spectacle, the Army-Navy classic, Saturday, in the Yankee Stadium. If it is a complete sellout, the service battle may draw close to $450,000.

The President's committee anticipates the final tabulation on football's contribution to charity will reach $1,500,000 with reports still to be made and games to be played, including the Rose Bowl classic New Year's Day between Southern California and Tulane.

The charity funds were given a big increase Saturday when receipts reached approximately $66,500 from Tennessee's victory over New York University, and the Carnegie Tech-Duquesne tie netted $30,000. The total for the day was about $220,000.

necessary count, the fight ending with three seconds to go in the second round of the scheduled eight-round semi-final. Thomas, weighing 120¼ against 117, led all of the way and it was only a question of how long it would take him to tag his man with the sleep producer.

Jackie Wilson, Negro, of the East End, 125½, boxing in fine style, easily bested rugged Steve Senich, of Homestead, 128, all of the way in the six-round second bout.

The opener was a travesty on the so-called art of self-defense, with Carl Montebano, of Braddock, 169, and Tod Murphy, of McKeesport, 160½, wrestling and stumbling all around the ring in clumsy fashion, with the rough Montebano the winner.

NEXT SHOW IN DOUBT

Jack Henderson alternated with Al Grayber as referee. Frank Brown and Freddie Lux were the judges, Tommy Grant and Norman Borland the timers and Dr. McMeans the commission physician. Bill Schuster was the announcer.

No show was announced for next week, but it is understood the club is trying to put across a match between Willie Davies, of Charleroi, and Mose Butch, of Oakland, for the alleged local bantamweight championship.

Between Rounds

Bill Heckman has offered the services of Jimmy Moore, Johnny Haggerty and Peter Jahn for the benefit show for the needy of the Twelfth Ward at Motor Square Garden Friday night.

Hans Schonrath, of Germany, rated second only to Max Schmeling in his homeland, is in Philadelphia under the management of Joe Smith, pilot of Tommy Loughran, and will make his American bow as soon as he becomes acclimated.

The Al Singer-Battling Battalino bout in New York Friday night will be a 10-rounder and not a 15-round melee. Singer originally was matched with Kid Chocolate over the longer distance, but when Battalino was substituted for the Kred the route was cut.

Franta Nekoley, Czechslovakian welterweight, will box Andy Savoia in the 10-round semi-final of a Singer show, to be staged for the benefit of the New York American (Hearst) Christmas fund. Freddie Miller and Lew Feldman are in an eight-round battle.

Kenny Davis and Harry Morris box for the seventh time in a six-round preliminary.

Buck McTiernan had to turn down an offer to box Ray Trambitz at Indianapolis tonight because he has not been in training. The match may be made for a later date.

Marty McHale, of McKeesport, and Sid Solko, of Pittsburgh, have been matched to box the 10-round main bout in Mc-Keesport Thursday night of next week. The semi-finals and finals of the West Penn amateur championships are slated there this Thursday.

PREAKNESS SET FOR MAY 14

BALTIMORE, Dec. 8.—(AP.)—The $50,000 Preakness, richest stake in Maryland racing, will be run Saturday, May 14, the last day of the spring meet at Pimlico, directors of the Maryland Jockey Club have decided. The meet opens May 2.

The plan is a departure from a custom that has prevailed for years. Last year, the Preakness was run the first Saturday of the Pimlico meet, but prior to that the race was scheduled earlier in the opening week of the meet.

It was decided to change the name of the Pimlico Oaks, a $3,000 race for 3-year-old fillies, to Lady Baltimore. The race will be run May 5, the fourth day of the meet.

left. I don't care' side of the Navy line would go great defensively. If the Navy line became tired, then Quatse could play both sides for a while.

Mike Ferrera ought to team up well at a guard, if the man from Sing Sing were permitted to bring along his gun. If he happened to leave it at home, then Mike would not have exactly a picnic in there.

Carnera would be a swell center, because he's had plenty of experience being in the middle.

This will have to stop now, because Harry Keck is after me to help him select his all-America team. His club will not be as good as mine because I've picked mine first and rounded up all the good players, but if he thinks it is, we'll play him for charity any time if he'll go for eight-minute quarters, or five quarters for a dollar.

Jake Pitler Signs As Hazleton Manager

HAZLETON, Pa., Dec. 8.—Jake Pitler, of Oil City, Pa., has been signed to succeed Hubert Fitzgerald as manager of the Hazleton Club, of the New York-Pennsylvania League, it was announced today. Fitzgerald is a Pittsburgher.

Jake Pitler is one of the most prominent of the Pittsburgh boys who have become famous in baseball. Something like 15 years ago Jake, starring at second base for Chattanooga, of the Southern Association, was purchased by the Pirates. Several years later the Buccos sold him to Toledo, but Jake preferred to jump to the Franklin-Oil City circuit, and for this move he was banned from organized baseball, but later he was reinstated to become manager of Elmira, of the New York-Pennsylvania League. Throughout his long career, the Pittsburgh athlete has been regarded as a smart and resourceful performer.

COACH FAVORS ELEVATED TEE ON KICKOFF

NEW YORK, Dec. 8.—(AP.)—John P. (Chick) Meehan, president of the American Football Coaches Association, linked the de-emphasizing of football yesterday to the toll of 40 lives, taken on gridirons all over the country this fall.

Football he believes can get along just as well without the kickoffs that permit a receiving eleven to form the dangerous "wedge" formation ahead of the player returning the ball. He is in favor of the elevated tee or any other modification that might remove some of the hazards of the sport. But he would like, too, to bring out further facts.

"Elimination of spring practice in some schools, late starting in others, in fact, all this de-emphasizing of football, have contributed largely to the accidents this fall," said Meehan. "The result is a situation terribly unfair to the boys themselves.

TOO LITTLE PRACTICE

"After the season always comes the agitation to take away the overemphasis from football. Elimination of spring practice is a favorite cure-all. Late starting of practice in the fall is another.

"Now spring practice is just a lot of fun. The coaches and the players fool around a great deal. They work only on fundamentals, tackling and blocking. There is no pressure. If a player is hurt he can rest. There is no rushing him to doctors, spraying him with lights and rays to get him ready for a big game on Saturday.

The fact that most of the fatalities and serious injuries this fall happened in sandlot games among amateurs only proves that the boys who play football in colleges need more, not less training and drilling in fundamentals. Rarely is a player hurt if he tackles and blocks properly. It is only when he is unschooled in these fundamentals or too impetuous that he tackles out of position, blocks out of position, and lays himself open to violent injury.

UNFAIR TO PLAYERS

"What happens to these same boys who have had no spring practice and who start late when the fall rolls around? They play the same hard schedules. They go into games just as hysterical, just as desperate to win as if they had the long drills in fundamentals. They play just as hard, but without the proper background of conditioning and teaching.

"That is absolutely unfair to the boys. De-emphasis has been accomplished at the cost of lives and severe injuries."

EVENING SUN-TELEGRAPH MARKETS

Stocks Recede | Local Market Steady

MARKET TURNS DOWN AFTER ADVANCING

Stocks Recede Slowly in Moderate Trading Volume; Steel and Rails Decline

NEW YORK, Dec. 8.—(AP.)—Securities markets derived but momentary stimulus today from the favorable decision of the Interstate Commerce Commission on the increased freight rate plan.

Both stocks and bonds bulged immediately at the outset of trading in a combination of adverse dividend announcements, a minor stock exchange suspension and tax selling, sent stocks into a slow decline as the session wore on. Trading was in moderate volume.

Selling started in the 2500 shares Borden losing more than 3 points. Rails soon joined the movement, New York Central and New Haven losing about as much. Among issues selling off a point or two were United States Steel, American Can, American Telephone, Bethlehem, American Water Works, Southern Pacific, Union Pacific, Santa Fe and others. Homestake Mining, which has had a sweeping advance in recent weeks, sold off 8 points. International Salt was also a weak specialty, losing more than 5.

The railroad dividend omissions—New Haven's and Colorado and Southern's—had been widely expected, so had little more than an adverse effect upon market psychology.

The fact that the New Haven dividend omission had been anticipated in financial quarters was reflected in the action of Pennsylvania Railroad stock, which was but slightly depressed, although Pennsylvania has a substantial interest in New Haven.

The suspension of Palmer & Co. presumably caused some liquidation of loans, but was regarded as having but a momentary effect upon the market in view of the limited character of the firm's activity.

The Interstate Commerce Commission decision, permitting the proposed freight rate increases to go into effect under the pooling plan projected by the railroad executives, under which loans rather than gifts will be made to needy carriers, was also too widely expected to have much effect upon the market. Railroad financiers are convinced that the higher rates alone will fail to provide adequate relief.

COTTON STEADY AT ADVANCE

NEW YORK, Dec. 8.—Cotton opened steady today, 1 point higher to 3 points lower. Orders were equally divided and trading was quiet. January sold up to 6.02.

Brokers who frequently act for co-operative interests were among the early sellers. The Liverpool market made rather an irregular showing with the late months there now selling at discounts. Private cables reported hedging absorbed by continental buying with general business quiet pending the bureau and said there were moderate sales of cotton cloths to the British home trade and the Argentine.

The market held steady before the government report was issued, with January selling up to 6.04 and May to 6.40. Prices were within 2 or 3 points of this level when trading was suspended to receive the figures which placed the indicated production at 16,918,000 bales, or well below the average expectation. This failed to stimulate aggressive buying when business was resumed, but there was covering and scattering demand which sent the price of January up to 6.14 and May to 6.50 or about 12 to 13 points net higher and prices were steady at midday. Ginnings of 15,023,451 bales were reported prior to December 1.

LIVERPOOL, Dec. 8.—Spot quiet; prices 1 to 11 points higher. Quotations in pence: American strict good middling, 5.99; good middling, 5.59; strict middling, 5.44; middling, 5.34; strict low middling, 5.29; low middling, 5.19; strict good ordinary, 4.99; good ordinary, 4.69. Receipts, 26,000 bales; American, 24,600 bales. Futures closed steady: December, 5.07; January, 5.06; March, 5.03; May, 5.03; July, 5.03; October, 5.07; December, 5.10.

Dickinson Predicts Shortage of Homes

"A shortage of modern homes is developing similar to that of post-war days. Building authorities are looking with hope and a degree of confidence toward the new year."

NEW YORK CURB MARKET

NEW YORK, Dec. 8.—Trading on the curb dragged at times colorless during the greater part of today's session. Steadiness in the first two hours gave way to some easiness after noon when the New Haven dividend omission was announced.

Many Readers Condemn Rail Commissioners

By B. C. FORBES

PUBLIC OPINION as reflected by communications to this column is aroused as never before against two American bodies, the Interstate Commerce Commission and the New York Stock Exchange.

Mr. Forbes

Admittedly the Stock Exchange is not a perfect institution, but a little fair consideration would help it improve current conditions and future prospects.

Short-selling has already been discussed here. How do the people feel regarding the Interstate Commerce Commission?

Let the public speak for themselves:

Writes a Washington, D. C. bank president:

"The commission's indifference to the interest of the railroad operators and their continuous playing up to the farmer and to organized labor is one of the worst sore spots in this country."

A RAILWAY supplies man writes, in part:

"I am in hearty sympathy with what you have written regarding the commission, for I have seen the cruel results of the necessity of 'laying off' men by the railroads. I have had men of 25 years' service in minor positions come into my office in despair, having given their best years of service and loyalty to their road only to be forced out. This, I sincerely believe, is caused by the commission's restrictions."

"I have been ready and willing to accept a reduction in wages since early in 1930. The time is at hand when not only the employe, but everyone else, must consider the fundamental principle of live-and-let-live.

"Thousands of railroad men with homes and families are being taken out of service every day because the industry must reduce its fixed charges. Retrenchment is disrupting the home life and happiness of valuable employes and actually is forcing business to their worst competitor—the bus and truck."

FROM A LARGE shipper:

"The worst influence in the country today is the I. C. C. They are, however, subject to investigation by the Senate. If someone or somebody does not clip the wings of the commission, pretty soon this is going to be a sorry country to live in. This new Eastern class rate decision has cost the railroads enormous sums for the set-up alone.

"This I. C. C. needs a bump. It was supposed to correct unfair practices and to prevent unjust rates. It has certainly wandered afar. The railroads deserve a better break, in spite of the inefficiency of their traffic managers. The depression was inevitable, but the continued depression can be traced to the I. C. C."

IN A DIFFERENT vein:

"How the reduction of the wages of $2,000,000,000 received by 1,000,000 railway workers—by two hundred millions a year—is going to help the railroads is more than I can understand. How can reduction of purchasing power be beneficial to business?"

FROM A RAILROAD worker:

"Are you aware that the trackmen of the nation, the maintenance of way workers, have for months been existing on a wage of $9.60 per week? The only persons earning real wages today are the train crews and the electrical men."

FROM ANOTHER letter:

"To attempt to improve the procedure of the commission would be a waste of time. The practical thing would be for President Hoover to remove the whole lot of them on the grounds of obvious incompetence."

IS IT NOT salutary for public bodies to learn occasionally how they are regarded by the people supporting them?

Depression Makes Value of Assets Doubtful

By GEORGE H. SNYDER

JUST HOW MUCH a company's current assets are really worth is often difficult to determine. The business depression is making an appraisal of these items even more of a problem. Next month accountants will start the task of preparing annual reports. Before the statements can be completed it will be necessary to estimate the probable shrinkage in the values of these assets. Nearly every organization will have to write some current assets off its books or else will have to set up reserves against this possibility if conservative accounting practices are to be followed.

The importance of current assets as a measure of a company's ability to withstand the depression was discussed in this column yesterday. Today the need for careful consideration of the individual items comprising current assets will be studied.

Even though a balance sheet may show current assets to be three or four times current liabilities, a company is not financially strong if a major portion of its current assets cannot be readily turned into cash or if they are in forms which are likely to be subject to severe depreciation in the future.

Importance of Cash

A STUDY OF A BALANCE sheet should compare cash to accounts and notes payable. If cash exceeds these items or is nearly as great, the company is not likely to find itself in difficulties unless it undergoes severe operating losses. Marketable securities represent a second line of defense for securing cash in times of emergency. It is customary to carry these at their cost. If the bulk of marketable securities consists of obligations of the United States government, they can usually be sold at their original cost, but most other types of securities have depreciated greatly during the past year. A properly drawn up balance sheet should show the market value as well as the original cost of securities.

The statements of many companies for the present year will show a new item under current assets. This will be cash in closed banks. Obviously this is a frozen asset the ultimate value of which will be uncertain.

Accounts Receivable

THE VALUE OF ACCOUNTS receivable always is subject to some question and is particularly dubious at the present time. Most companies have done a smaller volume of business this year than in the past. Accordingly their customers should owe them less money. Where increased accounts receivable are shown it may be assumed that collections have been unsatisfactory unless there are extraordinary circumstances. In most industries the balance sheet should show a reserve for bad or doubtful accounts. The size of this reserve will vary widely with each industry. Companies supplying the building trades have been among the greatest sufferers from bad collections during the past year.

Inventories usually are carried at cost unless current market prices are lower, in which case they are written down. The modern business trend is to keep stocks of materials and finished products at the lowest level consistent with the giving of good service to customers. A company with an unnecessarily large inventory is exposing itself to the danger of having to take a large loss in case prices decline. If the company is producing a product which is subject to changes in style or which may be made obsolete by technical improvements it is also taking chances if its inventory is large.

The size of inventory figures should be compared with those in past balance sheets in order to determine if the management has been keeping its risks at a minimum. Due to reduction in volume and lower prices most companies should have smaller inventories at present than they had a year ago.

NEW YORK BOND MARKET

NEW YORK, Dec. 8.—Led by the much depressed rails, the bond market today made a gallant effort to climb out of the low-record ditch.

Foreign bonds generally were higher and only the United States government obligations reacted slightly.

CHICAGO STEEL RATE LOW

CHICAGO, Dec. 8.—The increase in price of strip steel and steel wire last week as first quarter books were opened, tended to create a better sentiment in the local steel trade. Operations, however, continue at a low rate, with mills in the Chicago district running at about 20 per cent of capacity, or unchanged from last week.

U. S. Daily Average Oil Output Rises

TULSA, Dec. 8.—Daily average production of crude oil in the United States during the week ended December 5 totaled 2,451,201 barrels, an increase of 34,604 barrels daily over the preceding week, according to the Oil and Gas Journal.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 8.—The United States Bureau of Mines estimates indicate in the first 10 months of 1931 gasoline consumption increased 2.2 per cent to 342,144,000 barrels over the 334,705,000 barrels in the like period in 1930.

Runner Breaks Leg, Finishes Foot Race

AMES, Ind.—(INS.)—While running in a two-mile race, Earl Labertew, captain of the Iowa State two-mile team, developed a sharp pain in his leg. He struggled on despite the pain and finished tenth. X-ray pictures showed that his leg was fractured clear across. The ends of the bone did not separate and Labertew was apparently none the worse off for his finishing the race.

NEW YORK, Dec. 8.—Republic Steel Corporation has received a contract for the Radio City project to supply all metal lath-corner beading, wire lath and sheet metal for ventilating ducts.

Employment Gain Noted in Cleveland

WESTINGHOUSE MEETS JAN. 6

NEW YORK, Dec. 8.—(AP.)—Directors of Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company will act on the dividend at the meeting scheduled for January 6, and at their meeting tomorrow will consider only routine business.

F. A. Merrick, president, said that it was "deemed advisable for the purpose of computation of the future dividends on these (preferred and common) stocks to make the next dividend declaration after the first of the year." The dividends declared at the January meeting will be payable on the usual date, January 30.

Westinghouse and the Westinghouse Electric International Company have concluded an agreement with Ercole Marelli & Co., in Milan, Italy, for an exchange of patents.

They Are All Helping the Little Girls of Pittsburgh and Vicinity to Get the Big, Beautiful

"Honeybunches"

That the

SUN-TELEGRAPH DOLL LADY

Is Giving Away for Christmas

Read the Doll Lady's Letter Today!

Dear Little Girls:—

When I came to Pittsburgh three weeks ago everything pointed to an unusually big demand for my glorious dolls. There are so many daddies and sisters and brothers out of work that, if it were not for this annual distribution of mine, many little girls would undoubtedly be deprived of the enjoyment of a new doll this year. But my plan for distributing dolls, with the co-operation of the Sun-Telegraph, makes it easy and possible for hundreds and hundreds of little girls to have a "Honeybunch" for Christmas, notwithstanding any lack of employment in the family. In fact, my plan is so attractive that many little girls who have already secured their first "Honeybunch" are now on their way to get a second dolly for sister or, perhaps, for some other little girl in the neighborhood who otherwise would not have a cheerful Christmas.

This Is "Honeybunch"—Isn't She a Darling?

In many instances, little girls have secured "Honeybunches" through their own efforts, but in lots of cases mother and daddy and sister and brother have been a great help.

Here are the names of some of the little girls of Pittsburgh who have already secured a "Honeybunch"—

Hazel Short, 418 Presseau St.; Lucy Perella, 539 Turrett St.; Marjorie Burke, 549 Protectory Place; Gloria Mae Roth, 642 Harker St.; Frances Helm, 660 Frankstown Ave.; Carmela Gallo, 1049 Wheeler St.; Norma Jeanne Moore, 1421 Lake St.; Dorothy Blinkey, 2715 Summer St.; Audrey Anheim, 3128 Vernon Ave.; Ruth Pilarski, 3549 Fleetwood St.; Dorothy Connolly, 5117 Ladora St.; Dorothy Fannie Mintz, 6337 Phillips Ave.; Marie Phillips, 6 Wyoming St.; Jacqueline Anderson, 14 Wellsford Ave.; Martha Mae Williams, 14 Shipton St.; Betty Bickert, 24 Diamond Square; Dorothy Werly, 38 Bismarck St.

The little girls in this list are among those living outside of Pittsburgh who secured a "Honeybunch" for a playmate—

Evelyn Hindrix, McKees Rocks; Thelma Meihl, Carrick; Florence Berger, Millvale; Jean Kunkle, Cecil; Shirley Schutte, Connellsville, Pa.; Marguerite Carlettz, Coraopolis; Jean Boltey, Library; Vivian Louise Wilt, Midland; Nancy Jane Elting, Mt. Pleasant; Martha Jane Black, Parassus; Darlene L. Guy, Pitcairn; Eller Bell Virginer, Washington; Edith Morris, Weirton, W. Va.

They are all in love with their new playmate. They have all discovered that "Honeybunch" is different from any other doll, that "Honeybunch" is absolutely beautiful and that this lovable dolly can do a lot of cute things that real live babies can do. "Honeybunch" is almost as big as some of the little girls who have already taken her home—just about 20 inches tall. She has a smile that spreads sunshine and her eyes laugh with her. Yes, they open and close and her darling voice reaches your heart every time you hear it. "Honeybunch" is gorgeously dressed in dainty organdy with lace cap and shoes and stockings to match. She has rubber arms and hands that you can wash and she is as nearly unbreakable as a doll can be made.

Please don't wait until it is too late. If you want a "Honeybunch" all for yourself send me your name and address on the coupon below and I'll write you a letter telling you how easy it is to get this big, magnificent doll. And I'll send you a picture in colors.

BOLD FINANCE PLAN URGED FOR RELIEF

Hint of New Government Corporation Brings Plea For Assumption of Risk

By MERRYLE S. RUKEYSER

NEW YORK, Dec. 8.—The intimation that President Hoover will propose the creation of a government finance corporation comes before the privately financed National Credit Association, which he advocated, has been fully in operation.

In announcing his plan of financial relief on October 6, the President indicated that he would recommend backing up the National Credit Corporation with a government agency, if necessary. Some economists take the view that the National Credit Corporation has circumscribed its usefulness toward relieving the whole situation by emphasizing the policy of conventional safety in the loans which it makes.

Mr. Rukeyser

One influential school of economists holds that the situation calls for bold assumption of risks in order to liquefy the banking situation. Inasmuch as bank subscriptions to the National Credit Corporation were solicited with an emphasis on conservatism, there are some who think that a government finance corporation should undertake the job for freer and bolder lending.

If such an additional agency for financial relief is created, the cry of inflation will doubtless again be raised. "Inflation" is a naughty word, which frightens numerous people. Yet from an economic standpoint, deflation is just as upsetting as inflation. The economic ideal would consist of a stable commodity price level, which would assure a constant purchasing power for gold.

If the present subnormal price level is to continue, all long-term contracts including those for rent and interest, which were arranged on the higher price level, obtaining between 1922-29 have become increasingly burdensome and may need to be drastically revised.

Numerous scientific economists believe the way out of the depression lies in conscious controlled credit expansion, and many think the best technique lies in floating a huge federal bond issue, with the aid of bank credit. Such funds would not only finance job-creating public works, but would also lead to credit expansion, accompanied by a program of production for utilizing the additional funds.

In Memoriam 1-B

IN loving memory of my dear husband, Joseph Sinclair, who died three years ago today, December 8, 1928.
I have lost a life's companion,
A life linked with my own.
And day by day I miss him more,
As I walk through life alone.
—A wonderful husband and father were you.

CHAPTER XVI.

Laurel drove over to the country club at five on Saturday.

She felt restless. Was looking forward to the latter part of the evening with a queer mixture of anticipation and nervousness.

"He" would be there. The handsome "he" that she had thought about, these many days . . . dining with Connie and her party.

How could she interest him? How best could she remove the previous bad impression?

If he but knew how she had spent the intervening time he would be doubly disgusted with her.

The futility of her life depressed her . . . or was it merely a prolonged hang-over?

She drove swiftly on the roads. Swept into the grounds of the country club and parked her car.

There were ping-pong tables here. Also there was Roger.

"Where's Im?" She nodded to him, at the same time wondering why—at sight of this man who had kissed her and whom she had kissed in return—there was no acceleration of her pulses.

Experimenting? Yes, that was all that it had been. What her crowd would call the Biological Urge working.

"Im's out with Freddie Horseback riding."

"Am I Imogen's keeper?"

"Ha! that's a dangerous expression."

He didn't rise to it. He seemed bored today. Idly he picked up a ping pong racket.

"Let's have a swipe at the game?"

"Don't mind if I do."

"Don't be disgusting."

LAUREL WINS

It was out of court. She sent another.

He returned it, and she volleyed back, and he missed.

"That's 15—love—"

He won the next two points . . . she did the same . . . then it was deuce, then—with "advantage in" and "advantage out"—a prolonged struggle.

Finally, the first game was won by Laurel.

"Three games to two. I lead," she called out later.

She won steadily after that. Roger volleyed recklessly out of court and kept losing points thereby, although he was the better player.

She won the set.

"Come on down to the bar and have a drink," he suggested to her.

"Might as well do that as anything else."

You always have," she told him as they went down the wooden stairs to the basement.

There was a long counter in the barroom with a gilt rail a few inches off the floor. Laurel leaned over to give her order.

SEES HARVEY

Some exercise, what?"

Roger said nothing. He looked ineffably bored. He swallowed his cocktail and ordered another.

What d'you say we sit down at a table?"

"D'you mean ME?"

"If the shoe fits, wear it. But I meant all of our crowd."

More people came in to the bar. The long counter was propped up by the inevitable weekend bunch, who did more drinking than tennis or golf.

"Why don't they stay in town? What's the use of coming all the way down here for the same old stuff?"

"Okay with me." He brought a brimming glass to her.

"Here's to crime!" She took a long draught through the straws. She raised her eyes . . . saw standing in the open door and looking directly at her the handsome Bruce Harvey.

"Hello. You here?" She showed her frank delight in meeting him.

"I've just come in from a round of golf." He was handsome in a tweed knicker suit of a light grey that matched his eyes and accentuated the little streak of grey over either ear that was so attractive.

Laurel at that moment thought him the best-looking man she had ever seen. Her heart beat with excitement.

"Come on in and join us. You know Roger Sartoris?"

Bruce Harvey nodded over her shoulder at Roger.

"We've met. Sorry I have to leave. Needs must, you know, when the patients are waiting."

"As busy as all that?" Her voice rose in a disappointed inflection.

Would Laurel be among the party? He wanted that. Wanted to dance with her. A queer little electric thrill ran through his veins as he stood facing the girl.

Her look was like a challenge flung at him. Sort of a "dare." He had the queerest impulse to grab her here and now in the corridor and kiss her . . .

Was the child a witch? What kind of a charm emanated from her?

But aloud he said, mundanely, albeit quizzically: "What've you been up to since last I've seen you, Miss Laurel?"

"That's because we despised kids are so full of wim and vigor!"

Laurel jumped up and went to greet Bruce Harvey.

"What if we are? What if we do raise the devil?"

"Nobody's stopping you, that I can see—"

"Well—" provocatively, "why don't you take on the job of father-confessor?"

"You think I'm suited to the part?"

"Why, I can already see the halo and the wings sprouting!"

"You saucy kid, what you really need is a sound spanking!"

"Ha! I'd bite your ear off if you tried . . . on the other hand, who knows—?—it might endear you to me!"

"Little monkey!"

"Say, I've a trick or two up my sleeve. Maybe tonight I'll show you . . ."

"When . . ?"

"Aren't you dining with the old girls in the club?"

"Old girls? Miss Laurel, that's most disrespectful of you."

"Bosh! Don't they hot-foot it all their lives with the best of us youngsters?"

He was amused, despite himself. He said: "You mean you think that they're your competitors?"

"For whose affections? I like your nerve! I s'pose you fancy yourself as an Adonis?"

"Indeed I don't." He grinned. "You hand me many parts, I'll say. A few moments ago I was an angel . . . then a father-confessor."

"Well, if I'm ever ill . . . touch wood! . . . I daresay you'd be a darn good doctor!"

"Now I must go," said he, "you mustn't keep your friend waiting . . ."

"S'only old Roger. I can see him any old time. Say, what about this evening?"

"I'm your mother's guest. That's all I know. Are you to be in the party?"

"What? This chee-ild?" She struck her bosom dramatically. "There'll be no female at the dinner under 40!"

"That's catty!"

"Sh-h!" He seemed shocked at this—at least, outwardly.

"Oh, don't shush me. I'm wise to the old girl's doings. 'No chicken but GAME!' You get my meaning?"

"Indeed I don't. I wouldn't permit myself to understand you." But his eyes twinkled.

"Well, 'aging and amorous,' then!"

"What about claws?"

"Huh, I'm still a kitten—theoretically. If you don't react to Mrs. Delahunt—I mean to say, by all accounts it'll be either paws around your neck or murder."

"Will YOU be at the club tonight?"

"Perchance." She winked at him impudently. "Maybe you can have a whirl at my fatal charms if you step lively!"

Bruce Harvey went away, and Imogen went back to Roger and her gin swizzel.

She turned up at the club soon after 9 o'clock that night, in a sophisticated little dress of pink satin. It had a great bow on one hip, practically no back at all, and trailed on the ground in the rear.

She wore pink pearl earrings, gardenias in the same color on her shoulder.

The flowers gave out intoxicating odor.

He was a real man. She'd be Delilah tonight to his Samson . . .

Love? Could it be love, this queer, heady emotion?

Imogen and Freddie and Roger had come over to her house this evening for dinner. Her mother had suggested this. She knew that Connie didn't want her daughter near her. Connie was hostess at the club to a party of six . . . including the handsome young doctor.

Laurel had donned her prettiest evening gown, and the foursome motored over to the club after dinner.

It wasn't till the fifth dance—after he had danced twice with her mother, and once with each of the other ladies in his party—that Bruce Harvey cut in on her . . .

"We fit divinely," murmured Laurel.

Synopsis

Laurel Oakes, "modern" to the minute, is invited by her friend, Imogen Gay, who is even more sophisticated, to attend a party in an old deserted farmhouse. When the party gets too wild for Laurel she leaves and meets Bruce Harvey, a young physician, who takes her home. Laurel tells her mother that pleasure means more to her than love or romance. Laurel, attracted to him, fails to make a favorable impression on Dr. Harvey. Harvey tells Laurel that she ought to stop seeking pleasure and get married. Laurel goes to a party at Timmy Tewson's. Imogen wins a bet by plunging in Tewson's pool and then he asks her to leave the place. Laurel's mother arranges to meet Diaz, a Spanish dancer 20 years her junior. He tells her that he loves her.

The Rhyming Optimist

Hope On!

Oh, never fear
The coming year
Nor doubt your horescope,
For all you need
For dream or deed
Is just a hint of hope!

Do not turn back
From the attack,
Though doubt and dread conspire;
Hope on. You'll find
Your path will wind

Be strong, be brave,
However grave
Events forebode your ill;
You'll find it true
Life's good to you,
If you keep hoping still!

SUN-TELEGRAPH-WARNER THEATERS JUNIOR KOMIC CLUB

About this time the thoughts of the Warner Theaters Sun-Telegraph Junior Komic Club are running pretty much to Christmas. The Sun-Telegraph tells us that there are only 15 more shopping days before Christmas! That means that we must make up our Christmas lists and decide what we are going to give to mother and daddy.

Manager Morty Henderson, at the Etna Harris had a bright idea along these lines. At his chapter meeting Saturday morning he asked the children how many would rather have, as prizes next Saturday, things that would make suitable gifts for mother, instead of a gift for themselves. Every hand was raised. So next Saturday the prize winners at the Etna Harris will have at least one Christmas problem solved—what to give mother.

CAMERAPHONE CHAPTER

The new officers at the Cameraphone took charge for the first time at Saturday's meeting. The Grand Jester, Adele Yorio, made an address, urging the children to bring in new members and help the club all they could. This was followed by little talks by each member of the Board of Governors.

A contest was held for stage entertainment, which brought out a lot of unknown talent in the club. Bobby Cardille received the most applause and has promised to prepare a number for the next meeting.

Miss Mann, of the Mann School of Dancing, Ambridge, conducted a contest in acrobatic dance steps, on the stage of the Prince Theater at the meeting Saturday. As the children came up to the stage, they were shown a new stunt, and after a few minutes practice, entered the contest. Prizes were awarded. Winifred Barclay, Jean Knauss and Marie Simon entertained with songs and dances, and Marie Thomas played the organ while the entire group sang. The Prince Ambridge Chapter is growing bigger and more enthusiastic every week.

A Dry Referendum

The Bar Association's Plan to Hold One Is a Sign of the Times.

The Pennsylvania Council of Churches went on record last week as opposed to a referendum on the prohibition question.

But signs multiply that the majority of the people feel otherwise.

The latest sign of the sort is the announcement that the Allegheny County Bar Association will take a poll of its members to find out how they stand on prohibition.

Doubt exists that the majority of the American people approve either the Volstead Act or the Eighteenth Amendment. And it is disquieting to think that in respect to prohibition minority sentiment is ruling the country.

The democratic way of finding out how the people really feel about the matter is through a referendum—one in which the question will be settled strictly on its merits without regard to personalities and other issues.

Mercenary Squires

The System Under Which They Profit Financially From Convictions Is Wrong.

A justice of the peace and two constables of Kennedy Township have been arrested on a charge of extortion. They are said to have taken money from a woman whose son they accused of selling liquor.

Some of the justices of the peace and constables conduct their offices in a mercenary way without getting into trouble.

The so-called "roving constables" who go far afield from their bailiwicks in search of petty offenses for which fines and costs can be imposed are of this ilk. One from Wilkinsburg created a storm in Greentree Borough several years ago by instituting wholesale prosecutions for alleged violations of the dog law.

"Fining squires" who maintain "speed traps" for automobiles are of the same ilk. One in the eastern part of the state made thousands of dollars a year by fining motorists passing through his bailiwick for such offenses as having their license plates obscured with mud.

The system under which justices of the peace profit financially through the costs imposed in convictions for petty offenses is wrong.

The late Chief Justice Taft, of the United States Supreme Court, declared it in violation of the Constitution.

The difficulty is that no one cares to go to the trouble and expense of appealing from such convictions to the higher courts.

The justices and constables are so numerous and exercise such powerful political influence that it will take a hard fight to break up the racket.

A Valiant Effort

Los Angeles and scores of other cities report they are "over the top" in their community chest campaigns.

In Philadelphia, where the drive is still going on, $8,516,000 is reported pledged; the goal is $9,000,000.

Pittsburgh yesterday was still about $800,000 short of its goal.

It will be a severe blow to the city's prestige if we do not go "over the top," too.

If the campaign fails to attain its objective it will not be the fault of the workers, who have rendered yoemen's service.

Milk Price Reduced

It Is to Be Hoped the Reduction Will Increase the Consumption of This Important Food.

It is a sad commentary on the prevalence of destitution that the consumption of milk in Allegheny County has fallen off because of the inability of poor people to purchase their normal requirements.

A decrease in the use of milk is ominous. It presages malnutrition in children, with consequent inability to resist disease.

What has happened in respect to milk answers those who think a difference of a few cents in the price of staple commodities, as, for instance, the proposed state taxes on gasoline and cigarets, has no effect on consumption.

Because of the falling off in demand the price of milk was reduced 2 cents to 9 cents a quart yesterday.

It is to be hoped the cut not only will give more milk to children, but will stimulate its use by grownups.

Milk is the best and cheapest of foods, and nearly everyone would find it advantageous to use more of it.

Brides for Sale

Another local girl whose family are in difficult straits offers herself as a bride to any "respectable" man who will pay her father $10,000.

It is not inconceivable that a happy marriage might result from such an arrangement. But the chances are against it.

The girl is 18. The probability is that any man willing or able to accept her offer will be so much older than she that their tastes will differ and they will not be congenial.

The probability is that the man will be a stranger. A frightful risk is taken in marrying a stranger. Witness the Bluebeard case in Clarksburg, W. Va.

The girl, despite the cold commercialism of her offer, is doubtless very romantic.

The Ride Stealers

(Copyright, 1931.)

Federal, State and local governments in this country costs $105 per inhabitant and $440 per family, according to statistics compiled by the last Federal census.

This cost is exorbitant, and it is time to find a means of lightening this tax burden.

Even a cursory glance at the picture-editorial of Walter J. Enright above will show what is the matter—those two burly figures, GRAFT and WASTE, in the rear of the wagon, should be kicked off.

Under the leadership of President Coolidge, Federal expenses were reduced by the adoption of an effective budget system and a uniform system of taxation. As Governor of Massachusetts he reorganized and consolidated more than one hundred departments, commissions and boards into less than 20 that gave better administration at less cost.

Every State, county and municipality today needs a Calvin Coolidge to end this "legalized larceny," to cast out wasteful, inefficient, costly government.

Marry-Go-Round

By HELEN ROWLAND

The Sweet and Lowdown

When an engagement lasts too long, the girl's patience wears out—and the man's love just rusts out.

A woman has not reached the pinnacle of fame until she can set a new style in hairdressing. Madame Pompadour, Mary Pickford, Irene Castle, Greta Garbo and Helen Morgan will always be remembered because a lot of other women tried to look like them.

A wife has her uses—not the least of them being that she is the only indisputable alibi for not marrying the other woman.

Before marriage, a man can see all a woman's charms at a casual glance; after marriage, he sometimes has to use a microscope to perceive even a few of her good points.

* * *

Never contradict a man when he is in the midst of a carefully worked up alibi; just let him go on talking, and he'll contradict himself.

One of the chief reasons for so many matrimonial failures, these days, appears to be the average man's cold fear of finding himself tied to a woman of more than two working brain-cells.

Hunting big game may be an exciting pastime; but it is safe and sane sport beside hunting bargain-gifts for a big family in a modern department store.

When an old-fashioned girl didn't want to be kissed, she haughtily informed the man that she was "a lady." A modern girl apologizes to him for being such a "dissapointment."

The depression is tragic. But, at least, it has given the world a chance to take its mind off SEX and to worry about something besides the younger generation.

Robs me of that which not enriches him,
And makes me poor, indeed.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, Dec. 8.—One cannot help wondering the reaction of Bernhardt, Mansfield and other valiant troupers to accommodations for players in recently built playhouses. In old days, dressing rooms were often pigstys and back stage atmosphere had the depressing miasma of a swamp.

The other night I visited behind scenes at Earl Carroll's modernistic temple, perhaps the finest playhouse in the world. The memory is a confusing whirlwind of glittering mirrors, marbled ramps, sharp angled decorations, the beat of bolero and a phantasmagoria of powdered flesh.

Entrance was through dark tunnels now and then flashing lights like a sunburst in a catafalque. Then suddenly emerging into a series of brilliantly lit salons, suggesting gilt halls of Versailles during dazzling days—periwigged gentlemen in satin breeches, hoop-skirted ladies, Pierrots, Columbines.

A heavily kohled magdalen with blood lacquered nails, costumed as a nun, puffed a cigarette while trying to teach me backgammon as she awaited her cue. This was in the "Orchid Room"—tinted a delicate salmon pink and paralleled in chromium. In former days such rest rooms were known as green rooms.

Chorus ladies now receive telephone calls and call friends back stage without cost. Cigarets and orchid-hued writing paper are free. Also late novels. I noticed Edgar Wallace tales were most popular. No hotel reception room in town offered such gratuitous luxury.

Constantly above the hum of conversation was the broadcast to each dressing room of proceedings on the stage. One could hear the rat-tat of Will Mahoney's flying feet, Lillian Roth's softly crooning madrigals and the resounding clum-clump of comedy cut-ups.

Call boys no longer scurry to dressing rooms to rap warnings of cues. A concealed microphone broadcasts them clearly. There's no display of discipline. But woe to those who miss the call! Instant dismissal is the price and no appeal. Such unfortunates go on a permanent blacklist.

Mosaic tiled runways to the stage are lined with a zig-zag of mirrors so players may see themselves at all angles en route and detect defects in costumes, if any, and remedy them before reaching the wings.

* * *

In the bewildering clusters of brightened ladies in varying states of dishabille, I tried to assume an attitude of utter fascination in ceiling inspecting. Yet when the melancholy Earl introduced his charmers, I had to look at them squarely. They glance up from makeup tables to meet one's gaze with disarming naivete, tugging at a stocking, adjusting a brassiere or sundry unmentionables with no fluster whatever. Nor is there a suggestion of brazenness. To them back stage peepers are one of the professional crosses. And the show must go on.

Popping into one robin's egg blue dressing room, festooned with a double row of beauties at dressing tables, Earl announced with enormous mock gravity: "Girls, meet the world's greatest columnist." There was an awkward silence and once cracked in an aside: "One of those! And last night I had the earache."

* * *

Too, I was interested in a flaming red head, finished with her part and dressed perkily for street, carrying a huge box of flowers. She rushed over and dabbed Carroll with a light kiss. "I'm off to meet the wonder boy," she chirped, "with these marked-down flowers I sent myself. And will he run a temperature?"

* * *

Shortly before the microphone broadcast: "Finale in 10 minutes!" there appeared a bevy of those otherwise staid men of affairs, utterly entranced by familiarity with show girls. They were to the man in full dress, silk hatted, debonair—just dropping in a moment to be flattered, chucked under the chin or receive a hurried hug. Every musical show has its group of such regulars each night. After these casual intimacies they toddle off with Cheshire grins—happier than all get out.

LISTEN, WORLD

By Elsie Robinson

I used to think that some day I would find the perfect love—the one companionship that would heal the loneliness in my heart and make me warm, tender and joyous.

I used to think that some day I would find the perfect job—the one task that would exactly fit my desire and capacity and keep me interested, stimulated and proud.

I used to think that some day I would find the perfect philosophy of life—some set of rules or scientific explanation or spiritual program that would settle all my difficulties, clear up my confusion, put my life in exquisite order.

It was natural that I should expect these things. From the time I could first ask questions, it was plain that everyone expected them. Life, it was generally conceded, was pretty much of a mess, but all agreed that the perfect solution "lay just around the corner."

Now I know it doesn't. Never will. Not for me or anyone else. And for a very good reason.

Life doesn't aim at Perfect Solutions. Life doesn't polish anything off and say—"This is complete. There is no flaw in it. It is finished." Life never finishes anything—never decides that anything is complete. Life is always changing—shifting—trying experiments—getting into messes—starting over again. Life is always struggling and demanding struggle. And every living thing—and every healthy relationship between living things—partakes of life's great restlessness and uncertainty.

Why do we never find perfect happiness, perfect contentment, perfect success, perfect love? That's why. Because normal lives are never settled lives—never finished lives. They are always unfinished — unsettled — growing. The day they settle and stop growing, that day they die. That is the only real death. We have no proof that our real selves die when the body ceases to function. But we have proof on every side that we die—at least temporarily—when the brain ceases to function . . . when we stop struggling and are content.

Stop complaining because your life is incomplete. Thank God that it is!

Stop whining because things haven't settled down the way you thought they would. Pray that they may never settle down! Pray that there may be always something more to do, something more to expect, something more to risk, something more to fight. Treasure your hungers.....your rebellions.....your heartbreaks .....your unsatisfied dream.

And heartbreak is the evidence of love—

ONCE OVERS

By J. J. Mundy

Do you permit the opinions that others have expressed about you to weaken or disrupt your opinion of yourself?

In other words are you not influenced too greatly by what people say of you?

Also, is it not apparent to you that you represent little of what you really are, because you have tried too hard to meet a general popular demand?

By so doing you have lessened your regard for yourself and tried to meet conditions that are unworthy of you.

You weaken your ability to do more serious and valuable work by trying to appeal to the shallow public.

Even surface thinkers can be spurred to greater effort, depending upon your ability to stir up ambitions and make them like it.

But you have not enough backbone to launch out against opposition and it makes you belligerent rather than more desirous of improvement in quality.

Very often your family has to take the blunt of these conditions.

Repressing your good impulses by catering to the public you burst out with vehemence in dealing with your family.

So long as you are true to law as expressed in government, be yourself.

'None So Blind as Those That Will Not See'

By Claude G. Bowers

Author of "The Struggle for Democracy in America," "Founders of the Republic," "Jefferson and Democracy," "The Tragic Era" and other important works, now writing for the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

There is not the least probability of any attempt by Congress at a general reduction of the tariff during this session because of the division of governmental power between the parties. This, however, does not save Senator Smoot from an attempt of hysteria at the thought of touching the sacrosanct.

Denouncing the Democrats for even suggesting tariff reform, he makes the remarkable statement that "foreign imports are encroaching upon the American market at a time when domestic industry is crippled and millions are unemployed."

The truth is that there has been an appalling decrease in customs revenue because of the loss of foreign trade, and that the crippling of domestic industry and the loss of employment by from six to seven million men, the most serious and sobering depression in all our history has come at a time when we have the highest tariff rates we have ever had.

He knows that this prohibitive act he sponsored has resulted in the raising of tariff barriers against the products of our factories and fields by the other nations.

He knows that this is depriving us of the foreign markets on which we once profited, and that the decrease in production in factories is measured by the decrease in demands for our goods from other nations, and that this decrease in demand is reflected in the decrease in the number of workers needed. He knows that factories are building branches in other nations to escape the curse of the Smoot rates, and that these branches are employing not American, but foreign workers.

Mitchell Talked Like a Democrat

Such a statement would seem incredible but for the fact that men's minds do become ossified and set in their prejudices. "The higher the tariff the greater the prosperity"—old stuff now and thoroughly discredited by facts.

"The theory of high protective tariff as an aid to business and employment breaks down completely when a nation like the United States has become a huge exporter in manufactured goods and in wheat, copper, cotton and oil, and when all the other important nations have adopted high tariffs, too."

That is not a political but a business view and it comes from James D. Mooney, president of the General Motors Export Company.

He proposes that this country "immediately initiate common sense reciprocal trade arrangements and thereby start the forward movement in commerce and employment." That is the general idea in the tentative plan of Henry Rainey, the Democratic leader in the House.

Common sense in business is closer to the Democratic concept of wisdom now than to the superannuated ideas of Mr. Smoot.

Charles Mitchell, of the National City Bank, New York, appearing before the same committee the other day, reminded the statesmen that making loans to Europe and then making it impossible to trade with the debtor nations does not make for the creditor's comfort. He talked like a Democratic—however he votes.

Talk About 'Bargains'

The action of the Tariff Commission in recommending the reducing of some rates that mean little or nothing, while upholding the rates on cement and lumber, is just what is to be expected under the present system of packing the commissions with men subservient to the antiquated theories of the administration. Didn't a former President throw the recommendations of a former commission for a decrease in the sugar rate into the waste basket when he gave pig iron an increase of 50 per cent?

Lumber and cement! How well we all recall the logrolling of the team to get the rates they have. Each had its following in the House, and the bargain between them in the making of the present law, as commonly understood, was that the lumber crowd would vote to boost the cement rates on the consumers, and the cement crowd would reciprocate.

All went well until the cement rates went up, and then, because some of the cement votes were not "delivered" there was a momentary fluke on the increase in the lumber rates. In anguish of spirit, some of the lumber crowd sought expert advice from a certain brilliant Democrat parliamentarian on whether it were possible to get a reconsideration of the cement rates—and sweet revenge.

In the end they both got what they were after; but what a comment on how tariffs are made and the consumers are gouged! Talk about "bargains" in judgeship nominations between the two parties in New York! Here was a bargain, pretty, brazen, that went into the pockets of the people to the tune of millions.

The Trouble With Some Statesmanship

But that bargain is sacrosanct to the President; and he and his packed commission will not double-cross either the cement or the lumber crowd.

One day Mr. Hoover spoke feelingly of the owned home, and, in the midst of the wholesale evictions for the non-payment of rent, urged people to build their homes; and the next day he stood like Gibraltar against any reduction in the rates on cement and lumber that determine the cost of building.

The trouble with some statesmanship is that it has no coordination.

And it has another trouble too—it gets its political economy from the speeches of "Pig Iron" Kelly.

The Problem of Our New Civilization

The other day William Green, of the American Federation of Labor, made a statement to the La Follette Senate Committee:

"The government does not owe every man a living, but it owes every man and woman an opportunity to get a living . . . Yet we are told in a fatalistic tone to expect future employment. That is an indictment of our social system." It is worse than an indictment; it is a death warrant ultimately, unless a way is found to prevent the recurrence of such a tragedy as that of today.

He proposes to meet the real menace of the mechanical age with a seven-hour day and a five-day week. There is abundance of sense in that idea, but it is not being seriously considered by industrialists or the organized forces of society. We are having no conferences in the White House on this human problem; which is also the problem of our new civilization.

The Sherman Anti-Trust Law

This Senate committee also heard from the head of a great corporation a plea for the repeal of the Sherman anti-trust law. We were interested in his idea that the law was demanded when passed because there were more farmers than industrialists, and that since there are now more industrialists than farmers public sentiment and policy no longer make it desirable.

We had always supposed that the Anglo-Saxon abhorrence of monopoly from the days of Elizabeth was due to the distaste of all the people for being gouged, whether they lived on farms or in cities.

There may be modifications to the Sherman law that will do good and yet not do harm, and that is something to think about in Congress. Changed conditions may require some changes in the structure, not the purpose, of the law.

But there is one condition that has never changed: give men a monopoly without strict governmental regulation and they will always hoist the pirate flag or run amuck like bandits on a spree.

ISN'T IT SO?

A man may say too much, even on the best of subjects.

There is no class distinction when a mosquito is looking for someone to bite.

Experience may be the best teacher, but most of us have too little sense to profit by it.

Death may be a beautiful adventure, but it is life that worries the most of us.
